Gold, Always Welcome
Spain's Religious Hate
Hiccoughs and Bubbles
Europe's Sour Loans

By Arthur Brisbane

MEXICO'S GOVERNMENT discovers ancient Aztec tombs with treasures as rich as those in the tomb of Tut-Ank-Hamen.

Dozens of golden crowns, pearls, enormous in size, precious stones of all kinds, lead to the belief that the hidden gold treasure of the Incas will be found. The Spanish conquerors were never able to discover this treasure, even by hideous torture.

The discovery might change Mexico suddenly to a gold basis nation of the first order, and fill us all with profound respect.

Gold interests the world, especially the amount of it that India possesses. Since England went off the gold basis, India has sent her $100,000,000 in gold.

Intelligent gentlemen of the Bank of France seem to accumulate most of it. They even continue to draw on our gold reserves, and took from us $12,000,000 gold last Saturday morning. There is no doubt in the French mind as to the value of a gold basis.

A mob of 3000 gathered around the jail at Bilbao yesterday, intent on lynching 41 Catholics held as prisoners, following the killing of 4 persons in a clash between Catholics and non-Catholics.

Artillerymen protected the Catholic prisoners, and the mob, made up of Communists starting a general strike, pacified by the release of two Communist prisoners, marched away with them in triumph, waving the Red flag, and singing the internationale.

On the same day, at dawn, crowds attempted to burn Catholic churches in three towns, Moncada, Alfaro Del Patriarcho and Manzarrocho.

Mrs. Edith Cantrell, of Humphrey, Ark., suffering with hiccoughs for 24 days, sees relief is sight. L. P. McLaughlin, mayor of her town, has sent her two bottles of champagne, and this information: "Properly iced, and in moderate doses, this will effect a cure, the gas in the wine reacting against the gas in the stomach, which brings about the hiccoughs."

It is believed that many serious attacks of hiccoughs will soon occur in Mayor McLaughlin's town.

In Ringling's Circus, one big elephant had violent chills, and the keeper poured a gallon of strong, hot water and whiskey down its throat. Five minutes later, every elephant in the line was shaking, violently.

Mournful news comes from Europe in installments. One of Mr. Ochs' correspondents wires from Vienna that Austria, Bulgaria, Greece and Jugo-Slavia will default on $600,000,000 of private loans made by American bankers.

It is a comfort to announce, on the authority of one of the shiest bankers, that this amount is much exaggerated, if it refers to private loans.

Also, if those countries decide, irresponsibly, to call off private loans, putting government loans ahead of them, they will hear of something to their disadvantage from American bankers.

The bankers will see to it that countries deliberately defaulting do not do any business in this country until they pay what they owe. This applies to those that show bad faith.

Mrs. Pagan of New York shot two women, killing one, then shot herself. The quarrel was about a man. You could hardly guess what she wrote to her husband:

"Take my insurance money and bury me. Give my clothes to the poor. If the two women I shot are dead, bury them. Feed our two dogs, do not put them on the street. Love. Your darling wife."

It was truly written, in the song of songs, "Love is as strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave."

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, with the best intentions, introduces a bill to give complete independence to the Philippines in 1952, 20 years hence, if they wish it then. Meanwhile immigration restrictions against Filipinos and tariff walls will be erected in this country gradually. It is said to be "an administration bill."

Why turn the Philippine Islands loose? We need a landing place in Asia, in these flying days. We HAVE it, why not KEEP it?

There will never be any such thing as "Philippine independence," for the Filipinos could not keep the islands long. They were not able to keep them from Spain. They would not be able to keep them from Japan. One look at Manchuria shows

POLICE TRAP HIJACKERS

SEIZED IN GUN BATTLE IN WORCESTER

Masked Band Ambushed After Holding Woman and Two Men at Gunpoint

Worcester, Jan. 19—Police ambushed a band of four masked hijackers here early today after the latter had raided a private home, carted off $5000 worth of liquor and returned for more.

In the gun battle and chase that resulted, one hijacker believed wounded, escaped in a swamp and two men were captured. About 40 shots were fired.

The hijacking raid was at the home of Samuel Kline in Burncoat st., on the outskirts of the city near West Boylston.

Kline, his wife and two guests, who later vanished but who he identified as John Myers and James Bender of New York, were asleep shortly before daybreak when the raiders broke a window and entered.

LINED UP AT GUNPOINT.

Kline heard them entering and tried to telephone police. The phone wire had been cut. He ran out a side door to the home of a neighbor, Mrs. L. F. Herrick, who called police.

Meanwhile, the hijackers had gained entrance and at gunpoint stood Mrs. Kline, Myers and Bender against a wall. Bender made a dash for a window, but a shot fired over his head stopped him.

While one man guarded the members of the household, the other raiders carried half of Kline's $10,000 liquor cache to a truck and drove off, leaving one man on guard and warning they would return for the remainder.

FUSILLADE OF SHOTS

Police reached the house just before the returning hijackers. The pursuit opened fire and shot his way clear just as a truck and sedan arrived out front.

Patrolman Alexander Fraser, who had entered the house, narrowly escaped a bullet that crashed through a window. He ran outside and another shot, fired at close range, whistled over his head. He emptied his gun and heard a yell as if a man were hit, he said.

Patrolman Henry Hendrickson was a target three times. He chased one man a half mile, following his progress by the noise he made through the woods, and lost him in a swamp.

RUTH JUDD IN BATTLE FOR HER LIFE

Trunk Slayer Dresses in Finery for Ordeal; "Playboys" Will Figure in Death Case

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 19 (INS)—A frail but beautiful young woman began a fight for her life here today.

The State of Arizona wants to hang Winnie Ruth Judd because she killed two other young women, her boon companions, and packed their bodies in two trunks which were shipped from Phoenix to Los Angeles.

And so the machinery of the law was all set today to try the "Velvet Tigress," charged with the double murder of Hedwig Samuelson and Agnes Anne Lerol.

She went to court calm and confident. She dressed for her day of days in the new finery for which h husband, Dr. William C. Judd, scoured all of the shops in town to have her look her best.

Arrayed against her were the stern representatives of law and order, intent upon giving her justice as it is meted out in the rugged West.

PARENTS AT SIDE

But she has not been left alone in her fight. She was being aided by three able lawyers. Her aged and trusting parents are here to comfort her. Her loyal husband hovers near to advise her. Then, too, there is her young brother, ever ready to help his "Sis."

Those who will sit in judgment upon her are men. They will be chosen from a jury panel comprised of bronzed ranchers, sturdy cattlemen, cotton planters, farmers and fruit growers from desert

Still a Jackass

THE LEAGUE ISSUE AGAIN

A RAINBOW of hope for the Republican party shone in Philadelphia last week. The League of Nations Association held a convention and decided upon "an aggressive program" toward full and unqualified American membership in the League. This is to be made an issue, wherever possible, in Congress districts.

The idea seemed to ripple through the meeting that if Newton D. Baker were elected President he could put the United States into the League right quickly. Yet this was not a meeting entirely of Democrats. George W. Wickersham was there. So was Norman Thomas, whom Mr. Wickersham supported for borough president last fall. So was Irving Fisher. All for the League and the League for all.

THIS promise to drag the League issue into the presidential campaign—on the Democratic side, of course—should cause sad hearts in Washington to be lifted up. Get League adherence into the Democratic platform in 1932 and the Republicans will sail out of the doldrums. General gloom will turn into healthful exasperation.

It is 12 years since the American voters put the weight of their votes against the League idea. The leaguers feel that 1920, the great and solemn referendum, has been forgotten. The donkey may have forgotten, but not the elephant.

BANK PROBE INDICTMENTS TOTAL 38

Grand Jury Returns 25 More True Bills in Industrial Trust Case

Twenty-five more secret indictments were reported to Judge Louis S. Cox in superior court today by the Suffolk grand jury in its investigation of the closed Industrial Bank & Trust Co.

This makes the total number of secret indictments in the case 38, of which 31 were reported by the present grand jury and seven by the last one which finished its term Dec. 31.

The actual number of individuals named in the new indictments, or their identities, has no case been disclosed. It is understood, however, that among those indicted are several prominent business men and others in public life.

STILL OTHERS TO COME

Following the report to Judge Cox today, Asst. Dists. Atty. John J. Murphy asked and obtained the court's permission for the jurors to return to the jury room for "further deliberations," indicating that there will be more indictments in the same case.

Publication eventually of the names of those indicted is expected to cause a sensation. The list, it is reported, will comprise the largest number of prominent men ever named in connection with a single case.

The Industrial Bank & Trust Co., with its main office on Washington st., South End, and a branch in Dorchester, was closed by the bank commissioner on March 19, 1931. There were 16,000 saving depositors, with accounts totaling more than $1,675,000. Last month they were paid $400,000 in a partial liquidation.

OFFICERS, DIRECTORS

Charles B. Strout, of 99 Playstead rd., West Medford, is president of the institution. The vice-presidents are, John J. Curley, brother of Mayor Curley, and former city treasurer of Boston; Atty. Roberts Wilson, Jr., of State st., former city councilor; Anders P. Tellstrom and Frank L. MacRitchie.

Harry L. Loftus is treasurer and Ulysses J. Silva, assistant treasurer.

The directors include the above and Charles H. Burell, John T. Cavanagh, Albert J. McKnight, J. Waldo Pond, Frederick B. Walker and William J. H. Worthington.

Before the grand jury probe started in December, Asst. Dist. Atty. Murphy stated that evidence of "actual thievery" had been revealed, in his opinion.

The December grand jury halted its inquiry mysteriously for several days during which it marked time without hearing witnesses. On Dec. 30 it reported two secret indictments and on the following day five more, then winding up its term of service. The new grand jury took up the work early this month and last Saturday made its first partial report of six indictments.

KIN ON STAND IN GIRL'S SUIT

Providence, Jan. 19—A nervous and physical breakdown suffered by Miss Elizabeth McNally, 24, as a result of an alleged attack by Dr. Maurice Butler of Newport, was described to the jury in Superior Court, where the gown shop model is suing the physician for $10,000.

Testimony by two aunts and an uncle of the girl brought out that she was under a doctor's care for several months, his bill being $204.

Miss McNally had treated the story of a visit to Dr. Butler's house with several others. There she fell ill and laid down and he invaded her room, she declared.

The jury also learned that Eugene Spinney, who, according to Miss McNally, went to her aid, was punched by the doctor and punched him in turn, was fined $125 for his part in the fight. Another point brought out was that Harold Sheffers, orchestra leader, was divorced as a result of attending the party.

Fortune in Royal Jewels Is Missing

Paris, Jan. 19 (AP)—Jewels worth a fortune, with which the Infanta Eulalia, daughter of one of the Queens of Spain, had intended to finance the marriage of her grandsons to the daughters of former King Alfonso, are missing.

A trunk announced to contain the gems was sent to her from Spain several days ago but they were missing when she opened it. She had sent the jewels to Madrid from Paris when the Germans were advancing on the city during the war.

Teddy, Jr., Approved in Ten Seconds

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—Theodore Roosevelt came back to Washington today to receive his appointment as Governor-general of the Philippines, approved by the Senate in record time.

By the clock it took the "greatest deliberative body on earth" just 10 seconds to give its consent to placing the son of President Roosevelt in the highest territorial post.

Hoover Asks Dawes to Head Bank Relief

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—President Hoover wants Charles G. Dawes to take over the leadership of the new reconstruction finance corporation and the acceptance by Wawa of the post was believed in informed quarters today to be likely.

Borrowed Auto Missing

Worcester, Jan. 19—"Ace" Donovan of Los Angeles, an elephant trainer, who borrowed the automobile of Mrs. Mabel L. Allen to drive to Boston to see a theatrical manager, was still missing today.

SMITH PAYS FOR $550 FUNERAL

New York, Jan. 19 (INS)—The body of Harry Wallace, 60, who was run down and killed by Walter J. Smith last Saturday, was laid to rest this morning with pomp and ceremony that is not often accorded a poor and homeless man.

A high mass of requiem was sung in St. Elizabeth's church and he was buried in Mt. Pleasant, N. Y.

The funeral cost $550 and the bill was paid by former Governor Al Smith, father of Walter J. He would have been at the requiem mass, too, but owing to a misunderstanding about his time, did not appear.

The jury also learned that Eugene Spinney, who, according to Miss McNally, went to her aid, was punched by the doctor and punched him in turn, was fined $125 for his part in the fight. Another point brought out was that Harold Sheffers, orchestra leader, was divorced as a result of attending the party.

BOY, 6, OBEYS FATHER; DIES

Shirley, Jan. 15 (AP)—Charles Elcewicz, six, was killed today by a Boston & Maine Railroad passenger train near Shirley depot while his father, who had accompanied him as far as the tracks, lowed on. He was going to school.

After waiting for a freight train to pass, the elder Elcewicz, police said, told the boy it was all right to go across. Neither boy nor parent saw an express approaching on the other track.

Congress Asked to Repeal Rail Law

Washington, Jan. 18 (INS)—Retroactive repeal of the recapture clause of the 1920 transportation act was recommended to Congress today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The provision, under which prosperous railroads shares their profits with weaker roads, is not workable, Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman told the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

Brown Boomed for Senator From N. H.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 19 (AP)—Former Governor Fred H. Brown, senior member of the State Public Service Commission, is being boomed by Strafford County Democrats as a candidate for United States Senator in the Democratic primaries.

Brown in 1922 won the governorship and is considered the strongest standard bearer for the Democrats in the Granite State.

Glenn Parker to Be Freed

Stonington, Ct., Jan. 19 (INS)—Glenn Parker, 22, plane pilot of St. Johnsbury Vt., was to be released today following a coroner's investigation that disclosed no criminal negligence in a fatal crash in Pawcatuck, Friday.

OLAYA MELLON KIDNAPED, BOY CABLE READ TELLS POLICE

Tired, hungry and weak, the boy said he was kidnaped on the way to the Grover Cleveland school in Dorchester yesterday morning and told to "beat it or we'll kill you" in Waltham last night.

The boy, son of John Moore, Dorchester gasoline station proprietor, said two men in a coupe drove him around all day on the supposition that he had some of his father's money or could get some.

The men called him by name, but the boy said he never saw them before nor knew who they were.

Girl Lure Used to Trap 3 in Gang Roundup

Information furnished by a Boston gangster, captured last evening in the North End in a spectacular police trap in which his sweetheart was an unsuspecting lure, enabled police to capture a third suspect early today.

HAWAIIAN SOLONS MOVE TO STOP HONOLULU OUTRAGES

DRASTIC LAWS TO CLEAN UP ISLANDS

Will Pass Measure Making Attacks on Women Punishable With Death

Honolulu, Jan 19 (INS)—Six measures Hawaii's territorial Legislature has indicated it will pass to remedy conditions in the islands and which Governor Judd has indicated he will sign are:

1—Creation of a police commission with power to appoint a chief of police who now is elected by popular vote.

2—Making public prosecutor an appointive officer instead of an elective one under jurisdiction of territorial attorney-general.

3—Making criminal attacks on women punishable by death or life imprisonment.

4—Conferring of emergency police powers upon the territorial government.

5—Prohibition of street loitering, with fines ranging up to $250 and imprisonment of from 30 to 90 days, as a manner of breaking up gangs.

6—Giving prosecution equal rights with defense in the matter of jury challenges in criminal cases.

Regarded as the most important of these measures is the proposed law classifying criminal attack on women as capital offenses punishable by death.

A majority of the members of the Senate and of the lower House are pure Hawaiian or of mixed blood. American and Hawaiian flags swung lazily in the warm island breezes as the legislators, many in white attire and wearing the traditional leis or floral garlands around their necks, convened.

FOCUSED WORLD ATTENTION

Meanwhile, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, eastern society leader; her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie of the United States Navy, and two naval enlisted men, E. J. Lord and Albert Jones, remained in custody on the U. S. warship Alton in Pearl Harbor.

They are charged with the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, one of five natives accused of attacking Mrs. Thalia Massie, 20, bride of Lieut. Massie, and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Fortescue.

The attack on Mrs. Massie and the subsequent murder of Kahahawai focused attention on conditions in the islands and raised indignation that caused Governor Judd to call the special session of the Legislature.

RAISE JUROR STANDARD.

Representative Eben Low, a part Hawaiian, said he would ask immediate consideration of his resolution requesting the United States Attorney-General to give an opinion whether the national Government could impose army or navy control on the territory without consulting the wishes of the island citizens.

Other legislators proposed raising qualifications of jurors, pointing out that many miscarriages of justice had resulted from failure of jurors to understand the court's instructions.

At the trial of the five natives charged with the attack of Mrs. Massie it was pointed out that the deadlock had resulted from failure of some of the jurors to grasp the essential facts.

2 Firemen Injured in Dorchester Fire

A fireman was overcome by smoke and another was cut by falling glass as fire swept a three-story wooden house at 29 Balsam st., Dorchester, last night.

While on the roof, William Bennett, 37, of 521 Bennington st., East Boston, of Engine 46, was overcome. Fireman who saw him fall carried him to safety. Ladderman James F. Goode, 36, of 120 Belmont st., Mattapan, of Ladder 25, was cut. Six persons were driven out.

BAKER BOOMS GARNER AS HE QUITS RACE

Ex-War Head Upsets Political "Dope"; Texan Looms as Party's Choice

Washington, Jan. 19—The presidential stock of Speaker John N. Garner of Texas was given a substantial, if unintentional, boost today by Newton D. Baker of Ohio in bursting the boom for himself with his own hand.

In spite of the frantic efforts of Baker's friends to revive the "draft Baker" movement, many practical politicians agreed that the Wilson Secretary of War has eliminated himself effectively as a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination.

UPSETS CALCULATIONS

By pledging the Ohio delegation to Governor George White, Baker brought about one of the big "breaks" of the Democratic pre-convention campaign. It completely upset the calculations of the politicians.

Baker was supposed to be the rallying point for the forces opposed to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. Now the politicians believe it will be difficult for him to "get started" before the Chicago convention. They say that Baker's only chance for the nomination would be to have it handed to him on a platter.

SEEKING CANDIDATE

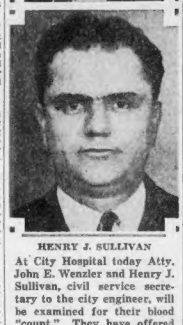

In view of the fact that the anti-Roosevelt forces must have a candidate who can "stop" the New York Governor, the self-elimination of Baker has started a hunt for such a man. Since the mere mention of most of the candidates in the field automatically eliminates them, the possibilities of concentrating on Garner were given renewed consideration.

Baker's hopes of the nomination were based on the possibility of a deadlock in the convention, probably between Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith. The prospects for such a situation now seem remote.

GERMANY MUST PAY, LAVAL DECLARES

France Will Never Forego Her Claim to Reparations, Premier Tells Chamber

Paris, Jan. 19 (AP)—Premier Laval, introducing his new cabinet to the Chamber of Deputies today, said flatly that France will not forego her right to reparations from Germany.

France faces a double duty, he said, "the duty toward the generation which went through the war, to sacrifice nothing of what is due as without a corresponding remission of our own debts; and the duty to future generations, to subordinate all agreements to a just balance between conditions of production and existence.

STANDS BY PRINCIPLES

"That balance would be disturbed, once the crisis is passed, the disproportion of fiscal charges curbing the activity of the people should place us in a state of inferiority in international competition.

"In all negotiations which must be pursued to adapt the agreements on war debts to this period of economic depression, the Government will adhere strictly to these fundamental principles which the Parliament always has approved.

HAS OWN TROUBLES

"The position of France is not as untroubled as it is said to be abroad. Already the Government has had to step in with aid for the domestic market.

"And the Government will continue to take measures to relieve our industries, commerce and agriculture, always with an eye to problems created by unemployment."

Dawes Will Take U. S. Reply to France

Washington, Jan. 19—Formal request of the French government for the attitude of the United States on an extension of the debt moratorium, was laid before President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson in a cablegram from Ambassador Edge in Paris.

The general impression is that the reply of this government will be verbal, to be delivered by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to Great Britain, when he arrives in Paris en route to the armaments conference in Geneva.

Washington Cold to War Debt Postponement

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—The latest European overture for war debt postponement has found no encouragement in Washington.

The American Government is expected to inform Premier Laval of France, in response to his inquiry, that a united effort by Great Britain, France and their sister power across the Atlantic must precede any American offer of further relief.

German reparations and war debts are regarded here as unrelated, nor does the Government see any logic in the attempt to pool the interests of those who owe the United States.

Death Takes Woman Who 'Forgot How to Smile' 70 Years Ago

Binghamton, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP) Fanny Read, who forgot how to smile 70 years ago when her father forbade her saying good-by to a soldier sweetheart who never came back from the Civil War battlefields, has laid aside her sorrow at last. She died last night.

For 67 years she buried herself in the old family home at Hancock, near here, leaving it only four times, each time for the funeral of a relative.

Fanny Read was 19 when the 101st New York Infantry encamped at Hancock in preparation to going South. She fell in love with an officer. Her father said she was too young for love, and broke her heart by refusing to let her wed.

IF YOU CUT PAY, HIRE MORE!

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP)—An offer to trade a 10 per cent cut in pay for a 10 per cent increase in jobs has been laid before the nation's railroads by their 2,000,000 workers.

"Give us a guarantee you will put the same number of men to work you employed in 1930 and we will listen to your request for a voluntary payroll reduction," spokesmen for the workmen, in effect, told nine executives negotiating for the railroads.

It was the first time that labor has come out flatfootedly with an offer of barter since it opened the parley on wage cuts and unemployment relief with the rail chiefs last Thursday.

Labor contends that a guarantee of jobs would accelerate business recovery because it would restore confidence and release $2,000,000,000 in purchasing power held back by fear.

The rail presidents had said in a general way the proposed wage reduction would stimulate employment but expressed doubt they could guarantee jobs to a fixed number of workmen.

Supply Bill Slashed

Washington, Jan. 19—Democrats in the House appropriations committee reported an Agriculture Department supply bill reduced $10,799,000 below budget bureau estimates.

ABANDONED SHIP FOUND

San Pedro, Cal., Jan. 19 (INS)—Abandoned and listing, the 6000-ton Japanese freighter Tanaho was found in mid-Pacific south of the Aleutian Islands by the Steamer Shidzouka. The crew had vanished.

SHIPBUILDING HOLDS OWN

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—Shipbuilding in the United States during December made a favorable showing with 70 vessels of 28,055 gross tons built during the month as compared with 71 of 23,226 gross tons for the previous month.

Broker Held in Theft

Los Angeles, Jan. 19 (US)—Accused of the theft of $1465 in White Plains, N. Y., N. E. Dail, 53, former mortgage broker, was held here today.

SPANISH 'REDS' PLAN STRIKE

Madrid, Jan. 19 (AP)—Rioting and labor troubles in dozens of places throughout Spain the last 24 hours was followed today by threats of general strike next Monday.

In several cities workers moved out upon the land and began to till it, the owners, in most cases, offering no protest. The workers said they were ploughing only enough to provide themselves with food.

The general strike reports said Communists and syndicalists were organized to implant "literal communism" in Spain.

Superiors of the Jesuits, following a revival of anti-Catholic riots, which resulted in several deaths and burning of buildings, ordered 200 novices at Loyola novitiate in Bilbao to prepare to leave in case the government declares the order dissolved.

Girl's Escort Shot on Way to Dance

Washington, Jan. 19 (US)—Temple Newell, 27, was shot and critically wounded last night as he escorted Miss Elizabeth Thorn, 24, to a dance.

Ward Lewis, 35, fled from the scene in a green coupe. The two men had previously quarreled over the girl's attentions.

JAPS PEACEFUL TOWARD SOVIET

Tokio, Jan. 19 (INS)—The Japanese war ministry today officially denied any intention of going to war with Russia over Manchuria.

Meanwhile the move for an independent Manchuria under Japanese rule continued.

It was admitted the Soviets might object to establishment of a "puppet" Chinese government under Japanese control, but it was said all foreign nations finally would agree the change was for the better.

China to Break Off Relations With Japan

Nanking, China, Jan. 19 (AP)—The official Chinese news agency Kuomin announced tonight that the severance of diplomatic relations with Japan was imminent because of the Manchurian controversy.

Foreign Minister Eugene Chen is the latest convert to such a stand, the agency said, and additional Chinese leaders are rallying to his viewpoint, the latest being the "Christian general," Feng Yu-Hsiang.

GANG CLEANUP IS LAUNCHED

several recent holdups in Belmont, Somerville and Cambridge.

Cooney, who police say, is a notorious hijacker and holdup man, was captured with Venuti in North st., North End, while keeping a rendezvous with his sweetheart, who said she was Patricia O'Leary of Franklin st., Charlestown. Police had been informed that if they followed the girl they would find Cooney.

GIVES POLICE TIP

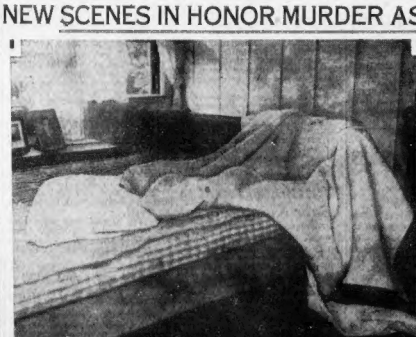

She said the two men were arrested as they talked in front of a North st. building. The girl was released after brief questioning.

Cooney was grilled, and shortly after midnight admitted to police his participation in several holdups. He denied he was the leader of the holdup gang and implicated Iubilato. He said the latter hired a gang of about 15 and that they had been holding up petting parties, chain stores and filling stations throughout Greater Boston. He admitted he and Iubilacato had attempted holdups in a Back Bay house and a Charlestown dice game which were unsuccessful. Neither was reported to police.

POLICE SET TRAP

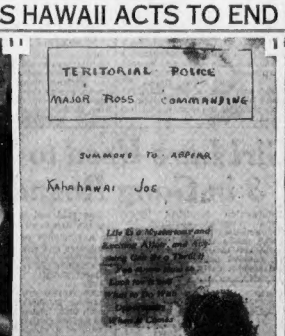

Fifteen officers from the Hanover and Milk st. stations were taken to the scene in two large canvas-covered furniture vans to make the raid, in which Cooney was captured. They were heavily armed and wore bullet-proof vests. They laid in wait, while other officers strolled about the district. When the girl arrived she was met by Venuti, who left and returned with Cooney shortly after. Police surrounded them.

NEW SCENES IN HONOR MURDER AS HAWAII ACTS TO END OUTRAGES ON WHITE WOMEN

ROOM IN MRS. FORTESCUE'S HOME

In this room in the cottage in beautiful Honolulu, Hawaii, the residence there of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, New York society matron, Joseph Kahahawai was murdered, it is believed by authorities. Mrs. Fortescue and her son-in-law are held, together with two enlisted men, charged with the murder. The native was one of five accused of attacking Mrs. Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Fortescue's daughter, last September. (I. N. R. photos.)

FAKE SUMMONS—TO DEATH

This is a copy of the crudely forged summons that was given Joseph Kahahawai, and which lured him to his death. It was given by A. O. Jones, enlisted man, to the Hawaiian, who followed him into the car—and to his death in the home of the society woman.

MASSIES LEAVE FOR BATTLESHIP JAIL

CAMBRIDGE COUNCIL DEBATES SOMETHING; PASSES CIGARS

CITY BALKS AT $1200 BILL FOR CANDY, EATS

What, No Cigars? Cambridge Solons Take a Vote, and That Settles That!

"Cambridge refuses to pay $1200 bill for cigars, candy, sundaes, assorted nuts, fancy baskets and one china dog furnished members of the 1929 City Council and their stenographers during meetings."
—News item.

Place: Cambridge City Council chamber in City Hall.

The Chair: Gentlemen, we have before us the petition of the Boston Elevated for a license to run buses backwards through Putnam st. Who has anything to say on the subject and if so, why?

Councillor A.—Mr. Glub, glub most important glub.

The Chair: If Councillor A. would remove or swallow the mouthful of salted pistachio nuts, I'm sure we'd be interested in his remarks.

NO NUTS IN SUNDAES

Councillor B. (rising)—Fellow councillors of our fair city. I want to make just a few remarks and I assure you I won't take up much of your valuable time...(Ahem! Slide along one of those chocolate sundaes, brother, will you? Thanks. Ahem!) As I was saying (gulp) gentlemen, the subject (gulp, gulp) calls for the utmost...(Say! This one ain't got any nuts on it. Got one with nuts? O. K. Ahem!) Gentlemen, as I started to say, if there is the slightest doubt in any mind (gulp, gulp) regarding (gubble, gulp) the integrity (gulp) of the gas company in asking (gulp gubble) this order that I say (scrape, scrape) is lay it on the table.

The Chair—"Does Councillor B. make that as a motion.

Councillor B.—I do. (he sits down and yells "Owoee" and a blonde stenographer screams).

The Chair—Order! What's the trouble.

JERSEY TOLD TO CUT TO BONE

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 19 (AP)—A. Harry Moore, Democrat, inaugurated governor of New Jersey a second time today, proposed distribution to the State's taxpayers of $16,500,000, representing a saving of approximately $2.50 a thousand of ratables. He said $13,000,000 could be taken from the gasoline taxes and $3,500,000 saved by a restricted highway program.

He urged abolition of 35 legislative commissions and delay or postponement of all projects not needed immediately.

The latter include plans for a free State university and the State's water policy's $37,000,000 reservoir development.

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—Capt. John G. Drinkwater of West Newton, Mass., was today assigned as district engineer at Sacramento, Cal. Capt. Drinkwater has been with the 14th Engineers in the Philippines.

Triple Probe Launched in Pawtucket House Explosion

Panoramic view of all that is left of the three-story dwelling at 76 Ashburne st., Pawtucket, destroyed early today by a terrific explosion and fire. Eight persons were at first believed to have perished but this number was reduced to four when the family of Victor J. Zaniol, occupants of the second floor, were found attending a party in a friend's home. The other family, dwellers in the top floor, are still unaccounted for, but as their automobile is not in its garage they, too, are believed to have been away from home when the blast occurred. Note the policemen searching among the debris on the possible chance that the bodies of the missing four are in the ruins. A triple probe of the explosion is under way. (Staff photo.)

OCCUPANTS ALL THOUGHT TO BE SAFE

Owner and Family, Dwelling in Top Floor Still Missing, but Believed Off on Visit

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 19 (INS)—A three-family dwelling house on Ashburne st. was lifted from its foundations by an explosion of mysterious origin today and dropped down a mass of wreckage and flames.

As search of the cooling ruins disclosed that there probably had been no loss of life, a triple investigation was launched by city and state police and inspectors from the state fire marshal's office.

Investigators started to work on the theory that a defective heater caused the blast, which shook dwelling houses in the neighborhood. Another report was to the effect that a quantity of gasoline was stored in the basement of the building.

At first it was feared eight lives had been lost, then four.

Fortunado Matera, owner of the house, his wife, their 8-year-old daughter Madeline and a girl boarder were missing. Police learned the four probably were visiting in Boston or Norton, Mass. The Matera family occupied the third floor.

Victor Zaniol, his wife and two children, who lived on the second floor, all were away at the time. The first floor was unoccupied.

Flames were visible for several miles. Three dwelling houses were ignited by embers but were saved, and occupants were assisted to the street. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

Slays Her Baby

Anna Hickey, young unwed mother of Jersey City, N. J., held on charge of killing her "love baby." It is alleged she hurled the child to death from a 3-story window. She said: "I'd rather see him dead than with the man I hate!" but refused to reveal his name.

75 Women Ask Work as Dressmakers

Miss Alice Doxey, assistant treasurer of the Home Makers' Association of Massachusetts, Inc., a philanthropic organization with offices at 286 Newbury st., has issued an appeal in behalf of the association, seeking work for 75 unemployed women on its lists.

The women do not care to accept any charity and desire to do any sort of work, particularly sewing, dress-making and mending at reasonable prices.

BEER URGED TO SAVE GIRLS

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—Another group of anti-prohibition Congressmen went before a Senate committee today to advocate the Bingham 4 per cent beer bill.

Representative Dickstein (D.) New York contended employment of the whole army "couldn't stop this thing going on today."

"Give us back beer," he said, "and stop this bootlegging and moonshining, let us have law and order.

"Before prohibition if you asked a girl to take a drink she would smack your face; now, if you haven't one to offer, she will kick you."

Representative Cochran (D.) Missouri, also planned to address the House today on prohibition, said he never "drank whiskey until after prohibition."

P. F. O'REILLY, 78 KILLED BY AUTO

Patrick F. O'Reilly, 78, retired, of 78 Harvard st., Dedham, was killed shortly before midnight at Washington and Court sts. Dedham, by an automobile driven, police say, by Gordon B. Reed, Winter st., Norwood.

Mr. O'Reilly was on his way home from a whist party. He leaves two sons, Prof. William O'Reilly of the University of Porto Rico at San Juan, and John B. O'Reilly of Hartford, and three daughters, Mrs. Donald Whittemore of West Newton, Mrs. Edward Wall of Chestnut Hill and Mrs. Charles J. Hurley of Dedham.

2 Saved From Mob in Woman Killing

Montreal, Jan. 19—Police brought Albert Preville, 24, and his brother, Alphonse, to Montreal after an angry crowd had threatened them when Albert was arrested moh the fatal shooting of Mrs. Joseph Mondor in St. Damien.

Mrs. Mondor was found dying in her home after a fusillade. The Previlles had run from the house. Albert surrendered and said he had fired after Mrs. Mondor turned a revolver on him. Police found Alphonse with a bullet in his thigh.

GIRL WINS RACE AS MOTHER DIES

Shortly after her daughter, with police aid, won a race against death to be at her bedside, Mrs. Anna Sweeney, 70, died today in the Long Island Hospital.

Police placed the department boat, Edwin U. Curtis, at the disposal of Miss Anna Sweeney of Allen st., West End, after she had been unable to procure transportation to the island.

Accompanied by two cousins, Mrs. Catherine Connolly, of West Fourth st., South Boston, and Mrs. Mary Joyce, of Chambers st., West End, she embarked at Commercial Wharf shortly before 1 a. m. An hour later she was at her mother's bedside and was recognized by the aged woman just before she lapsed into unconsciousness.

3 DUAL MURDER SUSPECTS HELD

New York, Jan. 19 (INS)—Three Negroes were held today as suspects in the murder of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley, social leader, and her maid at Middleburg, Va.

One man, who gave his name as Ernest Walcott, was arrested in a garage when an attendant informed police he resembled George Crawford, ex-convict, employed by Mrs. Ilsley, who is sought in connection with the slayings.

Wilson Pat Green and another Negro, whose name was withheld by police were the others taken into custody.

Description of the men will be sent to the Middleburg authorities.

Bombay, India, Jan. 19 (AP)—Another member of Mahatma Gandhi's family went to prison today. His youngest son, Ramdas, was arrested in the village of Haripura for engaging in Nationalist activities.

The Mahatma was taken several weeks ago. Then his 60-year-old wife was sentenced to three weeks in jail.

ALL WORKING 6 WEEKS FOR U. S.

Washington, Jan. 78—A warning that continued piling up of the tax burden might lead to rebellion was put before the House ways and means committee today by James A. Emery, representing the National Association of Manufacturers.

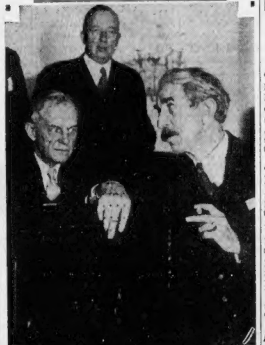

Emery said abo[illegible] of the nation's income [illegible] for public purposes. He e[illegible]ted that every citizen worked about six weeks a year for the government.

Woman Gets Second Divorce in 2 Years

Worcester, Jan. 19—Mrs. Madeline Steinholts of Lancaster established a new record for divorces in Probate Court here when she obtained her second divorce in two years. She was divorced from Robert E. Steinholtz of Carver who she charged with intoxication. Two years ago she was divorced from Milton W. Cushing of Lunenburg.

U.S. IN 'MODEST' ROLE IN GENEVA

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—America's delegation to the general disarmament conference will sail Wednesday under instruction to play a modest role at Geneva.

The members received an outline of policy in a final talk with Secretary Stimson about the time that the House smoothed their path by authorizing money for their expenses—a lump sum of $450,000—to cover weeks and months of discussion and debate.

The secretary laid down a broad policy of co-operation with plans advanced by others, whatever the methods of limitation proposed, but the delegates were told this country would not reduce its land forces.

LEGION SEEKS MILLION JOBS

Chicago, Jan. 19. (AP)—The American Legion propounded today at a conference of Legion officials, representatives of relief organizations from 10 middle western states, a program which it hopes will recreate prosperity immediately, increasing employment 10 per cent and turning $1,000,000,000 over seven times.

Henry L. Stevens, Jr., national commander, was here. So were Mark T. McKee of Detroit.

"The Legion hopes to put to work 1,000,000 men who are now unemployed," McKee said. "We hope their incomes will average $1000 each and that it will be turned over seven times."

McKee indicated that "certain large industries" had already increased their personnels 10 per cent.

Miss Astaire and Morgan Mourn Poisoned Dogs

Adele Astaire apparently was her own vivacious self at her opening with "The Band Wagon" in the Colonial Theater last night, but in her heart there was anger as well as sorrow.

The sorrow was for her pet Scotch terrier, Wessie, one of four valuable dogs poisoned in New York by some secret killer, and the anger was against the person who fed the terrier arsenic-treated meat.

Agents of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have been working for several days on the poisonings, one of which also killed Ute, a toy dachshund owned by Frank Morgan, another principal in "The Band Wagon."

The four dogs killed were all valuable, and when Miss Astaire was informed of the death of her pet last week just before a performance, she became hysterical.

Morgan's dog was poisoned a week ago tonight and an autopsy showed it had been given a quarter of a pound of meat treated with arsenic. The dog was from the famous Kaiser kennels in Berlin, Germany, while Miss Astaire's was from the Stafford kennels in England.

Doctor and 7 Held in Auto Conspiracy

Passaic, N. J., Jan. 19 (AP)—Dr. Samuel R. Lustberg, chief surgeon of the Jefferson private hospital, and seven others were held by Passaic police headquarters today charged with conspiracy to defraud insurance companies.

Police who arrested the men said they confessed to reporting false automobile accidents and surgical operations to effect settlement with the Fidelity Insurance Co.

4 CHALLENGE ARCHDUKE TO HONOR DUELS

Vienna, Jan. 19 (INS)—The Archduke Leopold Salvator of Hapsburg, descendant of the late Emperor Franz-Josef, today was faced with four challenges to duel.

The challenges were issued by four nobleman officers in the Austrian army as the result of a heated quarrel in a Viennese night club. A court of honor composed of high army officers was attempting to arbitrate the dispute.

ACCUSED IN FRAUD

Leopold was acquitted in New York some months ago of charges of fraud in connection with sale of a Napoleonic necklace, the property of his aunt, the Archduchess Marie Theresa.

The quarrel started when Archduke Leopold, attired in a green hunting costume and wearing a breastful of Austria's richest military decorations, entered the night club in the company of two princes of the former royal house of Bourbon-Parme.

Counts Arco-Zinneberg, Orasich and Rex and Baron Stuckart, all officers in the former imperial army, were sitting at a table when the Archduke entered. They were seen to whisper among themselves, and one of the noblemen then arose and confronted the archduke.

CHALLENGES HURLED

He accused the latter of "besmirching" the medals and decorations of the old regime, making uncomplimentary mention of Leopold's frequent escapades, including the necklace incident.

Leopold replied in kind, and a heated argument ensued, in which the three other noblemen participated. Challenges followed.

MEXICANS GET 'GOLD FEVER'

Oaxaca City, Mexico, Jan. 19 (AP)—A new "gold fever," akin to that which brought the conquistadores across the Atlantic and turned Spanish commoners into golden knights almost exactly 400 years ago, swept the whole of Oaxaca valley today.

Following the discovery of a forgotten tomb of a group of ancient Mixtecan nobles last week and the uncovering of millions of dollars' worth of gold and jewels, the belief grew among the people today that further fabulous treasure awaits the excavator's spade and pick.

A party of the government's principal archaeologists has arrived to study the treasure, which is now under heavy military guard.

It is the potential treasure that still awaits whoever may be able to find the lost Mixtecan royal city, however, that has fired Oaxacan imaginations.

The present find is outside the true Mixtecan country, and the ancient capital, where the remainder of the Mixtecan kings held court and were buried, holds the prospect of discoveries much greater than the present one.

Cops Almost Come to Blows on Raid

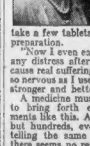

Philadelphia, Jan. 19 (AP)—Patrolmen Stephen Tracey and Ernest Ruetledge decided to raid a speakeasy. Neither knew of the other's plans. Tracey purchased a gallon of alcohol. When he stepped outside there was Ruetledge, waiting to arrest the first man who came out with a package. That man was Tracey. They almost reached the fist-swinging stage before the denouement.

Lack of Water, Not Privacy Kills Fish

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—It's not lack of privacy but usually lack of water that causes the high mortality rate among goldfish. Carl Thompson, expert on piscatorial pets, said few people realize a fish must have a full gallon of water for each inch of its length.

EAGER TO TELL ABOUT HER STOMACH

"I want to tell others about my experience with Pape's Diapepsin," says Mrs. B. Eastman, 1200 California St., Denver, Colo. "I tried a lot of things for my indigestion, but none of them did any good. Then a friend persuaded me to take a few tablets of this wonderful preparation.

"Now I even eat cabbage without any distress afterwards. It used to cause real suffering. I am not nearly so nervous as I used to be; feel much stronger and better in every way."

A medicine must have real merit to bring forth enthusiastic statements like this. And when not one, but hundreds, even thousands, are telling the same story of success, there seems no reason to doubt the day-in and day-out reliability of Pape's Diapepsin to help stomach sufferers.

Father Must Send Children to School

Suspended fine of $20 was imposed in Newton court on Joseph Savilonis, 55, of Sullivan ave., Newton Upper Falls, for not sending his children to school.

Savilonis said his six children are motherless and he had been unable to prepare them for school. The fine was suspended on condition that the children be sent to school before February 1.

ROBOT MAID IDEAL COOK

Called the electro-magnetic labor eliminator, this current-directed and tireless worker made its appearance at the annual radio and electrical show.

Vibrating excess weight off its owner and pressing a dress are only part of the robot maid's accomplishments. Some of the other are whipping cream, chopping meat, making toast, reaming fruit, barbecuing meat and separating cream.

And when the day's work is done the apparatus folds up and retires under the kitchen sink.

$50,000 DRIVE PLANS READY

Nearly one hundred leading Jewish business men gathered at the Boston City Club to perfect plans for the coming $50,0000 maintenance appeal for the Hebrew Home for Aged.

The campaign starts with a community dinner and entertainment program on Sunday evening, January 31, at the ballroom of the Temple Ohabei Shalom, Beacon st., Brookline. Harry Green, foremost Jewish comedian on the stage, will be the feature Jewish star. Guests of honor will include Rabbis Samuel J. Abrams, Louis M. Epstein, Peretz Halpern, Harry M. Katzen and Harry Levi.

Announcement was made by Chairman Gabriel M. Stern, that a men's workers rally is to be held next Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the Hebrew Home for Aged, 21 Queen st., Dorchester. On the following day, Monday, the women's workers rally will be held at the Beacon House, Brookline.

PATMAN SPEEDS FULL BONUS

Washington, Jan. 19 (INS)—The question of paying the remainder of the soldiers' bonus will be "the hottest question in America" in 30 days, Rep. Wright Patman (D.), Texas, leading the battle for complete pay, declared today.

With the House ways and means committee considering tax revision, the veterans will wait until this bill is completed before seeking hearings on many bills for complete payment.

"I have every confidence the bill for complete payment will be passed this session," Patman said.

"Two questions must be met by us—we must show that the full amount is due now, and that the country can pay it and benefit by so doing. We can answer these.

"There are petitions in Washington now bearing signatures of 1,500,000 ex-service men asking for payment of the remainder which is about $2,300,000,000.

"Complete payment would put $18 per capita in circulation among the ex-service men. The 50 per cent loan bill passed by Congress last year helped business."

Patman said his canvass of Congress indicated the payment bill could not be passed if it meant a bond issue. He proposed to issue treasury notes.

"It is true that the attitude of the American Legion has retarded the fight and there seems to be a lack of interest on the part of veterans which is reflected in the attitude of members of Congress," he added.

TRUNK SLAYER GOES ON TRIAL

towns and hamlets and merchants and business men of this and nearby cities.

On the sidelines are the people who live in Phoenix and those who have flocked here for Arizona's most sensational trial.

They hope to catch a glimpse of the willowy "trunk murderess" and they want to hear all about the Phoenix bright night life on which Winnie Ruth Judd had embarked with her friends.

For the people of Phoenix, Winnie Ruth Judd is somewhat of a secondary attraction. They did make a holiday of it when she was brought here from Los Angeles and hustled through the milling throngs and clamped in jail. But until now she has been almost forgotten.

Interest, mounting to fever heat, is centered right now on what a fellow townsman may have to say at the trial.

"PLAYBOYS" IN CASE

He is J. J. "Happy Jack" Halloran, "the troubadour playboy," whose name was on every lip.

He was expected to be found among the 61 state witnesses when their names were called today in the superior court of Judge Howard C. Speakman.

There also was an expectancy that the names of other Phoenix playboys would be heard when the lists were read.

It was Jack Halloran who met Mrs. Judd shortly after she came here from Texas in the summer of 1930, friendless and alone.

A companionship was formed and then Mrs. Judd introduced the wealthy lumberman to her two chums, Miss Samuelson and Mrs. Leroi.

Halloran took an interest in the slight "Sammy," an invalid patient, and her nurse-companion, "Anne," who looked after her.

INSANITY DEFENSE PLEA

The three women and Halloran became close friends and together they trod along a gay path of destiny.

The prosecution has summoned Halloran in an attempt to establish or explain a motive for the tragedy which ended the lives of two of the women.

In order to prove his charges of premeditated murder, the State is seeking to learn whether jealousy may have crept into the lives of Mrs. Judd and her chums and prompted the killings.

Mrs. Judd's lawyers contend that no motive exists and they are relying upon an insanity defense to keep the State from placing a noose around her slender throat.

HEIRESS' ROYAL MATE IS FACING DEPORTATION

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Paris, Jan. 18—Prince Geronimo Rospigliosi, son of the former Marie Reid of New Orleans, may be interned on Ellis Island when he arrives in New York on Friday aboard the S. S. Vulcania with his American heiress-bridge, the former Marian Snowden, it was learned today.

Mrs. Walter Sherman Davidson of Newport, R. I., mother and guardian of Marian, has interested Secretary of State Stimson himself in her attempt to have the marriage of her ward and the Italian prince annulled, while Patrick Cardinal Haves of New York has informed the Vatican that the marriage is illegal according to the laws of Rhode Island.

SEEK TO VOID WEDDING

Mrs. Davidson is directing the campaign to void the marriage from her temporary residence on the Riviera, the Villa Eze of Mme. Jacques Balsan, former Duchess of Marlborough. She requested Prince Rospigliosi's internment on Ellis Island in a cable to the State Department.

The New York bank which holds the purse-strings of Marian's trust fund is said to be interested in preparing a legal struggle to prevent Prince Rospigliosi, charged here with being deeply in debt, from acquiring an American fortune.

Marian, it is explained, was married without the consent of her mother, an illegal act for a ward in chancery.

Marian met the prince at Cannes in September, Mrs. Davidson said, and he immediately proposed.

CITY REFUSES TO PAY BILL

subject before and I'm going to bring it up again because it's very near and dear to my heart. As a member of your committee I attend all your meetings, do I not? I do. And at every meeting we have peppermint patties—the big ones—do we not? We do. And who likes peppermint patties, I? I do not.

Everybody, gentlemen, likes peppermint patties but me. I've asked time and time again for the messenger who gets the patties to get a few wintergreens and never are there any wintergreens. I come in here tonight with my mouth made up for wintergreen patties and what do I find—WHAT DO I FIND? Every patty, gentlemen, is peppermint. Now I'm making an issue on the grounds of my constitutional rights as a member of the committee and I want a vote.

The Chair—Does anybody want to say anything?

Councillor M— (puffing a fat cigar)—I do. I don't want no wintergreen patties. Give me peppermint every time. If you get two kinds puff, puff, who's got a match! Thanks)—if you got two kinds (puff, puff, puff) you get 'em mixed. What I say . . .

CIGARS—AND PLENTY!

Councillor B—Councillor M is chiseling on the cigars again. Wait, he was just speaking I see eight cigars in his vest pocket.

Councillor M.—It's a lie. I only got seven.

Councillor B.—Well, seven, then. Gentlemen, I been arguing for months against this cigar grab by Councillor M. I demand he put them back.

Councillor M.—May I ask Councillor B. what the hump is under his coat?

Councillor B. (blanching)—I stumbled against a door.

Councillor M—Pull up your coat tail if you dare.

Councillor B—I deny your right . . . (Councillor C reaches over and pulls up his coat and reveals an 58 fancy box of red candy and a quart of vanilla ice cream).

Councillor M—There, gentlemen, what has Councillor B got to say now?

Councillor B—They're for the girls, the stenographers. They work hard, don't they?

Councillor M—That's what my cigars are for.

The Chair—Well, that's settled (crunch, crunch) Has anybody (crunch. Say, messenger, take these damn almonds back across the street, they're burned.) Has anybody else (gulp) got anything to say?

WHO'S GOT CHINA DOG?

Councillor K—(spooning a pineapple, fudge sundae with marshmallow)—I have. Who got the china dog?

The Chair—Who got what?

Councillor K.—The china dog, the china dog. You know what I mean. I see a china dog in Trott's window, and the messenger gets it for me to take home to the kid and it disappears.

Councillor R.—If 45 pleases the chair, it's in the councillor's derby.

The Chair—We'll now vote on . . . Mr. Clerk, what was that we were voting on? . . . what's before the meeting?

The Clerk—How should I know?

Jiggs Dines on Cabbage Atop New Postoffice

The noon whistle blew at the new postoffice construction job. The iron workers dropped their hot rivets as if they were hot rivets and dived for dinner pails.

Out on a girder swung over the street on a level with the 16th floor climbed a short and stocky man looking quite out of place in a tall hat and spats.

Straddling the girder, he sat down, and began prying the lid off a pail with eager fingers.

Sixteen stories below him, standing in Devonshire st., a woman in a Paris gown gazed up, brandishing a rolling pin and called:

"Owooo! Wait'll I get hold of you!"

The man on the girder paid no attention. He succeeded in removing the lid of the pail from which arose a cloud of aromatic steam invested with the delicious odor of corned beef and cabbage.

The woman in Devonshire st. began to howl. A crowd gathered and a policeman arrived.

20 YEARS A LOWBROW

"Never in my life have I been so humiliated!" the woman exclaimed. "He said he was going to the club with Count de Butt Insky. Twenty years I've been married to that man and he's still a lowbrow with lowbrow friends and a lowbrow appetite!"

The policeman led her away. The man on the girder removed his coat and hat and his wing collar and dived into the corned beef and cabbage.

Of course, the man on the girder was Jiggs and the woman in the street was Maggie who, 20 years ago, took Jiggs in matrimony to make a gentleman of leisure and refinement of him.

With the intervention of the law, Jiggs finally had got a break and corned beef and cabbage at the same time. When he finished eating, some of the steel workers who used to be in the gas house gang climbed out on the girder to congratulate him on the attainment of his 20th wedding anniversary.

SOMETHING TO THROW

"Thanks, boys," said Jiggs. "That was swell corned beef and cabbage."

"We're takin' up a little collection to buy you an' Maggie some china," one of the old gang said.

"And next Monday they're givin' you a big big blowout at Washington with 300 big bugs present in honor of yer anniversary," someone else informed him.

"A chowder party?" he asked hopefully

"Maggie'll be there, too."

"Twill be no chowder party," said Jiggs, sadly, gazing into his empty pail and licking his lips.

"Oooh!" said Jiggs.

She'll sing anyhow," someone said.

Jiggs wasn't paying any attention. He was gazing down into Devonshire st. where a man in a derby was strutting along with a charmer on each arm.

"Do you see what I see?" Jiggs demanded.

"What's that?" chorused the gang.

AN EYE FOR BEAUTY

"You got good eyesight," said the boys, squinting.

"Lower away the girder," he called. "Where's me hat and collar?"

"How about the 20th wedding anniversary?" some one called.

"Lower away," Jiggs ordered. "This ain't bringing up father, this is called lettin' him down."

A whistle tooted and the girder started down.

"How about that wedding anniversary?" one of the gang yelled. "You gonta throw a party at Dinty's?"

"Maggie does all the throwin'," yelled Jiggs. "But I tell you what you do. You tell all me friends that has been married 20 years like me to write care of the Boston Evening American an' I'll send 'em a swell birthday card I got up special for 'em. So long!"

Hearing Scheduled on New Golf Links

Before the committee on metropolitan affairs at the State House tomorrow morning at 10:30, proponents for a public golf links constructed by the state in the Middlesex Fells reservation will be heard. The bill, presented to the Legislature by the late Rep. Richard D. Crockwell of Medford and Rep. William H. Doyle, of Malden, jointly, calls for an appropriation of $100,000 for an 18-hole course.

London Editor Gets 3 Years' Sentence

London, Jan. 18 (INS)—For conspiring "to seduce British soldiers and sailors from allegiance to His Majesty and to commit acts of mutiny," a Communist publisher today was sentenced to three years in prison.

He is Frank Priestley, 35, of the newspaper Daily Worker.

FREE TRIP TO BE GIVEN SOON

Within the next few days some fortunate reader of the Boston Evening American will be informed that he or she is to be its guest on a free nine-day trip to Havana on the beautiful United Fruit steamship Toloa.

Adolph Menjou

The free trip is being given in conjunction with the showing of the Columbia screen hit, "Forbidden," featuring Barbara Stanwyck and now showing at the RKO Keith Theater.

All information as to how he may become the guest of the Evening American on the marvelous cruise to the tropics is being imparted to every patron who attends the RKO Keith's Theater between today and next Thursday night inclusive.

The S.S. Toloa is one of the best ships in the huge Great White fleet. A cruise on one of these ships is not a casual happening. The men who man them and the men who operate the steward's department, which looks out for the passengers' comfort, are especially trained in their duties.

CHANCE FOR HAVANA SAIL

You may be the fortunate reader of the Boston Evening American who will sail out on this beautiful ship, the United Fruit Company's Toloa. Every reader of this paper who attends the screen hit "Forbidden" at the RKO Keith Theater has the chance to be a lucky tourist to Havana. (Staff photo.)

150 LABORERS LAID OFF

A force of 150 laborers of the Newton street department was laid off yesterday for an indefinite period.

Most of the men appeared at the headquarters of the unemployment relief committee to register.

The lack of snow this winter, while depriving the men of greatly needed employment, has resulted in a saving to the city. A year ago about $100,000 was expended.

Banks, Stores Urged to Close in Move to 'Aid Urbana'

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 19 (INS)—Mayor Harmon issued a proclamation today calling on all banks and business houses in this university town to close for the remainder of the week.

The move was taken because of unsettled conditions following the closing of two banks in Champaign, Urbana's "twin city."

Only drug stores, newspapers, food stores, and public service establishments will remain open in Urbana.

Tommy Madden, Old Red Sox Catcher, Ill

Conditions Make Readjustment Necessary

A large and well known Boston piano concern has always followed a policy of making individual arrangements with each customer when a piano is purchased. Because this is a personal and private arrangement, unusual considerations and accommodations are extended by the Credit Manager. In fact, it is quite probable that these methods of serving customers' needs, and protecting their interests, is one of the most unique and unusual plans used by any piano house in America. Now, certain conditions have made it necessary to extend our service in order to aid many who purchased pianos and to conserve our investment in these fine instruments. A limited number of selected prospective piano purchasers are invited to investigate the opportunities outlined below. Please note instructions in replying.

No. 9874. A successful young executive, recently married, was transferred to the Chicago office of his organization. We have completed arrangements so that his newly purchased player-piano is obtainable at an amazing sacrifice. No down payment necessary, merely complete weekly or monthly payments on lease. A beautiful, walnut finished instrument. 58 note, bright, rippling tone with the deep, resonant bass and bell-like treble notes which mark a quality piano.

No. 3037. A music student, who purchased a baby grand, was forced to give up musical studies and return home to the South because of her father's death. This carefully handled, like new piano, in mahogany finish, may be purchased without down payment. Simply pay on the lease until completed. Here is a master instrument with the "singing tone" which true musicians always choose in a piano, and easy, responsive action. One of the finest pianos we sold the latter part of 1931.

These are just two examples. If you have some other type of piano in mind we may have, in the Credit Manager's Special File, just what you want. If either of these appeal to you, write, giving the number, and we will arrange for a private demonstration. Address "Credit Manager," Box C-103, care of Boston American. Be sure to print your name, address and 'phone number so we may notify you.

EXPERTS TEST WONDER-CUT BREAD FOR GOODNESS. You can make this test, too. Toast Wonder-Cut, and any other bread, for the same time. Compare. The Wonder toast will be far better every time. Why? Because only perfect bread can make perfect toast.

GUEST DELIGHTED

BETTER meals. Happier families. That's the quick story of Wonder-Cut Bread—the bread that's on more tables today than any other bread that's baked. Wonder-Cut Bread "goes with" all good foods, makes every meal more delicious. Doubles the joy of eating.

Good things go into it

The Happy Wonder Bakers tested scores of flours, in their search for true bread goodness. No single flour seemed good enough. Then blends were tried, hundreds of them. Still the searchers were unsatisfied. So they took the best flour blend, and turned their research toward baking methods.

Slo-baking discovered

They perfected Slo-Baking — their modern development of old home-baking methods. It brings out the natural goodness of the choice blended flours to its fullest. It makes every bit of every slice fully nourishing and delicious. More—it makes Wonder-Cut Bread "go with" other good foods. Makes every meal taste better.

Proof in serving

Serve Wonder-Cut Bread with your next meal. Serve it with your family's favorite dish. They'll eat more! They'll enjoy the whole meal more. And they'll want you to continue serving Wonder-Cut Bread—the bread that actually doubles the joy of eating. At your grocer's. Oven-fresh just a short time before you call.

All-Bran Rich in Calories to Give Energy

Did you ever notice that it's the fat lady who sits in the tea room and eats cream puffs with hot fudge sauce, and the girl with the spaghetti figure that has fruit salad and a cup of thin cream for her luncheon?

Eventually both the over-stuffed lady and the under-nourished one find their way to the family physician and listen to his lectures on better balance in their diet.

The way to reduce fat, of course, is to eat less fat-making foods. Since over-weight is not only due to over-eating, but is nearly always due to eating in excess of foods rich in carbohydrates and fat.

ENERGY FOODS

On the other hand we must have an adequate supply of foods, since every breath we take, every move we make requires energy which food must supply us.

Sugar, cereals, fats and vegetables give us the greater part of this needed heat and energy, with cereals coming first as one of our most economical sources of fuel food. The lower our income drops, the greater the percentage of our budget must go for bread and other cereal products in order to provide life energy for a large family for little money. But if you choose your cereals wisely, they become not only fuel foods but building foods and regulating foods.

I hate to get preachy again on the bran subject, but the fact remains that all-bran has a place of honor on the cereal list, since it is especially rich in phosphorous and iron, two elements which play an important part in our health.

BRAN GINGER CAKES

Two tablespoons of bran is said to be our daily quota for good health, and it can be used as a cereal with milk or cream, or added to raw or cooked fruit or cereals, in stewed tomatoes or soup instead of croutons, and in recipes for muffins, brown bread, griddle cakes and cookies.

One of the pleasantest ways that I know to sugar-coat our daily bran quota is to serve it in small cakes and cookies.

TIPS ON GOOD TEA

All the cookie recipes I'll gladly send you. But I do want to say just a word about the tea that is a favorite accompaniment of these bran dainties. Quite a famous Englishman tells me that the true tea connoisseur would never think of putting lemon or thick cream in his tea. He says that the English, who drink tea times as much tea as we do (averaging seven cups a day) use only plain milk and sugar in their tea. Milk brings out the true flavor of good tea instead of disguising it as cream and lemon do.

This Salads tea expert, Mr. Herbert Knaidge, gives two simple rules which if followed will invariably give a delicious cup of tea. First, use only fresh, bubbling tea to steep five full minutes. A boiling water. Second, allow the shorter time doesn't allow the tea leaves to unfold fully and release their rich flavor. For weaker tea use less than the usual measure of one teaspoon to a cup. But whatever quantity you use, let it steep the full five minutes.

Sincerely yours,

MARTHA LEE.

DAINTY TEA COOKIES CAMOUFLAGE DAILY BRAN QUOTA

Two tbsps. of all-bran daily helps us to health. You'd never suspect bran of hiding in these delicious afternoon tea cakes and cookies.

Try This Pini Cheese Recipe

Here's a choice recipe contributed by Miss Daurice Darling, director of the home service department of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co.

PINI CHEESE

1 cup cream cheese
4 tbsps. soft Roquefort cheese
4 olives finely chopped
1 tbsp. green pepper finely chopped
1 pimiento finely chopped
2 sprigs parsley finely chopped
½ tsp. paprika
4 tbsps. butter
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Mix cream cheese with Roquefort cheese, olives, green pepper, pimiento, parsley, paprika, butter and Worcestershire sauce. Shape in a roll 4 inches in diameter, place on platter and chill. Decorate with 8 tbsps. cheese mixed with 4 tbsps. creamed butter and forced through pastry bag and tube and again chill.

BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

NOW COME CANNED! Strike a new note in the culinary world. With a hint of magic. Who'd ever guess that ten toothsomely tender biscuits could be tucked in an air-tight container? All ready to pull apart and bake for 10 minutes in a hot oven. Made with vegetable shortening. Better biscuits than I can bake with my own more-or-less fair hands. Cheaper than I can make them, too. And oh so easy! Tender enough for shortcake, to serve with creamed dishes, stews, or just to eat "as is" with lots of butter. Perfect for breakfast, lunch or dinner. And here's a tip—how "thin" better biscuits than mother ever made! And mum's the word.

SAVE EXPENSIVE PLUMBER'S BILLS. New preparation quickly cleans stopped-up traps, sluggish sinks and wash tub drains. Safely. Quickly. No fumes. Easy to use. 25c.

BREAD AND BUTTER SHORTCAKE is quick and easy. Thin slices of buttered bread put together with sliced frosted strawberries. Keep under weight over night and next day a yummy shortcake for company lunch or dinner. Frosted raspberries, blueberries and loganberries if you prefer.

FRESH FOR MONTHS are marshmallows in a new economy package. Four one-quarter pound boats, each containing 16 marshmallows. Each boat wrapped in sealed wax paper. Then all wrapped together. Tear off outside wrapper and use marshmallows as needed. Balance stay fresh for months. No waste, no more hard, dried marshmallows. Convenient for the small apartment or large pantry. Dietitians and physicians recognize these marshmallows as healthful foods for children and grown-ups. Contain no flour or starch.

AND IN THE SAME SHOP the perfect cleanser for dirty wall paper. 20c a can. Why tolerate spotted, soiled paper when remedied so easily?

IF YOU'D LIKE to know the where and how much of one or all the above items, clip and check the column and send to me with loose 2c stamp (not stamped envelope) and full name and address, for prompt information. More next week, from

Yours faithfully,

HOOVER SCORED AS G. O. P. BACKS SEABURY QUIZ

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—After an angry midnight session, the Republican New York State Senate today had steam-rollered a maddened Democratic opposition and approved further legislative inquiry into the affairs of Tammany controlled New York City.

The Democratic minority, under Tammany leadership, fought every inch of a losing battle to prevent a continuation for another year of the Hofstadter investigating committee, only to be overruled by a vote of 28 to 23.

DRAGS IN HOOVER

The Republican victory was won, however, only after Samuel Seabury, counsel for the Hofstadter committee, had been bitterly assailed, and the vigorous debate had brought the flat Democratic assertion that Herbert Hoover encouraged the New York investigation.

It was Senator John A. Hastings, Brooklyn Democrat, who brought the Hoover name into the wrangling.

"Who whipped the two Westchester County senators into line last year when they rebelled against the State Republican chairman, W. Kingsland Macy, who ordered the inquiry?" he asked.

"That influence was Herbert Hoover, who undertook to cover his own miserable failure and his inability to cope with the economic crisis."

ATTACKS SEABURY.

Senator Dunnigan, attacking the Hofstadter committee's counsel, said:

"I wonder how Seabury would explain his $500,000 fee in the Gould estate matter and who he had to fix to get it.

"Seabury, the king of dealers! If the truth were known and a certain man would speak he would tell how much Seabury gave for his nomination for governor."

Many Families Flee Floods in Ireland

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 19—Ireland is having the worst floods in 30 years because of prolonged rain. Many families have fled their homes.

The River Shannon has overflowed vast areas. In Ulster the Claudy is a lake.

The River Moy has isolated Foxford. The Robe flooded a church near Clare Morris. The priest held mass in an old barn. There are floods also in Cork, Limerick and Kerry counties.

Heavy Guard as Desperado Returns

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—Two dozen picked policemen, intent on thwarting any rescue attempt, met Reynolds Forsbrey, notorious desperado, when he arrived today from Miami, Fla., with two companions to face holdup charges that may send him to prison for life.

Forsbrey, with George O'Neill and John Lane, is charged with the kidnaping of Francis W. Pope in the Consolidated ticket office last month and the robbery of $5000.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

Theodore Dreiser is not happy over present conditions in these United States. He expressed his unhappiness in no uncertain terms in an exhaustive book, the result of years of study and contemplation. It is called "Tragic America," and Liveright is the publisher. There are 426 pages of fine type, and an appendix. Mr. Dreiser has never been one to shirk a huge task. He has roamed about this country of ours, sympathetic always toward the under dog, fearless in his criticism of systems which crush the poor, eloquent in his righteous wrath.

He holds that millions of people nowadays "live and die without tasting anything worth while. The average individual today is really tortured; he is so numerous, so meaningless, so wholly confused and defeated." And he goes on to say, in a chapter on our banks and corporations, that "twenty years ago laborers dreamed of a halycon machine age, with six or seven hours' work a day. Yet today, with machinery at almost the perfection point, they are beggars, receivers of charity, while 40,000 millionaires bestride the land."

Mr. Dreiser hurls some invectives at the churches, and shows how even these institutions employ press agents; and he shows how offshoots of the churches, like the Lord's Day Alliance and the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Morals work at all times in the lobbies at Washington. He paints a sorry picture of these enterprises. One could only wish that in his fervor, Mr. Dreiser could have remained a little more calm.

His wrath overwhelms him, when he is given to the use of such childish words as "asinine." They hurt, rather than help, his argument, as the over-forensic lawyer fails to sway a jury when his voice grows too loud.

Yet, Mr. Dreiser is always interesting, even when he is not persuasive. His chapter on crime and the reasons for its existence, with individual cases which he has studied, makes one disheartened. Our prisons, he holds, turn out unsalable material. "At Auburn, instead of making only license plates as is now the case, the men might be kept busy by also being allowed to make all street and highway signs and so possibly arrive at that feeling of efficiency which comes with activity. But, no, this is not permitted. Yet I think that all prison industries should be put on a paying basis. Their products should be allowed to enter the open market, and the state should be forced to pay the union wage, or nearly so.

* * *

The railroads do not fare well at Mr. Dreiser's hands. It costs more to ride from New York to Pittsburgh, for instance, than it would to stop over night at any first-class hotel in either city. We pay 10 cents for a loaf of bread, while hundreds of millions of bushels of wheat lie stored and unsalable. No one can get around these obvious facts.

Toward the end of this volume, Mr. Dreiser makes it clear that America is not the only tragic country. Europe has its Rothschilds and Cortlandts and the Royal Dutch Shell. But he wishes to know if any of the great financiers of our land have yet offered one creative idea for the alleviation of any of the economic ills of America today.

For his own part, he suggests a new statecraft, a reconstruction of our economic life in order to restore the balance of power. He hopes for a day when Aristotle's beautiful dream will come true; a state controlled by and for all and giving equitable honor and recognition, but not wealth, to those most deserving it. He hopes that the ancient philospher's plan may one day be read weekly in our schools.

Very little new light has been thrown on a great English novelist by the publication of "My Arnold Bennett," written by Marguerite, his wife. Dutton issues the book.

Mrs. Bennett is a Frenchwoman, much younger than her husband, who did not marry until he was 40. They lived, according to her, in peace and accord for several years; then there came—for her—a tragic separation. They were never divorced. And when Bennett was dying, she hoped for some message from him. He sent none, and it had been nominated in the bond that she should never enter his house unless he sent for her. Therefore she did not see him at the end; in fact, she had not seen him for many years before his death.

They lived both in France and in England. In the latter country they had a charming old house in which, during the war, many officers were billeted. The description of this period of their life has a certain charm and glamour; and Mrs. Bennett tells how meticulously her husband wrote his novels. "The Old Wives' Tale" was finished within eight months, and each word of the manuscript was printed out with Bennett's pen, since he had promised his wife that he would follow this chirography, and present her with the completed work.

But he dedicated no books to her, since he did not believe that husbands should thus publicly compliment their wives.

We learn that Bennett was self-conscious in the extreme. To hide this quality in him he would act some sort of part and, with his intimates play the fool or be somewhat hard and brutal, domineering, or almost submit to cowardice. Yet Mrs. Bennett shows the lovable side of the man. She reveres his memory, and at the end she reprints a poem from Punch, published at the time of his death, which sums up, in verse, the man and his work far better than this tedious little gift of a loving wife's prose.

Lynn Boxer Seized After Victory 'Spree'

BANKS CUT OFF CHICAGO CASH

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP)—While legislators wrangled today over a plan to untangle Chicago's tax snarl, the city's bankers again refused to purchase anticipation warrants.

Thousands of teachers faced the dreary prospect of continuing to receive scrip in lieu of currency. Difficulty in disposing of the scrip has caused some teachers, hard pressed for cash, to take discounts as large as 20 cents on the dollar, it is said.

The city, until recently, has been able to dispose of its warrants.

MA MIDGET---BABY ISN'T

42-Pound Woman's Child Is Normal

Detroit, Jan. 19 (US)—Mrs. Mabel M. Bryan, 20, a midget, only 42 inches in height and weighing less than 44 pounds, today took her baby daughter home from St. Mary's hospital.

Doctors said she was the smallest woman ever to become a mother.

Baby Bryan was born Jan. 4, and weighed 6 pounds and three ounces at birth, according to Dr. W. L. Hackett. The infant was normal in every way.

The midget mother feared her child would be a midget, too. She was overjoyed when nurses told her that the tot would be just like other little girls.

The father is James Bryan, who stands five feet, eight inches in height and weighs about 160 pounds.

INVITATIONS TO THE ROSE MOVIUS-POTTER PALMER wedding were received yesterday, reading: Mrs. A. L. West Movius requests the pleasure of your company at the marriage reception of HER daughter at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall of Chestnut Hill, on Saturday, February 6, at one o'clock. The ceremony will be performed at the First Unitarian Church of Chestnut Hill at high noon, to which will be invited only the families and intimate friends.

We hear that the maidens who will precede Miss Movius up the aisle are Miss Dorothy West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Saltonstall West, cousin of the bride, and Miss Pauline Palmer, sister of the bridegroom, as maids of honor, Mrs. Oakley Thorne Lewis (Berthe Palmer), who was married at Bar Harbor this summer, as matron of honor, and attending her as bridesmaids will be Miss Agnes Boardman, Miss Laetitia Orlandini, Miss Margaret Leland and Miss Barbara Bremer. They will be attired in chiffon and velvet gowns with matching muffs. The ushers will be brothers of the bridal couple, Hallam L. Movius, Jr., George West Movius, Mr. Gordon Potter and Oakley Thorne Lewis.

Families Averse to Publicity

THESE ARE THE FIRST DETAILS WHICH HAVE BEEN given out about this interesting event, as both families are averse to publicity. We had the most amusing telephone conversation with young Potter Palmer the other evening when he jokingly told us that Mrs. Movius wanted everything kept VERY secret and later we chatted with Mrs. Movius and she confided to us that Mr. Palmer simply wouldn't allow her to give out any details. We will NEVER tell which one gave us the story.

Belle of Debs

MISS MOVIUS, WHO WAS one of the most beautiful belles of her presentation season, 1929-30, is a descendant of Richard Saltonstall, one of the first settlers in New England, who derived the family name from the salt mills in England, which was the occupation of his ancestors. Mr. Palmer's forebears hail from the wild and wooly West and amassed a famous American fortune out of viands and other edibles. Society with a capital S and people with a capital P.

Engaged

WE WERE INTERESTED TO hear of the engagement of Virginia Taylor and Philip Wrenn, Jr. Miss Taylor has always been an independent type of girl, going to business every day and sticking to it. We hear only very nice things about her fiance. You will remember it was his sister as Miss Wrenn who married the young Socialist, Garland, who refused to accept his inheritance of a million dollars. We hear that the million has disappeared in devious ways and that he is not quite so much the strong-headed altruist that he was ten years ago. His wife divorced him and has since remarried.

MARGARET AYER BARNES WILL LECTURE BEFORE JUNIOR LEAGUE

Tea to Follow Talk Feb. 1 by Authoress

Boston—or rather the Junior League—is to entertain one of our leading authoresses when Margaret Ayer Barnes comes to town on the first of next month. Mrs. Barnes, the author of the Nobel prize novel, "Years of Grace," and a more recent book, "Westward Passage," will lecture on the afternoon of Monday, Feb. 1.

She will take as her subject "Behind the Typewriter," in which she will tell of some of the many problems which confront a simple and domestic member of the social world when she suddenly becomes one of her country's most popular and successful writers. We are so hoping that the delightfully humorous and sympathetic touches that make her books so really human and beloved by us, her adoring public, will be presented anew in her talk, so that the disappointment felt keenly in the actual meeting of so many authors will not have to be gone through this time.

Mrs. Barnes makes her home in Chicago but spends the summer, every year, in our own state, taking a house during that season in Mattapoisett on Buzzards Bay. She has lectured a great deal this winter throughout the West, but this will be her first visit to Boston in that capacity.

The lecture will be open to the public and afterward tea will be served, allowing for a more informal atmosphere and conversation with Mrs. Barnes. Tickets are now available and are on sale at Herricks, the Junior League and at Filene's.

The committee of the Charity Poverty Ball to be held on Tuesday, Feb. 9, at the Hotel Somerset, wishes to correct the mistake made in the omission of Miss Mary Vance's name as a member of the girls' committee. The invitations had been engraved before this was discovered so that it could not be rectified. By the way, those invitations will be out, it is said, tomorrow or anyway, Thursday.

Italian Junior League Plan for Ball Feb. 4

The Italian Junior League of Boston held its monthly meeting last night at its headquarters, the Women's Republican Club, Beacon st. Plans were formulated for their 11th annual charity ball to be held Feb. 4.

MATRONS READY TO HELP VINCENT CLUB

MRS. CABOT. MRS. WETMORE MRS. BOHLEN

A TRIO OF BOSTON'S loveliest young matrons—Mrs. Paul C. Cabot of Needham, the former Virginia Converse, Mrs. William Wetmore, the fascinating foreigner, and Mrs. Henry M. Bohlen (Margeret Curtis) of Marlborough st. caught by the camera at the Vincent Club try-outs. All members of the club are busy working on plans for the show.

Surprise Party for Couple

A surprise party was given for Mr and Mrs. Roy Hartsorn of 34 Eleanor rd., South Weymouth, on their 20th wedding anniversary. The guests consisted principally of members of the 192 Wessagusset Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, of which Mrs. Hartsorn is the worthy matron-elect.

Before her marriage Mrs. Hartsorn was Lydia C. Waters, of Norfolk, Virginia, where the wedding took place. Mr. Hartsorn is prominent in Masonic circles and the Mt. Wollaston Royal Arch Chapter. They have three children, Margaret, 24, H. Roy, 20, and George F., 22.

At the party on Saturday they were presented with many silver gifts, besides flowers and plants.

Skirt Lengths to Be Longer

New York, Jan. 19 (U8)—High waist lines, whose inspiration comes from the dresses of the early American Colonial period, will predominate in Milady's dress fashions for spring, it was indicated last night, when the promenade of the Garment Retailers of America was held in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The 110 creations displayed were of lively colors, rich fabrics and slightly longer than the current mode. Sports skirts were some 10 to 12 inches from the floor; formal gowns reached to the ankles.

Spring trends disclosed velvets for evening wraps trimmed with ermine; cottons for sports wear, with printed voiles and organdies for formal wear. Bridal gowns were of satin and lace.

"THE BAND WAGON" STRIKES NEW NOTE IN REVUE HITS

Girl About Town

By ALYCE SIEMENS

In Greece

And royally decked in green,
A thought besets me—a curious one
For a noonday so serene.

Strange, 'mid a scene that breeds a hope
Of the truth of eternity—
Strange, that upon this flower-starred slope
This conviction obsesses me—

That upon this spot, on one other day,
His deep eyes frightened-wide,
And his chest slow-heaving as he lay—
An old god moaned and died.

Lifted From Life

He's a famous Bostonian and a famous artist, mostly because he has always been so determined to become a famous artist . . . He worked his way through art school with grim singleness of purpose . . . Taking any job . . . Scrubbing floors, washing dishes . . . And always snatching every possible chance to sketch, with pad and paper, any object which could serve as a model . . . One time he secured an uncanny job . . . But it was a job, so he took it . . . A wealthy Hub family had in the house an aged relative whose mind was gone . . . Someone had to stay in his room all night, lest he wreak some violence . . . The young artist was hired to remain with him from 10 p. m. to 7 a. m. nightly . . . "You must keep him from screaming or violence," were his instructions, "and not under any circumstances is the family to be awakened till 7 a. m. . . Understand? Not under any circumstances!" . . . At 3 a. m. one night the old man died . . . Every penny was precious to the young artist . . . He decided not to wake the family lest they with-hold the money due him on the grounds that he had disobeyed orders . . . So he propped up the dead man with pillows, and from 3 to 7 a. m. he drew sketches of his dead face from all angles . . . He was determined to become a great artist . . . And lost no opportunity to ply his pencil!

About Adam's Sons

Though musician Sammy Izea has opened a theater, he wasn't in the red when seen on Tremont st. . . . Rather in the blue—the blue being in his glamorously striped shirt, on the collar of which the stripes ran one way, on the rest of which the stripes ran another . . . Would Jake Wirth like to see United Founders at 75! . . . Fred Barachi is a chef who doesn't fear that too many customers will spoil the broth, anyway, as he gladly permits patrons to wander at will about the kitchen of his Corning st. Tavern, selecting what they desire to eat . . . Macy's Joe Oppenheim ready to participate in a contest with anyone in the matter of making up people for theatrical appearances . . . Some lads give the girls the run-around, but Urban Cloran gave a local miss something different—the turnaround—when his auto, containing himself and herself, whirled around four or five times on the Weymouth bridge last week . . .

Things To Make a Note Of

Irwin Cooper, WNAC announcer, is left-handed as regards his ears . . He holds his hand to his LEFT ear while announcing at the Sheraton Room at the Statler—the only one we know who isn't a right-hand-to-ear announcer . . . Barone's drug-store on Hanover st., licensed to sell medicinal liquor, keeps a German shepherd dog in the place all night . . Nocturnal pedestrians get quite a start as they pass the place, for the animal, hearing footsteps on the sidewalk, bounces against the glass door (which is protected from the inside by an iron network) as if shot from a catapult, loudly barking . . . The North Shore's handsomest golfer, Swampscott's Ray Nies, has sentenced himself to 30 days at Palm Beach . . . Have you ever noticed the delightful quaintness of the old Forbes Mansion on Beacon st. . . . It's generally conceded the quaintest place in town . . .

Still Chattering

A Parisian correspondent writes: "Red and white French wine now costs ten cents a quart in Paris—and it's of standard quality, too." . . . Don't miss the boat! . . . It's pleasant to note the genuine delight with which "The Stars of Yesterday" at the "Met" perform . . . Incidentally, these old-time actors can hardly bring themselves to leave the theatre till the day's last show is over—they revel that much in the backstage atmosphere which is meat and drink to them . . . The manager of the "Met," Henry Taylor, sat in a box which is part of the stage setting, we noticed at one of last Saturday's shows . . . To C. A. L.: The saxophone-player at the Orpheum, about whom you asked, spends his spare time repairing his Packard and entertaining his wife, lovely Mrs. Gregg Larkin. Musicians are determined to work these days! . . .

Gorgeous Entertainment Is Verdict of Audience at Colonial Premiere

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

With the permission of the copyright owners—or was it without—the festive tunes of "The Band Wagon," which have clogged your radio for more than a year, were poured out in natural fashion at the Colonial last evening. It was melody direct, without aid and endorsement from NBC, CBC, or even the Yankee Network. Most of it may have been a little stale to the ethereal ear but to the rank outsider it was good—even excellent. "The Band Wagon," you may be told, is revue in the newer manner and is happily free from the cut and dried stuff generally uprooted when the masters of revue get down to hard labor on their own problems.

* * *

Its novelty, if not its exquisite excellence, may be offered as suitable explanation for its belated arrival on Boylston st. For 12 months the expressive radio has pumped most of its better tunes into your ears. But there was nothing personal in the radio, while the show at the Colonial was impressively so. If the melodies were familiar you may be certain that new tones and new colors were given to them by the intimate touch of Fred Astaire, his sister, Adele, Frank Morgan and Helen Broderick. They quickly organized themselves into a quartette of notables in the interest of better entertainment on easy terms. While there was no overpowering sense of rhythm in the succeeding sketches, or any attempt at continuity, the fun rolled along relentlessly. There was art, of course, but you could take it or leave it; also there was the revolving stage which lacked just enough of lubrication to permit the show to run its merry course in the time strictly prescribed in Max Gordon's schedule.

Adele Astaire

* * *

These, however, were minor defects. Unless you considered the evening in the matter of split seconds all was well and exceedingly propitious. Not since "The First Little Show" has any revue brought so much good entertainment to the local stage. By this we do not mean novelty, nor extravagance, though there was an ample reserve supply of each to keep things at fever pitch. Substantial entertainment, rather than novelty, was set up; and in this you must bear in mind the now famous tunes which have floated on air (with the permission of the copyright owners) for quite a spell. And to these qualifications must be added the drol'eric of Helen Broderick, the suav recommendations of Frank Morgan, and the spirited dancing of the nimble Astaires.

* * *

Perhaps it was the total lack of continuity that caught your eye and held you to strict attention. Except for the massiveness of the revolving stage and the adroit manipulation of it, there was nothing to stagger the imagination in scenic grandeur. The costuming was ample but not awesome. But the sketches, the little tricks of entertainment, the adept utilization of assorted talents—these were the highlights. And before the night's work was done they became the bright spots of a gorgeous entertainment. The musical numbers by Arthur Schwartz just naturally tickled every ear—but, of course, they were familiar. The sketches were new, at least to those who had not tested their qualities in the season's run in Manhattan, and the high speed of the show stirred friendly interest in its constant variations from this to that—and then to something else quite different. There was no set formula to this revue; or, rather, the accepted formula for revue was discarded for something better.

* * *

"The Band Wagon" strikes a new note in revue. It can boast of no nudities with which to catch the eye of night prowlers on the Rialto; its humors are clean enough to become almost a matter of paternal approval in virtuous homes. With nothing else to recommend it, that makes "The Band Wagon", as a musical revue, a subject for friendly discussion.

Jean Lee Tops Howard Cast

A Columbia traveling burlesque show that shows originality holds the stage at the Old Howard all this week. The company is known as the "Step Lively Girls." Little Jean Lee delights with her clever dancing steps. Evelyn Murray keeps things moving at a speedy pace. Stella Williams fills the role of prima donna. Hazel Bernard pleases with her songs. Harry Bentley supplies merriment. Charley Wesson, too, is right to the front with the comedy material.

In addition to the burlesque, the management provides a bill of vaudeville excellence, together with talking pictures. The Three White Flashes on rollers have a thrilling act. The Rubio Sisters have an equilibristic act and the Tan Arakis Japs have an Oriental act.

Waldron's Casino

$750.00 Cash Offered For Name of Movie Actress

Reward Will Be Paid Everyone Who Submits Most Suitable Name

From Hollywood comes an extraordinary announcement. A movie actress is in need of a name, and $750.00 in cash will be paid for the best suggestion. You can give her yours, or any other name you think of, it may mean $750.00 to you.

This movie actress, whom you have probably seen on the screen of your favorite motion picture theatre, is the beautiful Helen Mann. Like most of the stars, she prefers to use a name other than her own, and in order to help her obtain it, $750.00 in cash is offered to anyone who is quick in sending in the name selected. Miss Mann's publicity director says, "Most any name may win." It may be your very own, a name of a friend or relative, or a coined name made up by you. Readers of this announcement are urged to send their suggestions for a name at once, because $250.00 extra will be given the winner if name is mailed and postmarked before January 24, 1932. Just make it easy to pronounce and easy to remember. But send it right away, or you may be late for the promptness prize.

All entries must be sent to the Publicity Director's office, E. A. Williams, Studio AA-398, 1023 N. Sycamore Ave., Hollywood, California. Only one suggestion for a name should be submitted by each contestant. Everyone is invited to submit a name, and in case of ties, duplicate awards will be given. Officials say that any name may win the $750.00, even if submitted on a post card or scrap of paper. If you can use $750.00, here is an opportunity to get it. Send your suggestion at once—

'Explorers of the World' Packs Thrills Aplenty on Tremont Screen

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"Explorers of the World" has more thrills to the reel than most Hollywood films have to the full length. This splendid narrative of adventure with gun and camera evoked applause from the packed house which greeted its opening at the Tremont, yesterday afternoon. It has more real exciting matter to the square inch than one can get out of a stack of talkies of the common run. It deeply interested its audience, and at times held them taut in the suspense of stirring sequences.

The big picture, in reality a composite of the experiences of six famous explorers and therefore eligible to be called a six-in-one offering, is preluded by an exceptionally entertaining "short." Then are introduced two of the men whose feats are recorded on [illegible]. Harold Noice and Harold McCracken, a couple of Harolds their auditors will not soon forget. Each, in a short talk across the footlights, gives the cue to what is to follow; each is deft with anecdote so the appetite is keen for the adventure feast. It is Noice who assembled the film, and who suggested the method of weaving them together. This is cleverly done; the explorers are gathered at banquet table, with Noice as master of ceremonies. One after another they are introduced; each instructively makes use of the map, and then continues the explanatory matter through his portion of the film.

Harold Noice

This method, especially in its following the sight of Noice and McCracken on stage, gives an intimate touch to the show, making the onlooker feel the sincerity and authenticity of the whole, in very striking manner. As a matter of fact, there is a fine vigor of expert showmanship in the manner of presenting the best assortment of moving pictures of this kind that we have ever seen.

McCracken is the first; his lens swings into Arctic regions, vividly bringing sea and land animals to the screen. Thereafter, lands of palm and pine are covered by the others, then the Antarctic, and finally the Amazon jungle country. Highlights there [illegible] in abundance—ships biting their way through crunching ice, the battles of tooth and claw surpassing anything one will see in synthetic studio movies; natives in primitive life in a dozen far-flung lands; elephants, and hippos, and rhinos, and lions — an amazing panorama to hold the attention and often to raise the goose-flesh.

In addition to Noice and McCracken there are other names, household words in the narrative of man's explorations—James L. Clark, Gene Lamb, authority on Thibet; Laurence M. Gould, and Lieut.-Comdr. J. R. Stenhouse. They all show up as redblooded men, men who can meet peril and who can talk intelligently about their travels.

"Explorers of the World" is simon-pure adventure, an epic picture of its type. And it packs, in some of its wild animal sequences, some of the punchiest punches you will want to sit through.

INDOMITABLE

Greta Garbo, illustrious toiler in "Mata Hari," now showing at Loew's Orpheum.

New Star Hit at Fine Arts

"Delphine," French film with song, is a delightful piece, and should please Fine Arts patrons. For the general fan its chief glory is its disclosure of the charm and ability of Alice Cocea, a lady whom we have not hitherto seen. She is clever and possessed of distinctive personality; so that probably Hollywood in time will make an effort to lure her to this side of the big pond.

Mam'selle Cocea is the outstanding performer, but she finds good support in Clara Tambour and Henry Garat. H. S.

Snappy Bill for Scollay Patrons

By HARRIS MORGAN

The Harlem Hot Shots, colored entertainers on this week's bill at the Scollay, provide a whirl of excellent entertainment. They stage an hour and a half of sparkling comedy, "hot" dancing, singing and orchestral numbers that won the hearty approval of a capacity audience. Manager E. A. Vinson again proved his showmanship by use of special sets and lighting effects.

A special number, "Lonesome Road," a beautiful spiritual, had all the realism of cotton bales in front of a moonlit cabin in the Mississippi river bottoms.

Viola McCoy and "Doc" Strain give a very funny picture of a colored couple that are tossing about on a stormy matrimonial sea. Eddie Deas presents a trio of splendid songs, in addition to capable work at the trap drums, when his orchestra was directed by Al Brantley.

Billy Higgins and Joe Burt give a comedy dialogue called "Two Lucky Sambos." Slappy Wallace, a dance sensation, with hot rhythm, Avon Long of Hallelujah fame, Francis Smith, blues singer, and Georgia Kelly, spiritual singer, were among outstanding performers to give specialty song or dance numbers.

Hot feet are exhibited by Hazel Lee and the four Notches and by a group of girls that appear in several numbers.

Exeter Theater

Barbara Kent, in Grief Street," and Bill Boyd, in "Suicide Fleet," are the attractions for today and tomorrow at the Exeter. The last half of the week John Barrymore will be seen in "The Mad Genius." Linda Watkins and John Boles in "Good Sport" will also be shown.

DELIBERATE DIRT WILL BOOMERANG ON ITS AUTHORS

By GILBERT SELDES

A COLUMNIST WHO, FOR ONCE, shall be nameless, suggested the other day that I was one of the deluded saps who bought dirty books. He was in error. I am one of the saps who neither buy them nor, except in rare instances, take pleasure in reading them. I am a professional writer with some respect for the art of writing, and I find that pornographers, like other propagandists, usually write foully; like propagandists, they are so mistakenly sure their subject is of interest, that they think any slops of writing will do. As I read only what I want to read, I do not often read them; and as I buy only what I am compelled to buy, I do not buy them.

GILBERT SELDES

Thrusting Dirt

This does not, however, keep my shelves in any state of virgin purity. Some buy smut, and some have smut thrust upon them. No law exists to prevent publishers from sending books for review, and recently I have received a number from publishers who have not yet gained great reputations which have seemed to me too silly to be mentioned in print. The latest disagreeable book I have received is a life of an ex-President of the United States; to avoid any misconceptions I add that it is not Harry Daugherty's book on Harding, which I have not yet seen. It is about Harding; it retells the stories told in "The President's Daughter" and in "The Strange Death of President Harding"; and it retells them in such a way as to make those two remarkable books seem models of reticence and propriety.

Deliberate Offense

I do not think I have ever read a book so determined to give offense as this one does, and what offends is not the truth, but the imagination of the author. Obviously the only point in telling stories which belittle a President is to prevent the creation of a myth about him; but the author of such an attempt ought to be peculiarly scrupulous; he ought to be absolutely certain that every word he writes is accurate, that every fact can be ascertained and every assertion proved. If you are going to be an iconoclast, you must take care not to be caught worshipping idols yourself.

A Mean Worship

The author of this book worships a strange and ugly idol; his own idea of the vulgar American. The ritual of his adoration consists largely of spitting on the image, but he is its slave none the less. He describes to us a love affair between a pompous, elderly, unhappily-married statesman and a young and ardent girl; he not only accepts the mixture of sentimentality and crudeness which marked the girl's own account of the affair; he embroiders it with detailed accounts of conversations and even describes motives and emotions to which no outsider can be a party. Emotions and actions are dirtied over with dirty words, and this is offered as literal truth, as the inner truth, and the last truth. One suspects in the end that the author's imagination has been betraying him; it was not biography he was writing—but something nearer home. Except in algebraic symbols, one writes too often of the character one knows best; even in what purports to be biography, even in what offers itself as cold, critical, analytical biography of a dead President.

Mrs. Arnold Bennett

The widow of Arnold Bennett has written a pathetic little book about the man she adored and from whom, about ten years before his death, she was parted. Marguerite Bennett was a Frenchwoman and impressed an English writer, who had gone to Paris to write, with her common sense and her ability to be prompt on all occasions. He had once announced that he would marry at forty, and he married her at forty. And plunged at once into his finest work, "The Old Wives Tale." One almost suspects that he married her because she could tell him many things about the French, and could learn from her friends what Paris was like in the War of 1870.

She seems hardly to have known that he treated her badly. He blamed her for his own mistakes and he hardly ever took her with him when he went to meet friends; their only appearance together was at the theater. He consulted her convenience not at all and forced her to study his whims. And she seems to have been always happy with him. Perhaps she was merely the ideal wife of the ideal literary man.

Bad Desdemona

One of my favorite women used to protest against performances of Othello because she thought Desdemona was a fool, a clinging vine, and a bad example to set before modern women. The modernists would have a bad time with Mrs. Bennett if they thought her story worth discussing. It would strike them as a preposterous sacrifice of one human being's happiness to gratify the whims of another. Somehow that never occurred to the victim. Her only unhappiness came when the opportunity to sacrifice herself was taken away from her.

Every Day

Diaries and calendars are marked down, a little, by this time, but there is no occasion to mark down "A Book of Days," which, in spite of a silly title page, is an excellent collection of aphorisms, quotations, recipes, and other short bits of prose and verse, a sentiment to a day, and some of the sentiments are pretty sharp. It is put together by Christopher Morley, whose tastes are various, and although it is too well made and imposing to use for scratch notes and appointments with Jack or Lilian, it gains something over mere scrapbooks by the suggestion it automatically makes that thinking over one pleasant sentiment or one profound idea each day will do little harm.

But near the beginning is a quotation (one of Saintsbury's favorites and a model of prose) which ought to frighten most of us. Here is "A Book for Days" which tells the truth about most of our days, in accordance with the dignity of Ben Jonson:

"What a deal of cold business doth a man misspend the better part of life in! In scattering compliments, tendering visits, gathering and venting news, following feasts and plays, making a little Winter-love in a dark corner."

It would appear that the inns of Shakespeare's times, and the inhabitants thereof, were not so different from the speakeasies of our own.

Mary Pickford to Star in "Happy Ending" Film

Los Angeles, Jan. 19—There will be no more "Kiki" or out of character parts for Mary Pickford. One, she has decided, is enough. She will make a picture, while Douglas Fairbanks is sojourning in foreign parts to get material for another travelogue, and it's to be a typical Pickford comedy drama.

Louella O. Parsons

Frances Marion, who probably understands Mary and what she can do on the screen better than anyone else, has written a screen play called "Happy Ending" for Mary.

"Happy Ending" will go into production in the late spring. Douglas Fairbanks will be on his way in about a month. This time he wants to film the Solomon Islands and other remote places for another travelogue. Doug did so well with his first "Around the World" it behooves him to get busy before some other adventurous soul steals his thunder.

Seen and Heard

That long talked of vaudeville contract of Jackie Cooper was signed yesterday. Jackie is to get $7000 a week for four weeks. He opens in Philadelphia, January 29. Harry Weber put over the deal. Estelle Taylor was moved yesterday to the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. She was just about to sign a contract to play one of the important roles in "Night Club" at Universal when her physician ordered her put into a plaster jacket. She will be unable to make a picture for at least six weeks.

Stole the Show

Suddenly one fine day Paramount awoke to the fact that Miriam Hopkins was starring material. Important favorites have been signed and little Hopkins has played second fiddle, but on several occasions she stole the show. In "Dr. Jekill and Mr. Hyde" her characterization of the cockney girl was a classic. Now she will make a talkie resurrection of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife."

Stage Who's Who

Many years ago a youngster named Owen Martin got the part of the boy, Billy, in the "Sherlock Holmes" production that lifted William Gillette to the peak of his popularity. That same Owen Martin is now with Thomas Mitchell in the rollicking comedy "Cloudy With Showers," at the Hollis. He is some 20 years older, but he still loves to hear the crowd "out front" have a scream or two every minute.

Vincent Lopez Coming to Met

Vincent Lopez, an outstanding jazz maestro, will appear in person at the Metropolitan, for one week, beginning Friday next. This will be the only personal engagement played in Boston this season by the brilliant young exponent of modern symphonic rhythm, who will head his Hotel St Regis Orchestra.

During his engagement here, Lopez will offer a repertoire of symphonic jazz novelties and musical creations. Included in his program will be original conceptions as "Revere Beach," a musical fantasy typifying that popular resort; "Steel" (or "The Building of the Empire State Building"), a dynamic allegory depicting rythmically America's foremost industry.

Alma Baker and Al Luttringer are the featured players of the Somerville Players in "Camille" at the Somerville Theater. Miss Baker was one of the most popular leading women that the theater ever had. Mr. Luttringer was easy in manner, has a good voice, and met the many requirements of the exacting role admirably.

Gloria Swanson Film at Orpheum on Friday

Gloria Swanson's "Tonight or Never" is the January festival offering coming to Loew's Orpheum Friday. Buster Shaver presents Olive Brasnow and her Tiny Town Revue, "The Little Parade," as the headline attraction of the vaudeville bill. Earl La Vere with Mildred Byram in "Did You Hear About the ???," are among the others billed to appear.

Mickey Alpert, Boston's popular night club and broadcasting artist, assisted by Carl Moore and Cliff O'Rourke, are billed as an extra added attraction.

FIGHT AGAINST TWO-THIRDS RULE GROWS

San Francisco, Jan. 18—Sentiment throughout the Democratic party in California is strongly for the abrogation of the two-thirds rule for nomination of presidential candidates

Frank J. Hennessy, former secretary of the Democratic state central committee, said today

"Champ Clark in 1912 was defeated although holding a majority vote. He was the absolute choice of a clear majority of the Baltimore convention

ARBITRARY, UNDEMOCRATIC

"The two-thirds rule is an undemocratic rule. It is an arbitrary rule and has no place in our party. I favor a return to real Democratic principles and majority rule."

"The two-thirds rule sometimes enables frustrated candidates, by clubbing together, to put over an inferior man," said Robert Fitzgerald, Oakland member of the executive board of the state committee.

"In my opinion it would be a good plan to eliminate this rule and permit a majority vote to govern."

John J. McDonald, also a member of the state central committee, was even more emphatic in his opinion

MAJORITY RULE

"I am very much in favor of abolishing the two-thirds rule," he declared. "A majority should decide the nominee. This plan would result in harmony and should be of real assistance to the party."

Louis J. Francoco, prominent in Democratic state politics, added his support to the campaign

MAYOR ATTACKS 2-THIRDS RULE

The two-thirds rule governing the voice of Democratic conventions is undemocratic and should be abolished in favor of the majority rule, Mayor Curley declared in a statement today

Mayor Curley stated that he will do all in his power to have the two-thirds rule dropped. He said

"This rule was adopted in the convention of 1832, at the same time the unit rule was adopted. Now the unit rule recognizes the principle of majority and the two-thirds rule rejects it.

"At the time of the convention referred to, the two-thirds rule was strenuously objected to for the simple reason that it was inconsistent with the fundamental principles upon which our government is founded, which provided that the rule of the majority shall prevail and because it might be found to be impossible to unite the voices of so large a proportion in favor of any one individual."

THIS IS LIFE

PHILOLOGY GOOD MEDIUM FOR STUDYING TREND OF THE TIMES

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

ROBERT E. ROGERS

ONE OF THE MOST USEFUL but most neglected ways of discovering the direction of the tendencies of an age or a civilization in respects to its notions and points of view, is the observation of words. When studied as a science in universities it has the rather repellant name of philology, but that need not really deter us from being interested in words and their ways.

One of the most forthright and controversial of modern philosophies came into being because its sponsor started as a philologist, and a classical philologist at that. His name was Friedrich Nietzsche. He was studying Greek and Latin literature at the University of Basle. He noticed that words seemed to change their meanings from age to age and from civilization to civilization.

"Virtue," for instance. It came from the Latin word "virtus," meaning the qualities of a man as opposed to those of a woman; it meant the traditionally masculine qualities, strength, masculinity, power, vim, vigor and vitality. The Renaissance word "vertu" had the same meaning. A "virtuoso" ought really to be a man filled with exceptional strength, power, creative ability, genius. Nowadays, we restrict the word almost entirely to exceptional players of musical instruments and thereby weaken the force of the word.

But the modern word "virtue," Nietzsche considered, had lost nearly all the qualities of the old word "virtus." It was feminine instead of masculine, passive instead of active, and restricted by usage to one out of many possible virtues, instead of expressing them all.

What, asked Nietzsche, had happened to the word? He came to the conclusion that under Christianity the church had taken the word away from men and given it to women and so weakened it. He looked at the words "good" and "evil." He came to the conclusions that those words had different connotations today from those they had 2000 years ago.

Out of his studies he developed the idea that in every civilization the words "good" and "evil" are shaped by the ruling class for their own purposes. In the pagan times the master class ruled and used "good" and "evil" as best suited them. Today the Christian democracy rules, uses words in its own way. And so our good is what the ancients meant by evil; our evil is what they praised as good. And on that philological basis Nietzsche erected his philosophy of the anti-democratic, anti-Christian, anti-socialist superman.

Word "Indifferent" Good Example

I thought of that the other day when I ran across a little passage by John Locke, the 17th-18th century philosopher, who shaped the concepts that resulted in the Declaration of Independence. He spoke of "an indifferent judge who will determine all differences according to the established law." His use of the word "indifferent" implied praise. An "indifferent" judge was an impartial judge, an incorruptible judge, a just judge. Today an "indifferent" judge would mean one who didn't care a hoot about the merits or the law of a case; a careless, slack, lazy, torpid jurist.

That made me think of another word with the same meaning, that has lost its meaning in a similar way. Every teacher of English knows that the word "disinterested" is on the toboggan. It cannot possibly be saved. Not merely do 99 out of 100 school and college boys and girls use it incorrectly, but probably nine out of ten newspapers and advertising writers and other people whose occupation is words.

In spite of all the efforts of teachers and correct writers, the word "disinterested" now means for the majority exactly what "indifferent" now means; uninterested, not caring a hang about, etc.

The correct meaning of "disinterested" is exactly like the original correct meaning of "indifferent"; exact impartiality, having nothing to gain or lose, having no "interest," financial or other advantage in one side or the other. The reader who thinks it means "indifferent" or "uninterested" makes nonsense out of it.

"Disinterested" is rapidly going the way of "indifferent" and will soon be lost to our vocabulary. Which means that our language is becoming less and less exact, more and more merely a series of vulgar and ignorant approximations.

Still more interesting is the psychological meaning of the decay of these two words. They both involve the exact idea of absolute intellectual impartiality, balance, equality, fairness for its own sake with nothing to be gained by it. Obviously, what has happened to those words shows that the man in the street is incapable of grasping that conception. He cannot think and decide like that, and so he can't believe that anyone else can. The very word carries no conviction to his mind.

Impartiality Looked on as Folly

He thinks, as a matter of course, that every sensible man obviously looks at every issue from the angle which will profit him.

The other conception is just a nutty idea that won't work. Consequently, the impartial observer is either plainly a fool, or just hasn't energy and sprawl enough to come to a decision. He is slack, lazy, weak-minded.

Hence "indifferent" comes to mean bored, not-caring, and "disinterested" comes to mean uninterested, passive, slack, and two excellent and exact words are lost to the language.

Does this not mean that the idea behind the words no longer has much meaning for the man in the street? We have little respect or understanding for the judicial quality of mind, the utterly impartial, which the judge and the scientist must possess. The recurrent clamor for popular election of judges is a practical sign of that lack of understanding. We can understand and admire partisans, people who will fight for an idea or a profit or an advantage, but all the teaching of science and law has, if anything, lessened the understanding of the principle on which law and science must be based.

Words are important. They can give us away, if we do not look out. They are only the clothing of ideas and philosophies. By our words—and the misuse of them—are we known!

Gov. Ely Seeking Strongest Man for Bench

GIRL WITNESS COLLAPSES IN FEAR

Elizabeth Franklin, Guarded After Gang Killing, Feels She Is Marked for Death

Miss Elizabeth Franklin, girl witness in the Gustin-Walsh gang murder case, who has been under police guard for a week, has suffered a complete breakdown induced by the fear that she is marked for death.

The Boston Evening American learned today that her condition is such that she must be removed from the Copley-Plaza Hotel, where she is under guard of Policewomen McAuliffe and Callahan.

No actual threats or attempts to intimidate her have been made so far as police could learn, but she lives in constant fear of her life and is sleeping but little.

She collapsed at the lower court hearing at which Joe Lombardi, Salvatore Consemi and Franco Cucchiara were held for the slayings.

She is a stenographer in the office of Julius Wolfson in Hanover st., where Frankie Gustin died. Her home is in Rockland st., Roxbury. Police will keep secret the place to which she is moved.

Man Alleged to Have Posed as Officer

Charged with having obtained $1100 in a badger game while posing as a police officer, John Brent, alias Brent, who was released yesterday from jail at Hartford, Ct., where he was sentenced to a 60-day term for a similar offence, was returned to Boston last night.

It is alleged that several months ago Brent in company with Mrs. Anna Anderson of suite 2, 32 Astor st., Back Bay, secured $1100 by a badger game from Anselm Rheinhardt of Holmes ave., Dorchester, a tailor employed in a Washington st. shop.

POLICE RECOVER BODY IN BRIDGE PLUNGE

R. R. MAN DIES IN RIVER PLUNGE

Harold Lathrop, 40, married, of Blackwood st., Roxbury, fireman on a New Haven milk train, was drowned in Neponset river early today after falling from a trestle.

At the end of the run at Fairmount, Hyde Park, the engine stopped on the trestle and Lathrop got off to put a red lantern on the front, prepartory for the backward run to Boston.

The engineer, R. P. Read, did not see him fall but soon missed him. The body was recovered three hourse later by Metropolitan police.

Cupid's Love Call to Lure Mr. Mosquito to His Doom

Without fathers the mosquito families will cease to exist.

Thugs Get $59 in Medford Holdup

Two armed men last night held up and robbed Van Moore, proprietor of a meat market at 27 Lowman ave., Medford, holding him at bay with guns while they looted the cash register. They got $59 and escaped in an auto.

FUNDS NEEDED FOR ORCHESTRA

Unless a substantial sum is subscribed immediately, the Pops Symphony Orchestra will be unable to complete the season, it was announced today by Francis H Cummings, president of the organization.

The organization has completed half of its season of Sunday afternoon concerts in Jordan Hall, and under direction of Thompson Stone, conductor, has reached a new peak of excellence.

Funds are running low, however, and additional subscriptions are needed.

MANY NAMES CONSIDERED FOR PLACE

Chief Executive to Take His Time in Picking a Successor to Judge Carroll

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Governor Ely is intent upon finding the strongest jurist in the State for appointment to the Supreme Court bench in place of the late Associate Justice James P. Carroll of Springfield.

Apparently the Governor has made up his mind to take his time in finding his man and will not be guided in that selection by the pleas of various political leaders who have importuned him on behalf of candidates in the past.

The impression has gone around that he might select Prof. Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard law school, for whose legal attainments he has great respect, but since Judge Carroll was regarded as representing a large section of the State's population of Irish descent, it is considered almost certain that he will appoint a Democrat identified with that group.

HONOR FOR DONAHUE

There is the possibility of him promoting one of the superior court judges to make room on the bench for Frank J. Donahue, Democratic national committeeman and chairman of the Democratic State committee.

Donahue's decision while a member of the industrial accident board were regarded with a great deal of respect in judicial circles. Few if any of those decisions have been upset by the higher court. It has been taken for granted that the Governor has had Donahue in mind for the superior bench for some time.

In the event that Donahue is named, the judges looked upon as most likely for promotion to the highest court are Judge Charles H Donahue, Judge Stanley E. Qua and Judge Edward F Hanify. Judge Arthur W. Dolen of the Suffolk Probate Court may not be overlooked.

MAY GO TO ESSEX

But the Governor may decide that the claims of Essex county for recognition are valid. That section has not been represented since the death of the late Judge DeCourcy.

A decision to go there for a selection would bring into prominence the names of Edmond J. Ford of Lawrence, James J. Ronan of Salem and James W. Sullivan of Lynn. All three are prominent at the bar and well known throughout the state.

Ford, especially, is well known. He is the author of "Massachusetts Evidence and Trials" and "A Treatise on Recent Cases in Evidence."

Waltham Residents Oppose Playground

The petitioners stated the playground would prove detrimental to their property and would be a source of disturbance.

Max Wise Named Chelsea Solicitor

Max Wise, one of Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley's campaign managers during the recent Chelsea election, was last night chosen city solicitor by Chelsea aldermen.

16¼ POUNDS OF HEALTHY TRIPLETS GLADDEN HER HEART

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Daisy Beaumont, vivacious young blonde, is arrested and charged with "soliciting," but Capt. Jim Fitzpatrick of the homicide squad has her released. In the meantime, four men are found murdered in a warehouse. Capt. Jim is convinced that "Big Boy" Bellfonte is responsible, and Capt. Jim swears to get the "Big Boy" and his whole gang, but he receives orders for duty in the suburbs.

NOW CONTINUE

By JACK LAIT

GLENDALE WAS the limbo of lost cops. It was one of those quiet, peaceful little suburbs which just came within the pale of a municipality, and with which over-zealous cops, when they arrested someone with a political drag, were threatened.

"Lay off, flatfoot!" the peeved ward-heeler would exclaim, "or I'll have you transferred out to Glendale where you'll be picking the burrs outta your socks."

Of course there were other places on the outskirts of the city where the disfavored cop might be exiled. But if he lived on the other edge of town he was sentenced to Glendale. If he lived in Glendale he was transferred to North Woods, which was smack across the big burg. It would have been just too nice to have him work in the same precinct in which he lived.

QUIET BROKEN AT GLENDALE

Glendale was the longest car ride from the home of Captain Jim Fitzpatrick, and to Glendale he was sent, showing that his demotion was not a mere department routine matter. He had incurred the wrath of the higher mugwumps and they sought to have it impressed on him in a nice, significant way. They might have put it thus:

Capt. Fitzpatrick took it as the "breaks." He gritted his teeth, set his Irish jaw, and dug out his musty captain's uniform, which smelled of mothballs. He patted Mary on the head and she smiled cheerily for that's the kind of wife Mary was. And he went to Glendale.

The first week or so was one of stagnant inactivity. A dog had been found unmuzzled . . . A little boy toting away from the door step and for a time it looked like a real kidnaping, until they found it around the corner behind some bushes . . . A woman threw a stone at a neighbor's chicken because the pesky creature was scratching for virgin fields in her garden . . . A cat was marooned up a telephone pole for two hours——

It was an exciting life in Glendale. So Capt. Fitzpatrick simply settled back, began brushing up on the city ordinances and a few pointers in police maneuvers and got in a lot of pistol practice. It was in quiet, ennui-ridden, lassitude-sodden Glendale that Lieuts. John Makowsky and Tom Deegan, his former assistants on the Homicide Squad, found him one bright afternoon when they both had a day off together.

KILLED THE CASHIER

"It's great to see you guys," said Jim, as he grasped their hands. "It's like a good dream come true. How's the old detail working? I don't read so much about it any more. How's Ed? He hasn't been home for a week. Why don't you guys say something? You look like a couple of banshees at a wake."

"The old detail's shot to hell," sorrowfully offered Mac.

"Ed's okay," warily answered Tom, "He likes his food times—but he'll make a crack detective some day. He's got the old Fitzpatrick stuff in him, hasn't he?"

Jim nodded slowly avoiding the gaze of the other two. They shuffled their feet. But an instant later the trio was to be electrified to action by the startling clang of the alarm bell. The Desk Sergeant pudgy and panting, hurled into the room. He shouted:

"It's the bank, captain! Stickup! They killed the cashier!"

"Whoop! Just in time for the party!" shouted Mac.

WORKERS RALLY TO GIVE PART OF THEIR PAY

Nearly a score of business concerns have already accepted the plan of giving contributions to the United Boston Unemployment Relief Campaign by means of payroll deductions according to a report today by Carl Dennett, chairman of the trades committee for the campaign.

The object of the drive is to raise $3,000,000 and the campaign officially starts next Monday. Everybody will be asked to give one day's pay a month for five months.

Payroll deductions are to be made only with consent of the employes, but according to Chairman Dennett's statement, thus far no objections have been met with in the approaches made by the committees to those ... tions.

Concerns which have already accepted are the F... ... ... Edison Con... ... Telephone & T... ... Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., Merchants National Bank, ... National Life Insurance ... N. E. Mutual Life Insurance Co., National Shawmut Bank, Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates, Massachusetts Gas Companies, N. E. Coal & Coke Co., Hornblower & Weeks, Lee Higginson, Hollingsworth & Whitney, Mystic Iron Works, State Street Trust Co., Boston Mutual Life Insurance Co.

"The canvass will include 60,000 business concerns of the city," said Mr. Dennett. "Most of the canvassing will be done by members of the men's committees, but the women's division, headed by Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, will also play an important role, securing contributions from such firms as millinery, novelty and dressmaking shops, women's clubs, nurses, and the like."

For Mothers

Miss Marie L. Donohoe is leading a series of informal instructions for mothers on "The Girl and Her Mother" at the Boston Y. W. C. A. The discussions are planned for eight Tuesday evenings, starting tonight. (Bachrach)

QUINCY SCHOOL BOY MISSING

Joseph McGroarty, 15, a student in Quincy Point high school, was reported today as missing by his mother, Mrs. Patrick McGroarty of 20 Cherry st., Quincy Point.

The boy, according to his mother, remained out of school yesterday because he did not feel well. In the afternoon he went out of the house. She has not seen him since.

He is five feet tall, weighs 115 pounds and wore long trousers of oxford gray, a slip-on sweater and a light gray overcoat, but no hat.

COURT POMP IS ELIMINATED

The new juvenile court in Roxbury, where all courtroom atmosphere, even to the judge's bench has been abolished, will open tomorrow in quarters of the courthouse building formerly used by the G. A. R.

Hereafter juveniles and their parents will enter the building through a side door, directly into the office of the probation office.

At the hearings in "court" which is called a conference room, the judge, in an ordinary business suit instead of judicial robes, sits at a table with the juvenile offender, and whoever arrives with him, and the entire difficulty is threshed out in a quiet heart-to-heart talk.

Even the court officers will be in business suits—with no brass buttons and no calling of court, and with all spectators barred.

3 ENDORSED IN IN BROOKLINE

Roger Griswold and Edward B. Richardson were endorsed today by the Brookline citizens' committee on schools for nomination at next month's caucus and election in March to the Brookline school committee.

Mrs. Lotta Bradshaw Schick was endorsed for re-election.

Police War on 'Thumbers'

"Thumbing" rides from automobilists in Medford was banned last night by Chief Connors, who instructed police to take the names of people caught asking rides.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

BY LOUIS SOBOL

Down Memory Lane!

With KITTY DONER, America's Foremost Male Impersonator

Honest, now, this is all the fault of Lou Holtz and Bill Gaxton. We were sitting in Dinty Moore's one day before I left New York, while Lou and Willy had their stock company at the Palace. I had started to read them my latest bunch of mash notes from the gals who just won't believe that under a dress shirt beats a woman's heart when Lou had the bright idea.

"You write out all the experiences and send them down to school," he said. "Maybe you could title them 'What a Male Impersonator Thinks About—If She Thinks at All.' If they don't make Good Memory Lane then Gaxton is a comedian." So that's how this got started.

The earliest of the memories go back to the old West 47th st. grammar school and my first stage appearance. It was a part in a George Washington birthday playlet and my cousin was in it, too. He was a terrible cynic, even in those days and something of a business man also. When he wasn't destroying our belief in Santa Claus he was charging us a penny apiece to blow into his father's lung developer. Remember him taking cornet lessons too, as if the rest wasn't bad enough. Maybe you've heard of him. His name is Frank Fay. Blarst him, and I'm going to get him when I reach the coast.

1910

The stage had to do without Kitty until 1910, after that first patriotic effort, when I went into the children's ballet at the old Hippodrome. Five dollars a week, and how big it looked. Our dear mother used to teach Ted Rose and me to dance down in the cavernous cellars of the Hipp. One day we would work among the elephants and the next among the horses, etc. Ted and I used to collect all the burnt-out electric globes. There was some sort of Chinese tong war agitation, I remember, and we had great sport throwing these miniature bombs into the Chinese laundries just to see the poor Chinese scamper. It never failed to satisfy. I remember Ina Claire, as a little girl, doing impersonations on a bill with mother and dad.

Gus Edwards gave me a real job in "School Days" at $25 per week, and did it look big! I had one week of that tremendous salary and then we were booked into Hammerstein's. Mr. Edwards promptly cut me from $25 to $17 and I just as promptly quit.

1912:

Some time during this year I made my first vaudeville appearance as a single entertainer. I was on my own and scared to death. There were six shows a day to be done at the Harris Theater in Pittsburgh, and I cheerfully believed the manager when he told me that I was such a hit that I would have to do seven shows the next day. Jack Osterman's wonderful father, Jake Rosenthal, gave me my first job in a show out Chicago way.

A friend from the days of my grandmother Mordecai's actors' boarding house offered me a job in motion pictures and I refused because I was too crazy about the stage to bother with those lousy movies. (Wus I crazy!) The friend's name was Charlie Chaplin, and I understand that he has been something of a success since then. When he left Grandma Mordecai's he forgot a pair of pajamas. She washed and ironed them and could never understand why Mr. Chaplin didn't come back to get them. They were real nice pajamas, she said. I came east with Charles King and his beautiful sister, Molly, in "The Passing Show."

My one day in the Ziegfeld "Follies." That one day changed my whole career and my whole life, for that matter. It was about this time that I first experimented with male impersonations and I tried to convince Ziegfeld that I could do them to better advantage than the numbers allotted me. The competition of beauty was too much for your Aunt Kate. I left the show after the first performance, walked over to the Shubert offices and signed with them. J. J. told me he wanted clever people and not beautiful ones, and that tickled my vanity to such an extent that I would have cheerfully taken a fifty dollar cut. I guess more stars came out of the Winter Garden at that. I joined a Jolson show and stayed in Jolson shows for six years, no less. Well, the boys of the chorus made a boy out of Kitty. They sent me to their tailors, their shirtmakers and their bootmakers. And I emerged a full-fledged impersonator and have remained one ever since, damn it.

In Boston I lived at a swanky hotel with another kid in our show. Coming home late at night we used to have a great time sneaking up and down the halls and changing the shoes which had been left outside the doors to be polished. The next time I see Marilyn Miller I must remember to ask her if she's still a shoeswitcher. We don't get as many laughs today, do we Marilyn?

Headed west in a Pullman with the Jolson troupe. It was "Robinson Crusoe." One night Al and I sat up almost all night, and he had a very confidential mood on. After a while he whispered the confession that he had fifty thousand dollars hidden away where "nobody will ever find it." He figured that he was financially independent with that. I wonder if he knows now where his last million is hidden. Good old Al!

1921

My first appearance at the Palace. They had me sandwiched in between Bee Palmer and Irving Berlin. I don't know whether my reception was Bee's finish or my finish was Berlin's reception. Wus I scared!

Rose, Ted and I went to London and opened at the Victoria Palace. Rose and Ted didn't care for the London fog, so they merely told me to cancel twelve weeks of steady work. Being a good sister, I did. On the boat coming home I cabled the Keith office. That office booked us by cable and we opened at the Palace the day we got off the boat.

The next week I was signed for Benny Leonard's "Dancing Girl." A certain Jack (highly superstitious) Pearl was the comedian of the show. He had a comedy fight scene with Benny, so we doctored Benny's gloves with blacking, poured bitters on the shoulder where Pearl had to bite him and then told Pearl it was carbolic acid. When not engaged in these light amusements we would strew the stage with hairpins and watch his frenzied efforts to remove all these hard luck tokens.

In a show with Lou Holtz, out in Chicago. His repeated advice to me to save my money. The same advice coming from Charles Chaplin. My retort that I wasn't going to hoard a fortune for somebody to get away from me. Lou told me that he was then saving $500 a week and was ready to buy his first apartment house. Oh, why wasn't I born beautiful and smart like heem!

1925:

In dresses again for a short while. Playing Adele Astaire's role 'Lady Be Good,' out on the coast. Why, oh why, didn't I go back to lingerie and throw away these canes and spats and top hats for once and for all. I've really been meaning to do it all along.

All alone and trying to think up something new for a new era in vaudeville. Rose, mother and father gone. Ted ill on the coast. In a state of panic I called for Joe Laurie to look over the new act in Hoboken. Joe came back-stage and hollered through the door: "Are you packing Kitty?" "No," I replied. "Well, you ought to be" was his encouraging response. But the time and effort he spent in helping me get started was enough to make me forgive him for anything.

Lou Holtz, Madelene Cameron and Billy Gaxton cornering me at a supper table and giving forth their annual insistence that I give up impersonating and go back to skirts. This time their insistence is so strong and sincere that I've definitely decided to follow their advice. Next season the haberdasheries are going to lose a perfectly good customer, hundreds of women will have to find a new 'boy friend' to write mash notes to and the truck drivers are going to have a new theatrical idol. Your Aunt Kate is going to go feminine in a great big way.

2 BOYS CAUGHT IN HOLDUP

Held up at the point of a revolver on the Common early today and beaten by three men, Sotar Vangell of North Russell st., was saved a large sum of money by the timely arrival of Patrolman George Boyden, of the LaGrange st. station.

Boyden heard cries, rushed to the scene and after giving chase and firing several shots, he captured two youths.

The youths arrested were: Reynold J. C. Schofield, 18, of Dwight st., South End, and William Berry, 18, of Gray st., South End.

Councillors Visit to Norfolk Postponed

Two public hearings before the Governor's Council tomorrow afternoon will necessitate postponement of an inspection of Norfolk Prison Camp by a special committee investigating the camp and the State Farm at Bridgewater.

This was announced today by Councillor James H. Brennan of Charlestown, a member of the committee, who said the inspection probably would take place later in the week.

Tune in the

SINGING LADY

A DELIGHTFUL radio program for young folks which was started over WGN in Chicago eight months ago. Its success has been phenomenal. More than 40,000 mothers and children have written letters expressing their appreciation. And now, W. K. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, is sponsoring the Singing Lady, over the N. B. C. Blue Network, as a service to mothers, teachers and children throughout the country.

The Singing Lady tells the most fascinating stories; sings the most delightful songs. And she comes to entertain the children just before supper, which is a time when children should be kept quiet and amused, according to child authorities. It's also one of the busiest times in a mother's day.

Every afternoon (except Saturdays and Sundays) at 5.30 Eastern Time, over WJZ, WLW, WBZ,* WBZA,* WBAL, KDKA,* WJR, WGAR.

At 5.15 Central Time, WENR, WREN, KWK, KOIL; also WGN at 6.

Let your children listen in—and see how eagerly they will look forward to the Singing Lady.

Defendants to Pay Extra Court Costs

Because the county has been put to heavy expense for witness fees because defendants were not ready for trial on schedule, Judge Eldridge G. Davis has inaugurated a plan by which he will continue cases a second time at the request of the defendant only when the defendant agrees to pay the necessary witness fees.

The new rule was applied in the cases of Joseph Spinazolla, of Revere, charged with a liquor offense, and Peter Mastrangello, of Everett, damage to property.

South Boston Girl Struck by Taxicab

Mary Connolly, 13, of 184 F st., South Boston, was struck by a taxicab at West Broadway and E st., last night, suffering a fracture of the skull, concussion of the brain and other injuries.

The taxi driver, Frank Knapp, is the man who was "kidnaped" a few weeks ago by gunmen and brought on a tour of crime through the South End and Roxbury.

Royal Typewriter Victory for Boston

The Boston office of the Royal Typewriter Co., won the nation wide sales contest for the period of Sept. 1 to Dec. 31, it was announced today.

"This is another indication that Boston and surrounding cities and towns are showing industrial improvement," said H. J. Closson, Boston manager, in announcing the victory for his office.

Cold Insurance

He carries it with him, ready for just such times. That little box of Bayer Aspirin. If he catches cold, what of it? Bayer Aspirin will stop it. If his throat feels sore, he will end the soreness with one good gargle made from these tablets.

Dangerous complications can follow the neglect of "a common cold!" Every case of tonsilitis began with "just a sore throat!" It's a wise plan to take aspirin after any undue exposure to bad weather, or whenever there is any chance that you've caught cold. If it's genuine aspirin it can't possibly hurt you; and how it does banish the aches and pains caused by colds, neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago, and even rheumatism.

Bayer Aspirin will insure your comfort through the worst cold season. The more susceptible you are to colds, the more you need it. Does not depress the heart.

A WOMAN'S LOVE DOESN'T DIE, IT EVAPORATES

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

A WOMAN'S LOVE doesn't die; it simply evaporates. Usually, from having to subsist on hot-air, so much of the time.

• • •

Men read mystery stories to distract their minds. But almost any woman can get the same distracting effect, by reading a time-table, going over her checkbook stubs, or trying to figure out where her husband is, nights.

• • •

Husbands Classified: "The papers," states a masculine editorial writer, "were never flooded with any stories about her husbands, pet dogs, trained lizards, tantrums or gambling debts." Oh, come now! Husbands can't be as bad as all that!

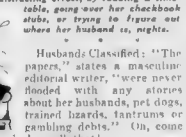

• • •

Married men should joyfully welcome the return of the red flannel petticoat. It was little things like that, which saved many a man the price of a mink coat, in the old days.

• • •

Grandmother's sweetest memory was that of the man who devoted himself to her for one, whole beautiful summer; but, there are times, when granddaughter would be happy to recall the man who devoted himself to her for one, whole evening.

• • •

A woman may forgive another woman for stealing her husband or even her cook—but not for stealing her thunder, when she's telling her troubles, deploring her operation, or panning her best friend.

• • •

Judging from the careless things a man will do to kill love, and then expect to revive it, he must think that L'amour, like a cat, has nine lives.

Cancer Curable In Its Early Stages

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

CANCER is regarded as one of the greatest problems of the human race. It was acclaimed at a conference recently held by the American College of Surgeons. At this meeting notable surgeons of this country and other lands discussed this problem.

Tremendous advances have been made in the prevention and treatment of this disease, but unfortunately there has been no new development in the prevention of cancer. This disease is more easily recognized than it was in former years. This is important, for when unrecognized little help can be given.

Dr. Copeland

Contrary to a common belief, in many cases cancer can be cured. This is only true when it is discovered in its early stages and the treatment is given immediately.

When the growth is on the surface of the body it is usually discovered in an early stage. When the growth is confined within the body the problem is different. That form is usually neglected. Any growth that can be seen is quickly brought to the physician for attention. Internal tumors may not show themselves until they begin to disturb the health.

When the growth is overlooked or neglected the cancer finds its way to other parts of the body. It may give rise to new growths. When this occurs it is serious. This condition is spoken of medically as "metastasis."

The early recognition of this disease depends upon the individual as well as the physician. If you have any complaint, no matter how small, hasten to consult your physician. He is trained in this work.

If there is any doubt in his mind concerning the cause of your discomfort he will subject you to the necessary X-ray pictures and other tests. These will prove or disprove the presence of cancer. But, I beg of you, don't neglect it.

Answers to Health Queries

Q—What is sinus trouble?

A—This is an infection of sinuses, cavities adjacent to the nose. Treatment should be advised by a nose and throat specialist.

3—Have an examination to locate the exact cause.

Best Remedy Is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

The Beauty Box

MAKE-UP has come to its senses. It no longer blazes like a red beacon, but is a delicate rosy glow. Those rouges that touch every tint from orange to poi ceranite, cherry red to magenta, are taking a back seat for the cheek tint that is the perfect understudy for the blush created originally by Mama Nature. New complexion effects can't be had on in a hurry. A lick and a promise won't do. Powder must be perfectly distributed—no splotches—rouge blended in, lip stick used with the utmost stinginess, eye shadows only faintly suggested.

Jim Chases Robbers of Bank

of a chair on the way. They jumped into the squad car and with siren shrieking and throttle wide open they sped toward the bank, scores several policemen were pushing back the crowd.

The car nosed through the jam and one of the policemen jumped on the running board. He informed between pants:

"Killed the cashier—Grabbed ten grand—three of 'em—Big gray sedan—Headed South—Turned west two blocks down—"

"Thanks!", snapped out Capt Fitzpatrick, reaching around and opening the door. "Hop in! Let's go, boys!"

The car roared in first, cried mournfully in second, and screamed with joy in high. It took the corner two blocks down on a skid, balloon tires whining. At the next corner Mac nearly upset it when a hatless man, standing almost in the middle of the street, pointed South again. A straight road, half paved, with makeshift cross streets—and the sedan a half mile away.

"She's on the floor, Fitz!" cried Mac. With a straight away course the big car began to gather momentum. When they were within a hundred yards of the other car they saw it careen to the side and both three men, who hurtled furiously off over the field toward a fence which surrounded a soap factory.

Sergeant Ed Fitzpatrick ran his fingers through his black, curly hair. He was sitting on the edge of the divan, his coat off, his collar open, his gun and holster on a chair. There was a haggard, harassed look on his face.

"Listen, Kid," he said wearily. "I've got to go home tonight. Been away for a week now. I need some rest and some laundry and Jim will want some explanations. And your roommate, Kiki's getting sore. I'm a stir bounder here."

"But I don't want you to go, you great big officer mans," cooed Daisy, plunking down beside him without taking the trouble to adjust her negligee. "We're havin' a good time, ain't we?"

"Yes, that's good for my own good. You be a nice girl for one night, baby, and I'll be back. I got things to tend to."

"Secrets?"

"No—an errand. But I want you to get good tonight and do as I tell you to do. I told you what you promised. And if I hang around you won't do a thing. I wanta know things, see?"

He put his hand under her chin and kissed her lightly on the lips and then leaned back and looked into her eyes.

"See?"

"I see. Sure it ain't some other girl?"

"How in hell could it be some other girl?" grinned Ed, "If I had another girl I wouldn't have her now. I've spent every spare minute with you. She wouldn't speak to me now."

"Oh, I don't know—I would, even if you left me flat for two weeks," said Daisy put her arm around his neck and drew his cheek to hers.

"Well, it ain't—so there, darling."

"If you had another girl," mused Daisy, looking off into space. "You could tell her you had been on extra duty—and she'd believe you."

"Don't tease. I ain't got another girl. You're the only girl in the world for me. Even if I had another girl she wouldn't stand a show with you. Why, I couldn't look at another girl."

"Honest!" and he caught her in his arms and squeezed her tight, pressing his lips to hers. She wilted for a moment and then pushed him away.

"Ed," she began slowly, "I guess you're right. You better beat it tonight and I'll show up at Celli's This Belmonte guy might be gettin' suspicious and send around—"

"—I thought you were through with him—I mean as far as him having ay say-so about you—"

"Oh, I am—but you know those guys are always thinking you are going to double-cross them and they keep an eye on you. Anyway, I might learn something."

"That's right."

"I didn't know women celebrated their birthdays But, okay, baby, I'll be on deck. I know where I can get some real stuff—and ditch that Kiki jane."

Has a Corporation a Soul? Ask Good Old Dobbin

By WINIFRED BLACK

THEY WERE all very solemn about it—the members of the board of directors. They had taken over the old business and were going to merge it, or sell it or put it out of its misery some way or other.

It was all very dull.

One of the directors was figuring out a golf score in his head and another was wondering about a play his partner had made at bridge the night before, when suddenly the man of figures spoke.

"There's a queer little thing in this situation," he said. "They have an old horse here. They call him Nobbin, or Dobbin or something of the sort, and seem to think a lot of him. He looks like a total loss to me, but everyone in the concern has spoken to me about him and asked me not to sell him to some junk dealer, or to have him abused.

"He was brought up on the place, they say, and all the kids in the neighborhood know him, and bring him handfuls of clover on their way to school. If you looked out of the window almost any hour of the day when the driver's in bloom, they say, you see old Nobbin, or Dobbin, or whatever his name is, looking down the road for the children, whenever school is out.

"Anyhow, they're all worried about Nobbin, or maybe it's Dobbin; and he's one of the assets, you know. I'd like to ask a vote thru wee on it, gentlemen."

Then one of them remembered that he knew a woman who had some kind of a camp in the neighborhood, and she asked children from the city out a week at a time apiece.

So they voted to give old Nobbin, or Dobbin, or whoever he was, to the children's camp woman, and let the children bring him all the clover they would, for he'd have not only a good comfortable home there, but plenty of company, and good company, too, as long as he lived.

And they all went home feeling sort of warm and bright inside.

Who says that corporations never have any souls?

Life Worth All That It Costs

By ELSIE ROBINSON.

I'M NOT afraid of dying . . .

But I'm terribly afraid of not living.

It is so easy to be born, to exist for a certain number of years, then to die . . . without ever having really lived! So easy to escape life I do it constantly. Just a little evasion . . . a little dawdling . . . and the trick is done. And I never dream of calling it cowardice.

"I'm just playing safe," I say. "Thinking things over. As soon as I know what's best to do, I'll act. It would be crazy to act before then wouldn't it? No telling what sort of a mess I might get in."

And even if other people didn't know a thing about it, I might make myself awfully unhappy by rushing ahead. I'm safe now. There are, of course, many things I don't like about my present situation. Irritating things. I'm forced to make perfectly needless sacrifices . . . endure senseless hardships. And I'm not making the progress that I should. But suppose I change—where'll I land? I'll have to adapt myself to all kinds of new conditions and people—and I hate strangeness. I'll be lonely and frightened—Yes, it's certainly a better policy to "stick, look and listen" before I go ahead."

So I reason to myself—
And the days go by—
And the months go by—
And the years do by—
AND LIFE, ITSELF, GOES BY WITHOUT MY HAVING LIVED IT!

Then some day, I wake and look back at the lost years. And what do I do? Do I acknowledge that I am to blame for their loss—through my own cowardice and laziness? No, indeed! I blame everyone but myself.

BUT IN MY OWN SECRET HEART I KNOW, ALL THE TIME, THAT I ALONE AM TO BLAME.

WHY HAGGLE AND HESITATE ABOUT FACING RISK IF THAT IS THE PRICE OF A WIDER, MORE ABUNDANT LIFE?

I'm not certainly. Life costs plenty. Life costs comfort and safety, pleasantness, peace of mind—all the things that are dear to sluggish souls.

BUT LIFE IS WORTH ALL IT COSTS!

Dare to live! Will you make mistakes? Of course you will. But no mistake can possibly be as costly as the tragic blunder of not daring to live at all. And no humiliation, no punishment, no loss can be as bitter as the thought of a life that went unscarred—and unfulfilled—because I NEVER DARED TO TAKE A CHANCE.

Daily True Story

Burned Bridges

"YOU'RE just jealous, Dick. You have no right to say such things about Bart Mallory. You're not helping yourself by telling me stories about him.

"He's always been a gentleman at all times to me, and for you to repeat club gossip that you cannot prove is hardly the type of conduct I'd expect from you."

Betty Carter's nose went up in the air and two spots of red burned in those cheeks that, strangely enough in an age of rouge and powder, still had color of their own that ebbed and flowed with the tide of emotion.

Dick Ransom started to say something himself and then checked the hot words of retort that trembled on his lips. He was silent for a moment. Then:

"Of course I'm jealous, Betty. I'm jealous of anyone who comes into your life. You mean everything to me. You've shown me that Mallory's hypnotized you. He's polished. He's traveled. His family is good whatever I may think of him. But men don't go wrong on men, and when a fellow cheats at cards—"

"You say he cheats." The girl's voice rose to a pitch close to the borderline between excitement and hysteria. Her hands clenched and opened, and the knuckles showed white from the strain. "I won't believe it without proof. If you can prove what you say—"

"I will."

Dick Ransom was paired with Bryan Forsythe, Bart Mallory was playing with Howard Searle.

LOOKED AT RANSOM

Mallory played with dark glasses. The strain of play he had explained, gave him a headache if he left them off. He was the only man of the four who was not smoking. Instead, he nibbled frequently at some confection carried in a seemingly inexhaustible supply in his right hand jacket pocket.

There came, as always in any game of cards, the one round where four hands seemed of equal strength.

Ransom started with a no-trump bid, with a two spade bid following from Howard Searle. Forsythe went to the one-first no-trump and Mallory to the third no-trump, a contract sent, in the final bidding, to five spades and on the play Mallory worked three finesses to make his bid, and rubber game.

No one noticed particularly when Dick Ransom slipped one of the decks that had been in play into his pocket and walked briefly whistling, out into the night.

Two nights later another quartet was playing. Searle, Avery and three other members of the club. Ransom had pleaded that he wanted to finish a story and sat in a great lounge chair with his back to those who were playing bridge. The hours had dragged by to nearly quitting time and Mallory, as usual, was hundreds of points out in front.

A steward brought in sandwiches and looked keenly at Ransom. No one saw the barely imperceptible nod. But when a moment later, all lights in the room went out there was first a murmur and then near turmoil.

Suddenly the lights went on again and the amazed members of the Sachem's saw Mallory on the floor, with Ransom sitting on his chest.

Forsythe came up from over by the light switch. At a nod from Ransom he went to the card table where Mallory and the others had sat. He turned the cards all face downward. Then he took Mallory's smoked glasses.

Forsythe put them on and went to the card table. He pointed to a card and called "The ace of spades." He turned it face up and a whisper began to go around the room.

"Most anyone can play winning bridge if he knows where the major honors lay," said Ransom. Suddenly he reached into Mallory's pockets and brought out a small flat tin box, with a hole in one side just large enough for a single finger to pass through and touch the contents inside. He tossed it on the table by the cards.

"Phosphorus," Ransom said tersely. Then he asked Forsythe to prevent Mallory leaving the room.

"I wondered at this fellow's phenomenal luck," Ransom told the others. "I watched, but could not see where he made a single move to show a trick. But I noticed he always played with black plastes. So I took the deck home after the game the other night. It got myself some black plates, and looked at the backs of the deck we had used. Spots of phosphorus showed on the card backs with the plates. It was all so simple after all."

Dick Ransom as, gloomily by the water, looking out at the sea from the island. It was a week since he had come and gone away supposedly to fish. A boy from the lodge came up and handed him a letter. Dick tore it open when he saw the writing. Then a big grin began to spread over his face.

"Bryan Forsythe told me all about it," one paragraph read and then—

"I'm so sorry and ashamed, Dick. Please forgive me. I'll be waiting for you to come home and let me thank you do."

"Boy!" Ransom shouted. "I've got to leave here in ten minutes—I don't care what it costs, but hire me an airplane."

FANNING

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Anent the Big Scrap. Still Bit Sceptical. You Can't Blame Us. ↕ If They Fight, What? Max Has Good Chance. And We Tell You Why.

Max Said He'd Fight Before—and Didn't

The fistic corporation of Max Schmeling & Co.—Fritz Maxmillian Adolph Gottfried Schmeling, himself, Yoe Yochobs, Billy McCarney, gambling Pete Reilly, Little Augie, the Baron of the Underworld and all the other known and unknown holders of Schmeling Pfd.—finally have capitulated, we are told, and the Black Uhlan, next June, will give Jack Sharkey an honest to goodness whack at the world's heavyweight title he gained by groveling on the floor and squawking foul. Jacobs announces Schmeling is willing to fight Sharkey in any state permitting 15 round encounters to an official decision. As New York legalizes just such a thing, and Madison Square Garden Corporation is said to possess some kind of a contract binding Schmeling, it is reasonable to think that the Big Squawk Man from Berlin and the Big I Man from Boston will meet in the same ring in Yankee Stadium, New York, in which they first struck up a pugilistic acquaintance. The great battle, may or may not be given over to America's greatest sporting charity, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund, to share in the promotion and receipts. Under Milk Fund co-partnership the encounter would gather a momentum it would not attain under the promotion of the Six Hundred Millionaires of Madison Square Garden alone. The sporting public will rally to a Milk Fund event in a way they will not do for any other thing

No contracts have yet been signed, we are given to understand. Whether they have or not, it would not be de rigeur to announce the fixing of the John Hancocks at this moment. Cameras must click and headlines emblazon before such a signing is even contemplated. And of course there are more slips between the champion saying he will fight and actually fighting, than there are between the cup and the lip. Schmeling and his mouthpiece oftimes before have proclaimed their willingness for a return match with Sharkey. They even went so far as to faithfully agree and contract to do just such a thing and ran out on it. There are more ways of killing a cat than drowning it and Schmeling and Jacobs may run out again as they did before. A whole lot of pussons will not believe Schmeling will risk his title against leading American heavyweights until they see them in the opposite corner of the same ring and hear the gong clang.

Your humble correspondent isn't quite as skeptical as that. But we wouldn't feel very sure of the successful culmination of the Schmeling-Sharkey match until a forfeit of around $25,000 of some of the mighty scarce but still good American money is placed in the safe of the N. Y. State Athletic Commission, binding Der Maxie to fulfill the agreement. In the interim we would keep a pretty sharp watch on Mister Sharkey's tea. And husky as the Garrulous Gob really is we wouldn't advise him to do much walking around in the darksome love nooks that abound in the neighborhood of his Chestnut Hills home. Of course we do not for the moment suspect anything nefarious could happen to Mister Sharkey. But accidents will happen, don'cher know, accidents will happen.

And what's going to happen if, and when, Herr Schmeling and Mister Sharkey actually do start making passes at one another in the same ring at the same time again? Will Sharkey rise to the occasion and whip the Dutchman from over the Rhine in a clean cut decisive fashion this time? Or will the Black Uhlan, as he did against Young Stribling, clearly display his fistic mastery and prove himself a real and worthy heavyweight champion of the world? Running the risk of being accused of rank heresy here in the home bailiwick of the great Sharkey man, we are inclined at this moment to lean towards the German.

"What!" we hear some of the readers exclaim, "you honestly think Schmeling has a good chance of defeating Sharkey? Why, wasn't Sharkey giving Schmeling a worse beating than Paddy gave the drum, when the foul occurred? Why the fight was only a massacre. Sharkey was winning by a margin as big as from the State House to Cohasset. And yet you have the gall to say you think the German has the better chance of the two in the second match. How do you get that way?

Folks, we sat right smack up ag'in the ringside at the Sharkey-Schmeling match. Sat so close to the celebrity who was broadcasting the event to the world we almost fell out of the chair when we heard him clarion, "Sharkey leads with an overhand right uppercut." And this is what we saw, or thought we saw—

We saw the aforementioned Mister Schmeling, party of the second part, take everything Mister Sharkey had without batting an eyelash. And Mister Sharkey unloaded plenty. He didn't happen to unload any of those overhand right uppercuts the announcer told the world about, but the only reason he didn't was because there isn't any such thing. But he dumped everything else in a fighter's repertoire—jabs, jolts, hooks, crosses, uppercuts, swings—all over the anatomy of the scrapper from the land of the Pilsener and Wuertsburger of beloved memory. Yum! Yum! But still the Black Uhlan plodded steadily on—steadily on. Into the blizzard of blows, head down like a cayuse bucking a blizzard, stolidly ploughed the Teuton—on, steadily on.

And, we thought, just before the foul was committed, we sensed the turning of the tide. Sharkey had given the Dutchman everything he had and apparently had punched himself out. The German, taking everything Sharkey gave, and withholding his own fire, just was unlimbering the Heavy Artillery and launching a real offensive when came the low punch and the abrupt ending. What would have happened if the foul had not occurred is problematical. So is what will happen if they meet again. Schmeling came from behind and beat Monte, Risko, Paolino, Stribling. The Georgia Peach in the early rounds gave Schmeling a shellacking. But the Dutchman came from behind and hammered the King of the Canebreaks into fistic oblivion. Sharkey has flivvered and back-fired in many important matches. You never are just sure what the temperamental fellow is going to do. Schmeling is a consistent performer. He specializes in coming from behind and winning. We see no reason for not thinking he can come from behind and beat the Terrible Sharkey Man just as he did others. But we naturally would be tickled sick if the American only will blaze forth in all his pristine glory—when Mister Sharkey is good he is very, very good—and prove us all wrong, Mawruss, all wrong!

OLD TIMERS VERSATILE, SAYS QUINN

By JOE CASHMAN

The question most frequently asked by baseball fans is "How do the modern players compare with the old-timers?"

Hardly a day goes by that the query isn't popped at us either by mail or word of mouth

So, in order to satisfy the numerous demands for a reply, we went up to Fenway Park bright and early today to get the opinion of Bob Quinn, who has been around the game for close to half a century and who is better fitted than anybody else we know to answer the question

The Sox prexy is of the opinion that ball players today are as numerous and every bit as capable on the whole as at any time in the history of the pastime, but they are not as versatile nor as ambitious as the boys in the good old days

Modern Players Better Old Marks

"The modern players," said Bob, "may not be any better than the heroes of other years, but they are as good.

"There is no doubt, though, that present-day players are more inclined to be specialists than were their predecessors.

"I can remember signing up as a catcher one season and playing every position on the nine at some time or other. Now you are almost sure to hear plenty of grumbling if you ask a player to shift about, either because he lacks the all-around ability or the ambition of the performer of yesteryear.

"In short, the old-timer was a ball player and the present-day player is a guardian of one of the nine diamond berths and nothing more. That's about the only difference that I note."

SCORING HONOR FOR BILL COOK

Montreal, Jan. 19 (AP)—Although the winning streak of the New York Rangers was broken by Detroit Sunday night, their star right-winger, Bill Cook, leads the National Hockey League both in scoring goals and total points.

The Rangers also lead in penalties, their defensive giant, "Ching" Johnson, being in the van in this respect with 64 minutes on the bench. "Red" Horner of the Toronto Leafs has been out 61 minutes.

TICKLED TO GET CHANCE AT CROWN

See JACK SHARKEY, right, laugh as the glad news MAX SCHMELING, left, at last has capitulated and will give him a chance at the crown, is brought to Chestnut Hill. Jack is tickled silly. And who wouldn't be? If you were a big husky Hercules and a chance at the world's heavyweight championship and a half million dollars suddenly was dumped on your doorstep, how would you feel? Maybe your smile would be broader than Sharkey's. Down here in the south-west corner, however, Otis Sapp seems to have his doubts. He just can't believe the good news. "What!" he exclaims, "Schmeling meet Sharkey in June? Say, Buddy, I'll believe that when I see 'em in the ring and the gong clangs!"

Sharkey to Fight Into Trim for Title Shot

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, made the amazing announcement today he would fight himself into condition for his 15 round bout with Max Schmeling by donning five-ounce gloves with his sparring partners.

"I want to feel the wild thud of real punches," said Sharkey. "I shall pay my sparring partners well, and will give them the privilege of knocking me out if they can

BACK TO SMALL GLOVES

"I'll let my sparring partners put on five-ounce gloves. In this way I'll toughen myself up. I'll be prepared for the best Schmeling has to offer.

"Of course I'll do some punching myself. I don't believe in pulling punches during workouts. It injures a boxer's timing.

"For a time I didn't think Schmeling would ever consent to meet me again. Now that he has agreed to do so, I intend to get into the best possible physical condition

"Schmeling insists that the bout must be a 15-round affair. That's perfectly all right with me. He can have it 50 rounds if he wishes, but the extra rounds won't do him any good as I'll belt him out inside of 10 rounds

"I always felt I knocked Schmeling out with a left hook to the body in our last bout. I'll shoot my punches for his chin this time, and so he won't be able to yell 'foul'."

Sharkey has been training at Schaaf's and Buckley's Gym on Cambridge st. for a week. He's down to 208 pounds and ready to step on the gas in his training grind can public wanted to see in the title shot

The sudden collapse of the proposed Schmeling-Walker match at Miami Fla., on account of lack of public interest made this conviction stronger.

When Dempsey refused to state his position in regard to a comeback, Jacobs startled the boxing world with his announcement that Max would risk his chin in front of the punches of the American champion.

Sharkey and Johnny Buckley, his manager, were elated by the decision of Jacobs and Schmeling. It brought to an end a campaign which started when Schmeling was proclaimed a victor over Sharkey in New York a year ago last June.

At that time Schmeling agreed to give Sharkey a return bout the following September, but refused to keep his promise. He hand-picked Young Stribling as an opponent last summer

Max persisted in dodging Sharkey upon his return to this country a few weeks ago

Commander Steve Garrity of the American Legion added to the Schmeling worries when he demanded that the champion meet Sharkey

"I'm ready," was the Sharkey reply.

Johnston Ready to Aid Milk Fund

Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of the New York Garden, is ready to co-operate with the Milk Fund if it is successful in landing the match

Damon Runyon, acting for the Milk Fund, has already conferred with Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling.

Johnston and Runyon have talked with Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's pilot, over the long distance telephone from New York.

Nate Lewis of the Chicago Stadium has also put in a bid for the match

In accepting Sharkey as an opponent for the June match, Schmeling has brushed aside Mickey Walker on the grounds he is not a strong drawing card, and Jack Dempsey as a result of his failure to state definitely he is going to stage a comeback.

The tremendous reception Sharkey received when Schmeling boxed at the Arena last week was one of the reasons why the German decided to accept the American champion as an opponent.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, and the champion realized Sharkey was the man the Ameri-

WARNER DENIES TIGER OFFER

Stanford University, Cal., Jan 19 (INS)—Glenn "Pop" Warner was so busy forming plans for Stanford's 1932 football season that he did not seem to have time today to make a definite answer to the question:

"Are you going to coach at Princeton, Pop?"

"I have been in touch with no representatives of Princeton, directly or otherwise, and I have had no offers or communications of any sort," he said.

BAR PADDOCK FROM OLYMPICS

Los Angeles, Jan. 10 (AP)—Once the world's fastest human runner, Charley Paddock, who has been training several months in hopes of staging a comeback by landing a place on the American Olympics team, today found himself barred from amateur competition

The local branch of the Amateur Athletic Union voted last night to deny the famous sprinter an amateur card

A week prior to last night's meeting the A. A. U. registration committee had investigated Paddock's participation in athletic motion pictures and reports that he had been paid a large amount

"We have refused Charley Paddock a registration card," said Arnold Eddy, secretary of the A. A. U. registration committee. He would not amplify the statement.

Paddock said he did not know what action he would take.

"I have nothing to say at this time other than this, that I have been cleared of the motion-picture charge," he said. "The real reason why I am being barred is because I have embarrassed the A. A. U., they say"

Flynn's Widow Seeks $14,069 From Shade

New York, Jan. 19 (INS)—Dave Shade, under a Supreme Court order, must appear for an examination before trial in the suit brought by Mrs. Leo P. Flynn, widow of the former fight manager.

Mrs. Flynn claims Shade owes her $14,069 under a ten-year contract he signed with her husband. The sum represents what would have been Flynn's share of Shade's ring earnings.

Injured Fordham Star Able to Walk

New York, Jan. 19 (INS)—John Syzmanski, Fordham football player, was able to walk without assistance today for the first time since he was injured in the Bucknell game on Nov. 21. He will not be discharged from Fordham Hospital, however, until he is completely out of danger of a relapse.

The Daily Dozen

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Only when spring does arrive, they'd probably have to go South. Such is our New England weather.

It looks as if the Olympic winter sports program will have to be moved to Alaska or the events modified

Put the hockey teams on roller skates.

And the ski teams on bicycles.

Some scientists claim the unseasonable weather is due to the fact that the Gulf Stream is moving closer to the coast. Others point to the fact that Congress is in session.

And that it's the presidential year

If betting is legalized in the State, a dollar won't go so far as formerly It will stay right here with the local bookies.

But it would be some consolation to be able to see the nag who carried your bet on his nose

But sneezed coming down the home stretch.

The horses we bet on are always too polite They refuse to run ahead of the others.

37 Huskies Enter Boston Y Meeting

Thirty-seven members of Northeastern track teams are entered in the Boston Y. M. C. A. open handicap track meet Saturday evening

Wilrose Hanson, who set a new 300-yard mark on the Brown track in 34 2-5 seconds last Friday night, will compete in the dash and the 300-yard event.

"Stretch" MacKenzie, who took a first and three seconds in the Boston Y closed meet last week, will perform in the hurdles and the dash.

JACOBS TELLS N. Y. BOARD GO IS SET

New York, Jan. 19—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, stated he would appear before the New York Athletic Commission today and officially inform that body that Max Schmeling is prepared to meet Jack Sharkey in a 15-round bout in June.

Jacobs has already talked with Big Jim Farley, chairman of the New York Athletic Commission, and told him of his plan. It was Farley who led the fight to vacate Schmeling's title when he failed to keep his promise to meet Sharkey in a return bout.

Farley has been acting as manager of Governor Roosevelt's campaign for President. There have been reports he was going to resign his post with the commission. It was said he did not care to do this until Schmeling had agreed to obey the commission's order and fight Sharkey

The Milk Fund and the New York Garden are today trying to sign Schmeling for the title match. Jimmy Johnston and Damon Runyon have been in conference with Joe Jacobs. They have also talked with Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager

It is predicted that if the title match is held at the Yankee Stadium in June that it will draw a million dollar gate. Sharkey and Schmeling drew $800,000 a year ago last June when the match was not nearly as hot as it is today.

The Garden will try to match Walker with Ernie Schaaf, who boxes under the management of Sharkey and Johnny Buckley. As Walker and Schaaf both originally came from Elizabeth, N. J., this contest is a "natural" and would sell out the Garden.

Two crippled aggregations, the Boston Bruins and the Chicago Blackhawks, who, by virtue of nine tie games are deadlocked for second place in the American division race for National Hockey League honors, are the attraction tonight at the Boston Garden.

Although Cooney Weiland and Eddie Shore will return to the Bruin lineup against the Hawks, Harry Oliver is still on the hospital list, and Tiny Thompson has by no means recovered sufficiently to warrant his return to the Boston net.

During the Maroon game last Sunday night in Chicago, the Blackhawks lost Stew Adams who sustained a fractured arm. Johnnie Gottselig is also on the injured list with Taffy Abel.

Blackhawks Tired by Maroon Battle

The Blackhawks were a tired and bruised squad when they arrived here from Chicago this morning. The 70-minute tussle with the Maroons was the roughest game played in the Chicago Stadium this season.

For some weeks, Thompson has been troubled by a bad side which was brought about by throwing himself to the ice and bumping the goal uprights.

Percy Jackson, who has been the Cubs' spare goalie, will guard the nets for the Bruins, if it is decided to keep Tiny out of action.

Eddie Shore Back in Lineup Tonight

After an absence of three games, Eddie Shore is due to return tonight. Shore was in Montreal and could have played against the Flying Frenchmen, as he had entirely recovered from his injury when he was ordered to rejoin the Bruins, but he was not used.

Cooney Weiland will start at center with Dit Clapper and Bud Cook as his flankmen, while Marty Barry, Bill Touhey and Eddie Burke will be the second Boston line and Perk Galbraith, Art Chapman and George Owen compose the makeshift replacement line.

Although neither club is at top strength, it will be a serious blow to the game if they engage in another no-decision contest.

Schoolboy Notes

—By GEORGE W. GRIMM—

Malden and Medford will renew their rivalry this week with the high schools clashing in a track meet and a basketball game. The track meet will come off on Thursday at the Boston Y. M. C. A. track and the basketball clash will be staged on Friday at the Medford court.

Another traditional rivalry will be resumed on Saturday when the first of the Brookline-Newton track meets is staged at Newton. The Garden City squad, led by Capt. Stan Johnson, will be a favorite to whip Brookline.

Many of the Malden High football stars, who were undefeated last season, will be seen with the track team against Medford. Among them are Bill Ritterhaus in the broad jump; Sam Pashoian in the shot-put; Al Kerwin in the 600 and Lloyd Tupper in the relay.

Franklin Hashey, star punter for the Medford high football team, is now with the basketball outfit and is one of the stars. He is a long, rangy boy and plays center.

The Catholic League basketball teams will swing into action today for their second games of the year. Cathedral will entertain Immaculate Conception. St. Clement's of Somerville will be at St. Charles. St. Mary's will play at Mission and St. John's will tackle Our Lady's of Newton.

Bill Carson's Scoring High Point of Hockey

For 20 years, Dr. E. F. Murphy has been one of the official timers at hockey games played at the Arena and the Garden. He is a graduate of McGill University, and in the early days of indoor hockey did much to promote interest in the game in this section. He was one of the sponsors of the Intercolonials and was indirectly responsible for the visits of many Canadian teams to Boston.

As Told to Bill Grimes
By DR. E. F. MURPHY

To my way of thinking, the boys have passed up the greatest hockey game that was ever played here or anywhere else, the Harvard-Toronto Varsity tussle at the Arena early in January, 1922.

On the forward line, Smythe had Ned Wright and Louis Hudson on the wings and Bill Carson at center.

Back on the outer defense was Stan Brown and Beattie Ramsay, and what they did not know about breaking up attacks you could put in your eye and see through. With Capt. Jack Langtry in the goals, Toronto was unbeatable.

With Baker and Walker on the wings, Johnny Martin at center, George Owen and Crosby, a pair of Newton boys on the outer defense and Higgins in the nets, Harvard was represented by a strong club but the Crimson was no match for Varsity, once Bill Carson started to strut his stuff.

Early in the first period, Stan Brown started the scoring.

Immediately he came into possession of the rubber, Carson whirled around and broke away so fast that he caught all of the Harvard forwards out of the play. He pulled Owen and Crosby out of position and then cut into center ice and dashed right at Higgins, who was so bewildered that he was unable to make a real attempt to save.

Two minutes later, Carson repeated that performance and then, before the period closed, he took a pass from Louie Hudson and scored his third and varsity's fifth goal, which gave the visitors a 5 to 1 lead going into the last chapter.

Just 43 seconds after the face-off in the third period, Bill Carson scored his fourth consecutive goal and, without exception, every one of the 5000 odd fans in the Arena pronounced him the greatest collegian in the game, for in two games at the Arena, he had scored six of varsity's 10 goals.

Harvard to Lose Sharp, Polo Coach

JADICK LAUGHED LAST

TONY CANZONERI JOHNNY JADICK

WEIRD VERDICT FOR JOKE TITLE

Canzoneri weighed 132½ pounds but his lightweight title was not at stake because Jadick weighed 135¼, half a pound over the lightweight limit.

Ringside observers called the decision of the two judges and referee a "weird" one. The International News Service score card gave Canzoneri the first six rounds and Jadick the last four. Tony floored Johnny twice in the first round.

LUTZE SURE OF WINNING TITLE

By RINGSIDE

Nick Lutze was talking about his world's heavyweight championship wrestling bout with Henri DeGlane, which will be staged by Paul Bowser at the Arena on Thursday night.

"I'll beat DeGlane," said Lutze, with much enthusiasm. "I have finally realized the ambition of my career. I'm going to get a shot at the champion, and I feel I have had the necessary experience to gain the victory.

"Now that all possible challengers have been eliminated, I am going to shoot the works against DeGlane on Thursday night. You can bet I'll be in the best physical condition of my career when I face the Frenchman."

Charley Strack of Oklahoma and Jim Browning of Missouri are expected to furnish some fireworks when they bump in the semifinal.

Skiers Still Need Spiked Shoes for Race

Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—Three inches of snow covered the mountain slopes about this resort today after many days of unseasonable weather and record-breaking high temperatures. The American Olympics officials planned to hold the 18-kilometer ski race, test for Olympics candidates, tomorrow.

There was enough snow on level ground for the race, but not enough in the woods and over the [illegible] going. The athletes and their supporters hoped for three or four more inches by tomorrow. The American teams must be named by Thursday.

Mr. Boston

—By JACK CONWAY—

Mr. Boston

Maybe he'll get a break tomorrow night.

I'm not referring to [illegible] who conducts [illegible] Argonne A. A. [illegible] has long awaited break when [illegible] paid $600 to see Max Schmeling box an exhibition.

The bird I'm talking about is Billy Hood, English middleweight. Hood fought Leo Larivee at the Jack Sheehan benefit. The decision went [illegible]

Hood, however, is one of those battlers who doesn't believe in spending too much time on the canvas. He got up and took quite a socking for the rest of the frame. [illegible] second round. But from then on he walloped the everlasting day-lights out of [illegible]

Leslie is a good right hand thumper. He says if he knocks Hood down, he will stay down.

The Englishman chirped "Oh, yeah!" or whatever the king's subjects are supposed to chirp when they are angry. Anyhow Hood will toss plenty of punches at Baker, and he hopes the officials will see some of them land.

They are going to hand Johnny Dixon of Norwood a real test when they send him into action against Eddie Callahan of Nashua, N. H., in a six-round event.

Eddie Mack is going to [illegible] the luckiest fan a new roadster. Perhaps if you keep going to boxing bouts, some night you may receive an ocean liner or a 40-story office building along with the privilege of watching a flock of four rounders.

Gifts of roadsters at boxing shows probably take the place of the free lunch they used to have at Jerry Driscoll's old bar on Summer st. in what some folks like to call the good old days.

Annie Oakley is dead as far as the Argonne A. A. is concerned. Her former admirers have not even sent the old girl flowers, according to Mike Green.

HARVARD PLAYS CLUB SIX

A conflict of dates will prevent the Harvard-Poland hockey game scheduled for tomorrow night at the Boston Garden. As a substitute game Manager Dick Dunn has booked Harvard against the Boston Hockey Club.

The Polish team plays the Hockey Club at the Garden Friday night.

Passing the Puck

Due to the Falcons' victory over the Rangers and the fact that the game was played before a gathering of 800 persons Manager Jack Adams has been temporarily retained by the operators of the Detroit Club which is a break for the Bruin Cubs and their large following who are protesting loudly against Eddie Powers leaving here to take over the Falcons.

With all due respect to Eddie Powers' well known ability as a manager and coach, this would not be the most appropriate time to make his debut as the Detroit mentor. Starting with the Maroons at home on Thursday, the Falcons must play six games in nine days, during which time they will visit Boston, New York, Chicago and Montreal.

The Cubs-Eagles game in New Haven was a wild affair, during which Donnie Weir was ripped for four stitches.

As the Bruins have been on the road for almost two weeks, with the exception of a one-day visit to play the Rangers, they will appreciate their present stay.

Bill Shaver has been working regularly in the Canadian-American League and the fans are starting to wonder if he has been let out of the National Hockey League.

Unless such a time as owners and managers are absolutely prohibited from entering officials' dressing rooms to question decisions and rulings, under penalty of a heavy fine, the referees will continue to lead a dog's life.

Dodger Collings of the New Haven Eagles, is well named. He dodged right into organized hockey after playing with the outlaws last season.

BANKERS MOVE TO STOP WILD FOREIGN LOANS
By B. C. FORBES

AMERICAN MONEY will not be sent out of the country as thoughtlessly, shortsightedly, recklessly as before.

I learn that leading bankers handling foreign loans decided some time ago that their methods must be reformed, and that an informal agreement to accomplish that end was reached.

Crossing the Atlantic with a business-getter for a New York financial concern, I got from him three years ago a rather astounding picture of what was then going on. New York had men drumming up loans in foreign countries, each competing with all the others in offering alluring terms to prospective borrowers. Whenever intimation spread that a country or municipality or large corporation was receptive to the idea of borrowing money here, a swarm of scouts from American underwriters flocked to the spot like bees 'round honey.

Protection for Public Lacking

This country has had no association or organization charged with any responsibility for seeing to it that American investors received a square deal when buying foreign securities sponsored by our own bankers. Too many institutions and firms, it is now discernible, were governed mainly by an itch to bag commissions.

There was not enough thought or study given to the probable final outcome of the unrestricted lending to all and sundry in any and every part of the globe.

It is only fair to point out that two or three of our very largest international banking houses did not join the unseemly scramble. They sent forth no drummers.

Unfortunately, the move to correct the foreign financing evil was not made until unconscionable damage had been done. Whether Congress will consider that the wholly unofficial understanding or agreement among the bankers can be counted upon to prevent future abuses remains to be seen. If restrictive legislation can be passed, the bankers will have nobody but themselves to blame.

Wealth Fears to Assert Itself

"I wouldn't dare buy an expensive car just now because of what people might say," a reader quotes a rich man as saying.

Hasn't this rich man the wrong slant? Is it not the ardent desire of everybody that those who can should go ahead and spend money rationally? Wouldn't you—I would—like to see wealthy individuals and families resume buying high-priced cars and every other product appropriate to their station in life?

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has been employing a large force of workmen on his country estate, the newspapers chronicle. Instead of incurring criticism, his action has inspired commendation. Dwight Morrow did the same thing last winter, and planned similar action this winter. Did his neighbors dream of accusing him of indulging in ostentation or extravagance? No; the whole community applauded him for furnishing employment.

Similarly, the purchaser of a new automobile need have no fear that he will be criticised. Rather can he rest assured that his action will be interpreted as stimulating employment and helping to quicken recovery.

So, Mr. Rich Man, please go ahead and buy your expensive car!

POLITICS
Notes and Gossip About People You Know

WON'T LISTEN

One of the most discouraging things that speakers have to contend with at hearings before legislative committees is the frequent conferences going on between committee members. Rather than speak to the four walls, Rep. C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus, interrupted the confab indulged in by members of the committee on metropolitan affairs, demanded and got their attention before continuing.

TO CHANGE BOARD?

With three members of the industrial accident board coming up for reappointment this year, that board, like the department of labor and industries, seems ripe for an overhauling. The industrial accident board is regarded as "the hush-hush" department at the State House, evidently going on the assumption that its inner workings are none of the people's business.

GENERAL EXODUS

William W. Kennard, chairman of the Industrial Accident Board, it is understood, will not seek reappointment. The other two whose commissions expire this year are Charles M. Stiller and Emma S. Tousant. Both of these, it is said, believe that there is no reason why they should not be optimistic as to the future. One of the other commissioners, Joseph A. Parks, of Fall River, is regarded as an aspirant for the chairmanship.

CITY HALL SURVEYERS

Twenty young men employed in City Hall will be among the group in attendance at the class in elementary surveying, which is to open for a 10-week period at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, under the auspices of the state department of education, tomorrow evening.

SH-H-H! DO NOT ENTER

City Councillor Thomas H. Green of Charlestown and his associates on the committee on rules seem determined that members of the council will not be interrupted while that body is in executive session this year. Large signs reading "Strictly Private," have been posted on all doors leading to the executive chambers and also in other conspicuous places.

FIRST RADIO LECTURE

President "Eddie" Gallagher of the city council delivered his first lengthy radio address yesterday when he spoke from City Hall over Station WNAC. His talk consisted chiefly of a discussion of the manner of procedure in the council sessions.

ANDERSON HONORED

William L. Anderson, assistant secretary to Mayor Curley, who is also senior vice commander-in-chief of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the annual banquet of the North Metropolitan District Association in Malden next Saturday evening.

VAST BENEFITS OF BOND ISSUE

The Rev. James R. Cox, Pittsburgh priest who led 20,000 unemployed men to Washington two weeks ago, has announced his prospective candidacy for President "on the jobless party ticket" with a $5,000,000,000 bond issue for public works as the principal plan in his program. Universal Service herewith presents Father Cox's own summary of his program.

By THE REV. JAMES R. COX
(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

Pittsburgh, Jan. 19—What this country needs most of all right now is a $5,000,000,000 congressional bond issue for public work which would give employment to the jobless.

Such a bond issue would create work in public construction, including highways, public buildings, hospitals in rural districts, reforestation, flood control projects and water power conservation developments. It would reflect its good effect on other lines of industry, too.

RE-ESTABLISH FARMERS

What we need also is an appropriation of sufficient money for loans to re-establish the farmers, who are the backbone of any free nation.

To aid in financing both these pieces of relief, money should be raised by the increase, up to 60 per cent, of surtaxes on large incomes effective on incomes for 1931, by immediate raising of federal inheritance taxes on large estates up to 70 per cent, and by levying of a large gift tax to prevent the evasion of inheritance taxes, an evil now so flagrantly practised.

We need an immediate remedy for the economic and governmental system which permits this land of ours, rich in gold and farm and factory products, to have its channels choked with an undistributed surplus of these commodities.

Stock Exchange's Bulletin Larger

The New York Stock Exchange monthly statistical bulletin, beginning with this month's issue has been enlarged to 20 pages from 16, making possible inclusion of new tables and charts and permitting detailed expansion of some statistical series. New material includes a table and chart of several new series of foreign security price indices, expansion of detailed compilations of public security offerings and number of non-member correspondents of New York Stock Exchange firms.

The January issue contains complete short interest statistical totals for 1931, from May 25 to Dec. 31. It shows there were 1347 branch offices Jan. 1, against 1352 Dec. 1 and 1493 Jan. 1, 1931. There were 3468 non-member correspondents, while the total of non-member correspondents' offices, including main and branch offices, was 3609.

Financial News, Stocks, Bonds and Comment

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That conservative interests, who identified themselves with the bull side at the first of the month, do not consider the reaction as anything more than a technical shake-out of weakly held longs. As a matter of fact, they will adhere to this view just as long as the 76 level, on the Dow Jones industrial average, remains inviolate.

U. S. Steel

The U. S. Steel meeting is occupying the attention of the dividend forecasters. In general all advance reports can be put down as guess. About the only reasonable course at this time, is to analyze the factors which are commonly thought to dictate the policy of the corporation's finance board. It is said by those who are skilled at interpreting conditions within the steel industry that the demand by motor manufacturers will practically dictate the dividend action. General Motors has placed its order. This leaves Chrysler and Ford the major makers to be heard from.

Estimating the requirements of the latter two companies is also largely guesswork. That the steel industry expects orders of some size is apparently being reflected in a better demand for scrap. Thus it must be concluded that tips on the rate are, as guesses, unreliable and market commitments had best be predicated on tape action for the present.

Motors

Because the motors did not have an old-time splurge during show week some traders think they see an open invitation to short the group. That is, perhaps, the one trouble. The invitation seems to be too obvious. Those who feel there is no justification for following the long side should at least examine the events that are causing constructive operations. As for the motor show, it undoubtedly surprised the most optimistic dealers. The results are naturally hard to translate into stock prices when skepticism is the watchword of the financial community.

Again, one of the arguments used by bears on the motors is the new Ford. This is being overplayed in the opinion of responsible observers. They say the new Ford "eight" will be in the measure of a supplementary offering. It will, for the near future, be an experiment in diversifying what has been a one-car line.

Boardroom Briefs

Steel, on the charts, seems headed for the 50-52 area . . . Stock bought on the suggestion of this column in the 35-36 area can be disposed of on a scale as the lower figure is reached . . Last Thursday, as we advised here, was the day to get out of the rails . . . The short tips heard now are based on the reasons given them and it seems they now can be passed by . . . Lambert is expected to show about $8.20 a share . . . Safeway is said to have made in the vicinity of $8 for 1931 . . . The three horsemen, Cutten, Livermore and Howell are rumored to be the motive power in the grain market . . . This in spite of the fact New York brokerage circles are credited as the buyers.

Chemical Bank & Trust is well liked by unlisted brokers. They point to the $2.43 earned per share and the book value of $31.31. The latter figure will be augmented by the absorption of the Chemical Securities Company.

Duke-Price Power Operating Net Up

Duke-Price Power Company, Ltd., controlled by Aluminum, Ltd., preliminary report for 1931 shows gross operating revenues of $4,275,000 for 1931 (December estimated), against $4,365,202 for 1930, and net operating revenue of $3,645,000, against $3,635,407. Other income will total $40,300 for 1931, against $57,081 for 1930, while interest charges will show a marked reduction to $2,454,000, from the total of $2,518,895 for the previous year.

Net income for 1931 before depreciation, will total $1,231,000, and a reserve of $650,000 is set up for depreciation, as against net before depreciation, of $1,173,592 and depreciation reserves of $581,402 for the previous period.

Alloy Steel Output 46 P. C. Below 1930

Returns from nine steel producers making alloy steel, including two of the largest units of all show for 1931 rolled alloy steel amounting to 423,451 gross tons. Included in this is a small amount of forgings.

All figures are on the basis of production in 11 months or more with an estimate for at least a portion of December. The total reported 46 per cent below that reported a year ago.

Lake Superior Iron Ore Consuming Off

Washington, Jan. 19—Lake Superior iron ore consumed by furnaces in December totaled 1,229,840 tons, as against 2,338,824 in December, 1930. For the year 1931 there were consumed 24,114,753 tons, as against 45,192,180 in 1930.

Ore on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie docks on January 1, 1932, amounted to 38,010,275 tons, as against 38,948,675 tons on the same date a year ago.

COPPER AND OIL TARIFF TALK IS REVIVED

By FRANK H. MELOON

Talk of a tariff to protect the American copper and oil industries is being revived. Effect of a protective tariff on these commodities would undoubtedly be beneficial to producers, according to State St. opinion. A while ago copper leaders were reported to have despaired of getting any such action because of the danger of opening up the entire tariff question for general tinkering. With copper still selling around its record low and oil products doing little better besides being at the mercy of tax hunting politicians, remedial measures meet with serious consideration.

Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc., of which E. L. Ryerson, Jr., is president, inform me they have purchased the stock and good will of the steel department of H. D. Taylor & Co. of Buffalo, N. Y. The Ryerson company has plants in Boston and other leading cities. It has been specializing in distribution of finished steel products for 90 years.

News item says the Mason Mfg. Co. of South Paris, Me., merges with Morton E. Converse & Co., Winchendon, into a $1,000,000 concern. It took the "merger era" a long time to unite, financially, the "toy capitals" of the Pine Tree and the Bay State. Visiting the famous little American Paris a year or so ago, we found a blacksmith seemingly as busy as in the days when they talked about hitching "Old Dobbin to the shay."

• • •

Reminding one of Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. enterprise, Richmond, Va., has been selling "Ride-All-Week" family tickets good on its car lines for 75 cents. Similar tickets on Washington buses have been sold at $1.25.

• • •

"The 'little fellows' lost $317,000,000 in speculative activity during 1931, a financial item says. We suppose the big fellows, like the big fish, got away with hook, line and sinker."

• • •

The view quoted above is rather commonly held, but the people who think that might be surprised to know the truth. The "big fellows" were the ones who had little opportunity to "get out" when stocks were high. Only the big bears made much money in the debacle, and most of them not so much as popularly supposed. Brokers who used to come into State st. in 1929 with "swell" cars and their own chauffeurs now use Mr. Dana's electrically-operated system.

• • •

That 1932 holds a promising sales outlook is the belief expressed to us by Sidney B. Rogal and George Huber, executives of the Morgan Furniture Co., returning from the world's largest furniture exposition held in Chicago. This belief is based in part on exceedingly low existing inventories and partly on the manufacturers' current low production costs.

• • •

Mr. Rogal, who is Morgan's vice-president, explains:

"Styles in furniture change from year to year; therefore we send our buyers to Chicago to choose our furniture from the largest selection available anywhere, and also to learn the latest decorative schemes. The semi-annual exhibitions in Chicago hold the same position in the furniture world that the Paris openings hold in the field of wearing apparel."

Hudson Sales at Show Are Larger

New York, Jan. 19—Floor sales of Hudson and Essex cars at the automobile show were between 400 per cent and 500 per cent greater than at last year's show.

Pres. Cole of Hudson Motor Car Co. of New York, distributors in the metropolitan area, said 56 Hudson and Essex cars had been sold at the show, against only 14 during the entire show a year ago. He said many purchases, negotiations for which were begun at the show, were closed over the week-end, and the final show total probably would reach 100 or more.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

EYES in Wall St. were more than ever turned toward the Chicago grain pits today, after two successive sessions of rapidly soaring wheat prices. While some think the stock market's action swings the grain market, others hold to the opinion that the action of grains is the most powerful factor to influence stocks at the moment.

Freight Loading Estimates Given

Estimates in the financial district are that the freight loadings for the week ended Jan. 9 are likely to show an increase of 75,000 or more cars over the total of 803,325 reported for the preceding seven days, which included New Year's day.

Traders Switch Frequently

Emphatic statements are heard that important traders who took part in the upturn in the market recently switched to the selling side again last Friday. Such action would not be unusual. These operators frequently change their attitude toward the market. When there is evidence of more resistance to advances they try the short side of the market for a turn. Similarly, if opposition to selling becomes too persistent these same traders adopt the long side.

U. S. Steel's Fourth Quarter

Earnings of United States Steel for the final quarter of last year will be made public after the close of business next Tuesday, and Wall Street will be waiting for the figures on the theory that this stock can be one of the leaders in either direction. The results should be comparatively unfavorable because steel production declined sharply during the period covered. Nevertheless, those who have been selling the stock in anticipation of a poor report have continued to meet difficulties in borrowing the shares for deliveries and at the same time have been paying quite a large premium. Brokers continue to report that the stock is difficult to borrow.

Chesapeake & Ohio Meets With Favor

Although there have been times recently when selling has been quite extensive in Chesapeake & Ohio, the stock continues to be one of the favorites among traders. It is contended that the road would gain the most in earning power under the proposed four-party rail merger plan.

Consolidated Gas Outlook

While Consolidated Gas does not publish interim reports there have been estimates in conservative circles recently that the company will show nearly $5 a share for last year, which would leave a comfortable margin over the current dividend rate of $4 a share.

Because of the company's position in its territory the outlook is viewed by many as decidedly encouraging. In the past the growth of earnings had been quite consistent. One of the factors which has brought outside buying into the stock at times recently has been the comparatively good yield which has been obtainable at prevailing quotations.

United Fruit's Financial Position

The report of United Fruit Co. for 1931, showing reduced earning power, but the maintenance of a strong financial position, was in line with anticipations, and is considered about typical of what many other concerns will disclose. Cash holdings of the company increased to above $26,000,000 from below $23,000,000 and while share earnings of $2.31 fell short of covering dividends, it is pointed out that appropriations for depreciation were equal to $4.53 a share last year. It is significant that Wall Street showed more interest in the company's balance sheet than in the income report.

Wage Delay Action Slows Rail Shares

Interests which counted heavily on a quick rail wage decision at the Chicago meetings are beginning to realize the fallacy of their judgment. Delay in arriving at a satisfactory agreement has shaken this early confidence somewhat and is inducing quiet selling of a relatively important character in certain rail shares.

Relief Will Come From Cost Savings

This pressure is coming from sources which fully realize that the railroads can accomplish little in the way of restoring their normal credit without more drastic measures of economies than those already proposed or instituted. The various governmental remedies now taking shape will, of course, aid in this direction, but the more important relief, according to competent authorities, must come from actual saving in costs.

Corn Products Demand Viewed

Await Statistics On Copper Metal

Statistics giving the position of the copper metal industry at the end of last year are due shortly. The figures for the 12 months are expected to make an unfavorable showing, but those for December will probably show only nominal effect of the curtailment program recently agreed upon between American and foreign producers. However, trade interests are taking a more hopeful view of the situation because recent financial developments have been construed in the light of an inflationary program.

General Motor's Earnings Estimated

Late gossip is to the effect that General Motors' annual report, expected early in February, will show earnings of approximately $2.15 a share on the common stock.

Freeport Texas Earns Dividend

Speculative demand for Freeport Texas is based on the exceptional high yield on the present $3 dividend and on preliminary estimates that the payment was earned by a small margin in 1931. According to reliable forecasts, the company will report net equal to $3.15 a share with quick assets almost equivalent to the current market price of the stock. The figures are expected to show cash around $2,000,000 after an expenditure of approximately $1,000,000 for development of the company's Cuban manganese property.

Why Central Has "Roof of Offerings"

Informed interests recognize that no sustained upward movement is likely in New York Central until the dividend policy is officially settled by directors. The huge holdings of the fixed investment trusts hang over the market as a possible source of offerings should the dividend definitely be omitted.

Stockholders, of course, are not receiving dividends but some of the legal rules governing some of the fixed trusts permit them to hold on to their stocks until it is officially admitted no more payments of dividend will be made.

New Haven a Favored Rail

Tightening Hold On "Shoe" Shorts

In an attempt to force covering by shorts in International Shoe, the sponsors for the issue increased the premium for borrowing the stock to ¼. If the short interest is the major basis for advancing the stock the sponsors will wind up in the usual fashion, judging by precedent. They may succeed in squeezing the shorts, but that might be at the expense of sacrificing whatever friendly feeling might exist elsewhere toward the stock, and making the market suspicious of it.

GEN. ELECTRIC POSITION GOOD

Detailed report of General Electric for the 1931 year will be issued in March. It is expected to show around $1.25 to $1.30 a share on the 28,845,927 shares of stock. For the nine months to September 30 the company earned $1.07 a share of which 32 cents was contributed by the third quarter.

With a $12,000,000 decline in orders in the fourth quarter as compared with the third, it is reasonable to suppose that net for the final three months will reveal a corresponding reduction.

If final 1931 figures should show $1.30 a share earned on General Electric common it will mean that 30 cents of the $1.60 dividend will have been paid out of surplus.

Dupont Net Is Set at $4.29 a Share

Official estimate of earnings of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company for the year of 1931, according to preliminary figures, show $4.29 a share on 11,008,512 average shares outstanding. This compares with $4.67 a share for the year of 1930, on 10,783,555 average shares then outstanding.

The figure for 1930 includes 28 cents a share, representing an extra dividend received from General Motors Corporation. Both figures include duPont Company's equity in undivided profits or losses of controlled companies not consolidated.

Exports of German Metals Show Drop

Washington, Jan. 19—For the first time in several months, German exports of iron and steel products recorded a decreased tonnage during November, as compared with that for the preceding month. November imports, on the other hand, recorded a slight gain, as compared to those for October, the total receipts for the month (53,031 metric tons) having been 2978 tons greater than the 50,053 tons received during the preceding month.

Kelvinator Corp. to Retire Funded Debt

At the annual stockholders' meeting of Kelvinator Corp. a resolution was passed recommended to directors that balance of company's funded debt, which on September 30, 1931, was $1,073,000, be retired. Directors were re-elected.

STOCK PRICES MOSTLY OFF IN BOSTON

Stock prices were mostly lower in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with changes, for the most part, limited to a narrow range. Rail issues were soft, with Atchison and Pennsylvania showing fractional recessions. Boston & Albany receded a point to 124.

Employers Group, American Telephone and Gillette were at fractionally higher levels. American Woolen preferred lowered a minor fraction to 20¼. New England Equity dropped ¼ to 17½.

Increased consumption of New England products by New Englanders is being stimulated this week by a special sale in all 2600 First National Stores. Sixty items are being featured and, in addition the several score other New England products carried regularly in stock will be pushed in every store.

The sale directs attention to the quality of New England products, citing several which have been on the market over a century. This is the first system-wide special sale devoted to products of New England. It will probably become a regular merchandising event, states the announcement.

"The shortest possible route between producer and consumer is the goal of efficient distribution," declares Augustus F. Goodwin, chairman of the board, commenting on the sale. "The chain store is putting large quantities of commodities into quick consumption economically, cutting duplications of effort and delay. First National Stores, Inc., is New England born and raised. We always have tried to give special consideration to New England products where other factors have been equal. This is evidenced in our present purchase of New England farm and factory products at the rate of over 22½ million dollars annually. We feel that a special sale in 2600 stores which directs the consumer's favorable attention to 'home' products should have a stimulating effect on New England business. The large orders for goods needed for the special sale will give added employment in many New England cities and towns and should make a contribution to better business in New England."

Peoples Gas Profit Equals $4.09 Share

New York, Jan. 19—People's Gas Light & Coke Co. and subsidiaries for the quarter ended December 31, 1931, report earnings equaled $4.09 a share on 690,000 shares, as compared with $1.73 on the 689,005 shares in the preceding quarter and $3.2 a share on 625,400 shares in the like 1930 quarter.

For the year ended December 31 the company earned $10.95 a share, as compared with $11.50 in 1930.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

The sharply diverse movements of stocks and commodities indicates clearly the market is now facing a stern test of its position, the outcome of which will have considerable effect on the attitude of investors and traders over the longer pull. The mere fact the stock list is now in the throes of a reaction is not particularly significant, since a setback on technical grounds alone was about due.

Rail Selling

The rather abrupt weakness in the rails may also be discounted to a certain extent, since selling here was due almost entirely to the disappointing developments at the wage conference, and therefore, by the same token the carrier shares could readily rebound were news on the controversy to take a favorable turn.

Even so conservative an authority as Standard Statistics has adopted a more favorable attitude toward the market, pointing out that with the approaching enactment of the reconstruction finance corporation law and the action of the New York Federal Reserve Bank in reducing its buying rate on acceptances, it is evident a concerted and powerful effort is being launched to halt deflation.

Bank Credit

It goes on to say that always in the past a sizeable expansion in the volume of bank credit outstanding has been accompanied by the following: First, rising commodity prices; second, some stimulation in the tempo of general business activity, and third, rising prices for securities.

The industries most favored and the most attractive issues in those groups, are listed as follows:

Automobiles: General Motors, Nash, Packard and Chrysler.

Chemicals: Air Reduction, Dupont, Union Carbide and Allied Chemical. Foods: Hershey, Standard Brands, Corn Products, General Foods and National Biscuit.

Railroads: Atchison, Norfolk & Western, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

Tobaccos, utilities, merchandising, bank stocks, can companies and insurance issues are other groups favored.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Edward B. Bacon Grain Co.— Nothing further apeared in the news regarding the rumors in circulation Saturday as to the formation of a pool to lift wheat. It was thought, therefore, chief impetus to prevailing movement rested in belief federal reserve effort to check further deflation was making itself felt in commodities.

D. M. Collins & Co.—Commitments should be carefully protected with stops, until definite constructive news appear.

Whitney & Edwell—Annual reports and possible dividend reductions as well as foreign developments are factors that will have to be borne in mind in the days and weeks immediately ahead.

Russell, Miller & Co.—We feel that both the time element and the action of the market itself are beginning to point somewhat in the direction of supporting the theory that the rally has made its top and that we may be entering a trading area in which, of course, it will always be possible for stocks to again bump up around their former rally highs.

I. B. M. Maintains Earnings Increase

With earnings for 1931 reaching the highest total yet recorded by International Business Machines Corporation, Thomas J. Watson, president, stated the company has maintained a 10-year record of unbroken increase in earnings. Also, he declared, less than one-fifth of their business last year came from foreign countries.

Procter & Gamble Profit $9,299,156

Net earnings of the Procter & Gamble Company and subsidiary companies for the six months' period from July 1 to December 31, 1931, amounted to $9,299,156, the company announced yesterday.

Earnings are after all reserves and charges for depreciation, losses, taxes, advertising and special ducted.

Central of Georgia Will Show Deficit

New York, Jan. 19—Central of Georgia Railway will show a deficit after charges of about $50,000 for 1931, according to H. D. Pollard, president.

For the year 1930 the road showed a net income of $1,407,764 after taxes and charges, equal to $7.03 a share on 200,000 shares.

STOCKS FIRM AFTER MAKING EASY START

New York, Jan. 19—Important shares exhibited a firm tone as trading progressed on the New York Stock Exchanges today after making an easy start. U. S. Steel changed hands mostly at minor fractional recessions from Monday's close.

Alaska Juneau Gold was again an upside feature. A quick turnover of around 25,000 shares moved the issue up fractionally.

AUBURN UP AGAIN

Setbacks of a point or so were registered by Union Pacific, Western Union, Baltimore & Ohio, Kress & Co., Pacific Gas & Electric, General Electric and City Ice & Fuel.

Beechnut was up a point. Homestake Mining gained more than a point. J. I. Case rose over a point before encountering profit-taking.

Further selling of the dollar in small volume by European institutions was reported in the foreign exchange market. While this movement has been attributed to an erroneous belief in Europe that American plans for reconstruction call for inflation, bankers here observed that France is liquidating some foreign balances to lighten her burden caused by the break in sterling.

STERLING IS LOWER

France, it was recalled, has guaranteed repayment to the Bank of France for its losses caused by the removal of sterling from the gold standard.

The pound was down 2½ cents to $3.45 for cables. The French franc and the Holland guilder, which are now at the "gold point," maing it practicable to ship American gold to those countries, were steady.

Weely Federal Reserve report of member banks showed no change in deflation trend. Loans and investments declined $92,000,000; time and demand deposits were down $149,000,000 and government deposits dropped $31,000,000. However, the nation's present "anti-deflation campaign" received further impetus in action of the Senate to hasten the progress of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. bill.

Refusal of the Lackawanna Railroad to accept an offer for a 10 per cent cut from its employes was interpreted as a desire by railroads to await the decision of the present wage conference before making new moves.

BOND MARKET IS IRREGULAR

Better support was accorded to the rail group, although this section was not without its weak spots. Missouri Pacific 5s tumbled almost 3 points to 53¼, while Nickel plate 4½s were off 1¼ points at 30; Frisco 4s were off ½ at 28½; Frisco 4½s were down 1 at 22 and Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s were off ¾ at 51¼.

The foreigns averaged a share lower, with European government bonds supported on a close scale-down basis. The German 5½s were firm with a fractional upturn to 36, although the German 7s slipped ½ point to 59½. United Kingdom 5½s fell off ½ point to 32⅞.

In the South American group, weakness cropped up in the Province of Buenos Ayres 6½s, which dipped almost 2 points to 30½, and the Buenos Ayres 6s, which dipped a point to 30½.

U. S. Government obligations showed little important change from previous closings, with Liberty 3½s quoted at 94.24, Liberty 1st 4¼s at 98.9, Liberty 4th 4¼s at 99.2, Treasury 4¼s at 101.8, Treasury 4s at 97, Treasury 3¾s at 91.20, Treasury 3⅜s of '47 at 90, Treasury 3⅜s of '41 at 90.20, Treasury 3⅜s of '40 at 90.24, Treasury 3⅛s at 85.16, and Treasury 3s at 85.

Long-Term Program Seen Need for Oil

Board of directors of the American Petroleum Institute met in a discussion of producing and refining problems. No action, however, was taken. It was generally agreed, among the 33 directors assembled, that "overproduction was in no sense temporary and that what the industry needed was a long-term program designed to conserve petroleum."

President Amos L. Beatty was authorized to reply to the new request from the Association of Rumanian Petroleum Industrialists for an international conference seeking agreement on curtailment of crude production.

WILL PAY LESS

R. G. Brighton—Among stocks I own are 30 shares Columbian Carbon which shows me quite a loss. What is your opinion of it?

Ans.—You are still getting an income from Columbian Carbon, though commencing February 1 the annual basis will be $3 a share, contrasted with the $4 rate inaugurated November 2, 1931, as a reduction from $5 paid from February 1, 1930. Though the past record was an exceptionally good one, reduced sales on carbon black resulting from inactivity of the rubber industry and severe breaks in price of gasoline caused a 31 per cent decrease in 1930 net income from 1929. Net of $5.04 a share contrasted with $7.83 in 1929. Net for nine months ended September 30, 1931, was $2.61 a share, compared with $4 in corresponding period of 1930.

90 P. C. of World Business Transacted on Credit

By W. S. COUSINS

New York, Jan. 19 (INS)—Ninety per cent of the business of the world is transacted on credit, and it is through the abuse of credit that our real problems are developed, said Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, to International News Service today.

To improve banking and credit conditions generally, and to ward off a large volume of commercial failures in 1932, are the main objectives of the President and his advisors in pushing their reconstruction financing program through Congress. If successfully operated, this new government agency may furnish valuable aid to many industrial companies in tiding them over a critical period.

"The aim and object of all credit management," said Heimann, "should be the retention of worthy, honest and capable men in business. Many splendid businesses have had their liquidity destroyed through no fault of their own, as for instance, in bank failures. They are particularly deserving of consideration at this time.

• • •

"It is probable that there will be an increase in commercial failures during the early part of 1932. Some of these may be avoidable. At present many commercial organizations that are heavily in debt are being accorded a measure of forbearance due to abnormal credit and business conditions. Frozen accounts cannot be immediately liquidated with the first return of general economic improvement.

"If the concern that is heavily in debt was deserving of the forbearance extended it during the trying period, it would seem much more constructive to continue extending a helpful hand a few additional months in order that the business might be kept alive."

• • •

Heimann and other credit experts commend the action of the State Bank Supervisors and the Comptroller of the Currency in using their discretionary powers in appraising values of bonds held in their portfolios. These bonds according to Heimann have been selling at ridiculously low prices and at quotations in no wise reflecting sound market values.

This policy, he declared, does not suggest unsound banking, but rather the avoidance of a ruthless policy with respect to the depreciation of sound bonds and the calling of loans.

• • •

"At no time in the world's history," said Heimann, "were world problems so dramatically presented as in recent months. This problem of the world is in reality the problem of credit. For this reason it behooves every individual, all industries and governments to treat credit with the same measure of care that is excised with money."

During the last week reserve banks have been called in to support the anti-deflation campaign, and by lowering their buying rates on bankers' acceptances have shown their willingness to inject a needed volume of "cheap credit" into the commercial markets. The reserve banks have close to two billion dollars in unutilized credit, which, under proper conditions, should certainly be put to work in a constructive manner.

In addition, the Reconstruction Financing Corp. will be empowered to corral two billions through the issuance of debentures with government backing. This should be sufficient to tide over the critical period, and, if not, there are other avenues of additional credit supplies.

HOME LIFE HAS ASSETS GAIN

An increase of more than $3,500,000 in assets, nearly $100,000 in unassigned surplus, $200,000 in reserve for security fluctuations, nearly $500,000 in premium income and $4,400,00 in insurance in force is shown i nthe 72nd annual statement of the Home ife Insurance Co. of New York, given out today by Ethelbert Ide Low, chairman of the board.

According to the statement, total admitted assets of the company on December 31, 1931, amounted to $79,149,251, compared with $75,573,884 in the previous annual statement . The classification of assets shows only $17,742 in real estate holdings acquired under foreclosure compared with $13,558 a year ago, an increase of only $4,200 in the year. Cash in hand is now $992,268, compared with $318,331 a year ago.

Policy reserves and funds increased during the year from $67,221,875 to $70,206,541, a gain of over $3,000,000. The reserve set aside for security fluctuations is $600,000, covering the difference between values of preferred and common stocks on the basis specified by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners and actual market values of December 31, 1931.

The total insurance in force at the end of the year, $404,490,591, is a gain of $4,400,000 over that in force at the end of the previous year, $400,086,306. Total premium income last year was $11,962,498, a gain of nearly $500,000 over the previous year.

North American to Spend $19,000,000

Frank L. Dame, president of the North American Company, announced that subsidiary company construction budgets for 1932 total $19,000,000 for "work planned for completion." Last year such expenditures totaled $40,000,000, and in 1930, $70,000,000. Mr. Dame added:

"The North American Company and subsidiaries are in excellent financial position. Under the company's common stock dividend policy our earnings are conserved, and together with the liberal provision for reserves will provide the source from which the construction expenditure will be made. Total maturities for the year not already brought in and held in the treasury amount to less than $9,000,000."

Ends Stomach Gas Pain Quick

"I've suffered my last spell of sour stomach," says H. K. Wilson, Chicago. "I found that by taking ACIDINE three or four nights a week, I never have that uncertain feeling whether my meals are going to agree with me, or make me miserable from excessive acid and gas."

End gas, sourness, heartburn, dizziness, sleeplessness, headache resulting from acidity. Maker guarantees ACIDINE ends stomach trouble or money back. All druggists have ACIDINE.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect, 15c, 30c, 60c.

The Extra Cough Help Extra In Power And Price

Creomulsion is a super-help for coughs and colds. It is for deep coughs where you dare not risk a weak help. Seven major helps are embodied in it, including the best known to medical science.

The creosote is blended, emulsified and palatable. It is to soothe the membranes and combat the germs. It presents the world's best help for coughs of this kind in a pleasant form.

These are white pine tar, wild cherry bark, menthol, ipecac, etc. All the greatest helps in one, but with no narcotic. Despite all its power and efficiency, it is harmless to a child.

Some coughs call for one help, some another. Nobody can tell. So we combine the best in Creomulsion to be safe.

It may be too good for your cough. A lesser help might serve. But is it wise to take the risk when coughs are danger signals? Anyway, a cough or a cold which hangs on calls for this super-help. Do the best men know, to be sure.

Now two sizes 60c—$1.25.

GIBBONS ON AIR TOMORROW

Japanese Army Head to Face Microphone

By N. F. T.

Floyd Gibbons, with his characteristic flare for the unusual, is no doubt largely responsible for the big effort being made by NBC tomorrow night. Microphones in Mukden, Manchuria, will bring the first radio broadcast ever transmitted from the actual scene of hostilities in an area of war.

Due to commercial commitments and previous time allotments, WBZ of Boston will not carry the program through this section. Those who might like to get a word picture of far east fighting, may do so by tuning in WJZ of New York, direct.

• • •

COMMANDER SPEAKS

Japans' Manchurian field marshal Gen. Shigeru Honjo, will be presented on the air by Gibbons, who has definitely confirmed all arrangements for the project. A full half hour is reserved for the offering, contact by short wave being made from 7:15 to 7:45.

• • •

In all seriousness, yet not without a touch of humor, is the assurance Gibbons has given NBC that the general will "positively broadcast." Military operations may even be halted for a time, in order that the program shall reach these shores, says Floyd.

• • •

Mayor Curley's weekly "mike" visit from City Hall was suddenly shifted by WAAB yesterday. His Honor is being heard now on Mondays at 8 p. m. instead of Tuesdays.

Board operators, those vigilant chaps who faithfully attend control apparatus for Yankee Network stations, held a rousing get-together on Saturday night. All of the 25 present claim they saw the sunrise Sunday. Irving Robinson and Prof. Paul De Mars, technical chieftains, presided during the doings. Roast turkey was served as fodder. It all happened at Squantum, beneath that tall steel transmitting tower.

• • •

Three stalwarts of the musical realm are still showing nothing but broad backs to broadcasting offers proffered by American radio rajahs. This trio consists of Kreisler, Paderewski and Rachmaninoff.

• • •

• • •

Mr. Husing moves in a Bon-Ton circle that evening. He will have to be particularly choosy about his selection of words.

• • •

LOCAL LATHER

No more heard lately about WNAC lads challenging WBZ boys for a bowling title . . . Maybe the weather hushed such talk . . . Sears-Roebuck starts their 1932 air season with a program through WBZ tomorrow night, 7:30 to 7:45 . . . Remember reading here how George Thompkins, fiddle man and singer with Joe Smith's Le Paradis musickers, bought a bassinet around Xmas time? Well, it's a boy according to our spy, who is quite close to the big chief of all storks . . . Arrival goes down in history as Sat. Jan. 16th . . . Nothing will quiet the increasing gossip indicating Joe Solomon's Cocoanut Grove group to be the next Boston outfit selected for work with Walter (Okay) Winchell . . . One well wisher has advised Micky Alpert to abandon his idea about developing amateurs, likewise avoiding the "audition" gag . . . Said pal of the young maestro suggests there are enough high hopes for radio fame being blasted as it is, to kindle more might justly be considered cruel . . . Some "goof" hereabouts is writing asinine, anonymous letters on Muncie, Indiana, hotel stationery, signing himself, "John Public." Quick, Superintendent Crowley, your best man!

PERSONALITIES ON THE AIR

Here's how: Radios are being placed in schools for educational purposes.

So apply the old maxim of the child who burns himself on the stove, and ever after gives the heater the cold eye.

The current studying generation, like the past, doesn't radiate at the thought of school. And with radio as an educational tool—

CANTOR AND JESSEL IN JOINT PROGRAM

—Headline on NBC press release.

Ah, the boys have a new sponsor. Or have they turned contortionists?

Another strip across a N. J. paper was this:

STREET SINGER ARRESTED

And was the CBS artist's ma scared when she saw that . . . until she read on and found the victim an organ grinder.

WNAC AN'NCERS have been permitted to give their names at the end of a b'dcast, but one who didn't was the boy who handled the Sun. Vagabonds p'gram featuring Doreen Glover and the Tipplers. When Doreen had finished he said, "That was Eleanor Talcott."

HELEN MORGAN does a WNAC turn at 8:45 this eve. . . WEEI's Lew Conrad is WBZed at 7:30 this eve. as musical part of an English high school alumni p'gram. Speakers include Brig.-Gen. Cole, Judge A. K. Cohen, Clarence Carter and Headmaster Walter Downey . . . Evangeline Adams' ex-sponsor will soon be back on CBS . . . The gum king vehemently insists Myrt and Marge are NOT going off the air.

LUCILLE WALL, the Love Story Girl, returns to the air January 25, when she is WEEI-ed in an "Arabian Desert" series. Arabesque please note . . . NBC is doing its all to make Jane Froman a star . . . WBZ and WNAC swapped Christmas cards, but still they merrily filch each other's sponsors . . . Ray Knight will take on another nut p'gram in addition to KUKU . . . Kate Smith will tour the country in vaudeville . . . WEEI's Lou Whitcomb is in demand at his station as a tom-tom player . . . Buddy Rogers may supplant Ross Gorman as Biltmore maestro . . . Meyer Davis is writing a book on orch. leading . . . When the Real Folks switched to CBS they had to leave Ed Whitney behind. He's a NBC production man . . . Ranny Weeks has been sought and captured for the M. I. T. Junior Prom January 18 . . . Mickey Alpert, Cliff O'Rourke and Carl Moore are scheduled for Loew's Orpheum next wk. . . . Doreen Glover graces the Sun. WNAC Pageant p'gram. What will that feature do when it runs out of lady guest artists?

Mrs. J. Beaupre, 11 Hammatt Rd., Roslindale, Mass., says: "For more than six years anything I ate caused so much pain that I feared to eat. The pain was in my stomach, side and back. My heart would flutter and I would be nauseated. My physician told me that an operation was necessary to relieve the pain. I did not want an operation. A friend spoke highly of Dr. Walsh and took me to his office. I am so pleased with the result of Dr. Walsh's treatment of my case that I gladly consent to the publication of my experience that others who suffer as I did may know where to go for help." Mr. Baker Rules Himself Out of the Presidency

Newton D. Baker is not satisfied with the provisional membership in the League of Nations for the United States to which President Hoover is committed by theory and practice in complete defiance of the will of the American people.

Mr. Baker urges, in a letter to the annual convention of the League of Nations Association, that the United States enter the League "as a member on a one hundred per cent basis" as a means of "protecting American interests."

Mr. Baker has not changed his convictions; he has only changed his argument.

Twelve years ago, eight years ago, and four years ago Mr. Baker urged the United States to enter the League of Nations to keep faith with the world.

Now Mr. Baker urges the United States to enter the League of Nations in self-defense against the world.

Having failed to shame his fellow Americans into the League, Mr. Baker is trying to frighten them into the League.

What the American people have for twelve years refused to do for love of foreign nations, Mr. Baker now bids them do in fear of foreign nations.

But at least Mr. Baker tells the country where he stands in regard to the League of Nations as a candidate for the presidency.

To this extent Mr. Baker differs from the other internationalists who are his rival candidates for President—Mr. Hoover, Mr. Young, Governor Ritchie, Governor Roosevelt, et al.

All these other internationalists have committed themselves in the past to the same support of American membership in the League which Mr. Baker still avows.

Unlike Mr. Baker, however, Mr. Hoover and the other internationalists who are running for President, either refuse to discuss their league commitments at all, or advocate sneaking into the League by the trap-door of its court or the side-door of provisional membership.

It will make little difference in the long run whether this country enters the League by the Baker route, or by the Hoover-Young-Ritchie-Roosevelt route.

All these routes lead toward the same goal—involvement of the United States in all the political broils of Europe.

And in every presidential election and in many senatorial elections for the last twelve years the people of the United States have voted by overwhelming majorities to steer clear of European political broils by keeping out of the League of Nations.

But they must guard themselves against being lured into the League by a presidential candidate who tries to blindfold them.

Mr. Baker's latest declaration in favor of one hundred per cent American membership in the League serves the useful purpose of keeping him out of the presidency.

It will serve another useful purpose if it "smokes outs" the other internationalists who are running for President and trying to hide from the American people the fact that Mr. Baker's goal is their goal—entanglement of the United States in Europe's political broils by affiliation with the League of Nations.

Two-Thirds Rule 'Bad,' Abrogate It Now!

"The two-thirds rule is bad and should be abolished," is a statement which Jouett Shouse of the Democratic national committee is reported to have made in Chicago.

He expressed the opinion, however, that it would not be done at this time, indicating that the approaching national convention of the party would abide by the rule which he does not hesitate to denounce.

Mr. Shouse was in Chicago to attend one of the numerous "victory dinners," held simultaneously throughout the country, and designed by the Democratic party as the inauguration of its national campaign.

With an inconsistency of which only a "Hee Haw" party would be capable, Mr. Shouse EXPECTS TO RIDE TO VICTORY ON A RULE THAT HAS ALMOST INVARIABLY SPELLED PARTY DEFEAT.

The two-thirds rule has been truthfully described as "a canon of defeat." It is relied on by the "field" of favorite sons and dark horses to defeat the wishes of the majority of the party, and to stop the candidate who is the manifest choice of the party.

The processes by which this result is reached are fatal to party success. They widen every rift and embitter every rivalry. When the convention is finally bludgeoned into an agreement upon a candidate under the operation of this baleful rule, its action is without any call to the sportsmanship and fair play, so characteristic of American, which could otherwise be relied on to promptly heal the discords of the convention struggle, and rally the party to a loyal acceptance of the majority's action.

The convention disperses with the feeling that sinister and sub-surface forces have defeated the party's will. The lesions of the nominating contest broaden and deepen. Apathy succeeds to enthusiasm, indifference to confidence, and the only note of "victory" thereafter heard is the stereotyped and laughed-at prediction of success from the Democratic chairman on the eve of election day's usual defeat.

IF THE RULE IS BAD, and we have Mr. Shouse's word for it, WHY IN THE NAME OF ALL THAT IS JUST, REASONABLE AND ENLIGHTENED IN PARTY MANAGEMENT SHOULD IT NOT BE ABROGATED NOW?

No single action that the party could take would so heighten its prospects of success, in this year so bright with hope.

Plays and Players

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—In the majority of theaters of late a closing notice is posted on the call board opening nights. This dodges the two-week notice with pay for players. If the show takes on before the end of the week and promises continuance the notice is removed.

Thus producers shear productions of the gambler's chance. More than half the legitimate theaters have been dark all season. Some 100 productions have lasted only a week and at least 20 have folded after the first performance. Cain is planning to build a bigger theatrical warehouse.

Jed Harris and Chester Erskin, "wonder kiddies," who lit several Rialto witch-fires of illusion, are reported treking to Hollywood. The Shuberts and Al Woods with a half dozen other independent impresarios have emerged from bankruptcy baths And others are poised for a similar dive.

While the cry is the talkies have ruined the legitimate, the truth is talkies have fared no better. The best analysis is that the theater has suffered along with every other endeavor in the whirlwind of the depression.

At no time in the history of the Rialto has it presented such a forlorn front. An army of capable performers—many stars of great magnitude—have had no engagements for two years. Scores have drifted from fine apartments to shabby rooming houses.

So desperate were conditions recent that the cheaper vaudeville houses were paying $1.50 for single performances, and many of recognized talents were appearing under assumed names with identities further hidden by the camouflage of makeup.

Another outlet was the neighborhood movie houses where stars of three years ago did monolog bits. On upper Broadway also was a legitimate theater featuring "guest stars" in stock. One play featured six players whose names burned simultaneously in Broadway lights five years ago.

The Atlantic has been rough going, great guns, for the slim passenger lists the past few months. Mountainous swells swept entirely over some of the largest ships. Many bogged into port three and four days late, and upon three different crossings not a passenger left state-rooms from Cherbourg to New York and vice versa.

Ray Long is a sturdy sailor who weathers the sea's capers gallantly. During one momentous crossing our cabins adjoined. It was a continual toss from Havre to Fire Island. I did not stir out of my bunk but once to totter to breakfast, and that was only after his insistent pleading. While I sat wanly on the edge of the chair in a Camille wilt, he—with tweedy breeziness—said briskly to the swaying steward: "Bring us, to start, two helpings of onion soup." I gave him a despairing glance and made it back to the cabin in nothing flat. And just made it, too.

Onion soup for breakfast sounds as though it might be a gag from Mr. Minsky's burlesque, yet it is quite continental. It is listed in such epicurean establishments as Foquet's, Foyot's and La Rue. And is the dawn piece de resistance at Les Halles.

The Duke of Manchester and his bride have been renewing acquaintances on their honeymoon trip, which will end at a rented villa at Havana for the winter. His Grace boasts a Spanish strain and may eventually settle down permanently in Cuba. His bride, tall, brunette and athletic, is the daughter of a wealthy English ironmonger and is known to New York, having frequently visited the Fred Puninellis. The Duke, of course, is almost as well known in New York as in London and hundreds are privileged to call him by his familiar nickname, "Kim."

I am indebted again to Major Raymond Dickson of Texas for a brand of country sausage impossible to procure in these here parts, strangah! The New York version is sissified. Major Dickson's has a fiery tang that tears the lining out of the mouth, brings on a sudden sweat and may be tasted six days longer than a robust radish. The Major's brief note with it explains all. "Buckskin—We used to blast stumps with this in the south meadow until city chaps foreclosed the mortgage."

Just Folks

Happiness and the Rich

If happiness were stocked for sale
The rich could sit content
And order it by phone or mail,
In bottle, bucket, pan or pail
Packed properly and sent.

If happiness were bought and sold
The rich would never sigh.
They'd have no dread of growing old.
For every hurt and ache their gold
A cure would promptly buy.

If happiness could be supplied
So much per ounce, per pound,
The rich, when they were trouble-tried,
Would merely search the country wide

But rich men suffer grief and pain
And days of trial, when
The purchase power of gold is vain,
And then they whimper and complain
Like ordinary men.

That Colombian Loan! Mellon's Oil Plans

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Boston Evening American

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE ought, if they have not taken leave of their senses, to be mightily interested in the revelations of the activities of the Administration in Washington in reference to foreign loans in Latin America. Only the other day we learned something regarding the Peruvian loan, which found its way into the possession of American investors and is now in default. It is an amazing story, and we tremble to think what the papers would say about it if Tammany Hall was involved.

Here are the facts that should interest the investors in these defaulted bonds, if no one else: The commercial attache of the American Embassy at Lima reported to the Department of Commerce against the loan. He said that it would be defaulted within five years; and that the American investors would be fortunate to get ten cents on the dollar. That is one of the duties of a commercial attache—to help protect and serve the American people.

Did the American people get the benefit of that advice? They did not. Did the bankers who floated the loan? We do not know. But the Department of Commerce and the State Department knew about it. And what was done?

The Commerce Department, under the command then of Mr. Hoover, rebuked the attache for not sending in "optimistic reports." In other words, whatever the facts, whatever the peril to mere investors, he should so report as to encourage the sale of the bonds.

Well, what do you think about that—now that the rebuked attache appears to have been right!

Another Interesting Development

And now we have another interesting development, brought out by Senator Johnson in the investigation before the Finance Committee. This involves Colombia: a loan to that country, and the restoration by that country of an oil concession of great value, 75 per cent of which was owned by the Mellon interest and 25 per cent by the Morgan interest.

New York bankers had long postponed the advancement to Colombia of $4,000,000 of a $20,000,000 credit. Colombia wanted the money. At the same time Secretary Stimson was exerting himself and using his position to the utmost to persuade the Colombian government to restore the oil concession to the Mellons and the Morgans.

It was Mr. Stimson himself who personally presented Colombia's plea for the money to the bankers, and he appears to have been very insistent upon it. At length, with the American Government insisting in behalf of Colombia on the loan of the four million dollars, the money was advanced. Most significantly, but ten days before the oil concession was restored to the Mellons and the Morgans.

"Not in the Public Interest"

Was there any connection? Was the American Government used in this way to serve the private interest of the dominant figure in the Administration?

The State Department denies it, as of course it would under any circumstances; but it appears quite clearly, from evidence wrung from the department by Senator Johnson, that President Olaya thought there was a connection. It appears that the American Minister at Colombia sent a telegram to the State Department saying that the Colombian President expected to get the loan since the oil concession had been restored.

That is an interesting telegram; but the State Department fought hard to prevent its publication to the American people. It did so on that very convenient excuse that it was "not in the public interest." This impelled Senator Johnson to a sharp comment:

"There is no communication from an American official at Bogota concerning a concession to the Mellon family which the American people are not entitled to know. The question is whether there is a necessary character to the Mellon family which precludes this telegram from being made public."

On the face of things, the situation in reference to the oil concession and the loan was this: No restoration of the oil concession, no loan; restoration, and a loan. That is clearly the impression of Senator Johnson.

Nothing Had Been Done

With the State Department exerting itself to the utmost for the restoration of the oil concession to the Mellons and Morgans, and with almost $100,000,000 of Colombian bonds defaulted, Senator Johnson asked the representative of the department if anything had been attempted to protect the holders of these bonds and securities floated in the American market.

The answer was that nothing had been done.

Is it not about time for a Seabury investigation into the relation of the American Government to the floating of Latin-American bonds? Enough has been developed to create a natural suspicion that there may be many other transactions that must not be made public "in the public interest."

Where Our Great Originate

The intelligent, who have knowledge of birth control, do not perpetuate themselves, he says, while the ignorant breed without restraint.

As the result of this "poisoning of democracy by the mob," according to him, the caliber of our public officials is steadily lowering every year.

The character of our American people is being "impaired and weakened" by the promiscuous breeding of the 90 per cent at the bottom of the pile and the sterility of the 10 per cent at the top, according to Brother Durant.

He would have more and better birth control. Poor, pessimistic Will Durant.

Birth control would have denied us Samuel Adams, father of the American Revolution. Gentility of birth, according to Mr. Durant's conception of gentility, would have given us no Andrew Jackson, no Abraham Lincoln. Nor a Christ, born in a manger and wrapped in swaddling clothes.

Instead of poisoning democracy, the great rank and file of our people are to be complimented for the fortitude, endurance and patience with which they have borne the adversities of the past two years. If courage and leadership and confidence have come from any place, it has been from them. The few at the top have been the ones sterile in these fine qualities.
